FINISH ILLINOIS WATERWAY BY 1933, U. S. PLAN

State Not Worried by Blaine Rider.

Completion of the Illinois waterway by April 1, 1933, under the federal government, was looked for yesterday by the state division of waterways, the date of the opening being now estimated at two years later than was expected two years ago. The action of the senate in Washington on the rivers and harbors bill, which carries an appropriation of $7,500,000 to finish the project between Lockport and Utica, was taken by the authorities as assurance that the government will take over the undertaking at an early date.

Work by the state has been closed down, except for some dredging, as the $20,000,000 which Illinois is spending of its own money was insufficient to finish the job.

Summer's Delay Seen.

The state officials figure that when the government takes hold, it will require some time to let the first contracts, which might cause a summer's delay this year, and that the program will be carried out in the two working seasons of 1931 and 1932. The state has the work of building the bridges.

State officials expressed the opinion that the Blaine amendment in the senate, limiting the amount of diversion from Lake Michigan for the waterway to the maximum amount set forth in the Supreme court decision, pending further action from congress, will not affect navigability in the early years of the waterway. As they view it, under the greatest restriction, the waterway would have a diversion of 3,200 cubic second feet in 1933, which would be five years after the route has been in operation. By that time the development of transportation, they declare, will lead congress to provide the diversion deemed necessary by the secretary of war in the report he is to submit by 1933.

Restrictions by Court.

The Supreme court decree allows a diversion of 6,500 cubic second feet until 1935, and after that 5,000 cubic feet until 1938, when it is to be cut to 1,500 feet, plus pumpage for Chicago's domestic needs, which amounts to about 1,700 cubic feet. As the officials see it, one of the most important phases of the waterway item is that congress, when the bill is passed, will have given official recognition to the waterway project for the first time.

7½ MILLION FOR WORK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—Without a record vote the senate today passed the rivers and harbors bill, carrying total authorizations of upward of 125 million dollars, including $7,500,000 for federal completion of the Illinois waterway.

The bill will be in the hands of President Hoover early next week, prompt concurrence in senate amendments to the original house bill by the house being assured. It is taken for granted that the President will sign the bill, inasmuch as it incorporates authorizations for carrying out the inland waterway developments program which he has advocated.

Expended Over Period of Years.

Supporters of the measure insist that it need not interfere with the administration's financial program, inasmuch as the money will be expended over a period of years and only as allotted by the chief of engineers of the war department from lump sum annual appropriations.

The rivers and harbors bill includes authorizations for scores of projects in all sections of the country. By means of the Illinois waterway provision it makes possible completion of the lakes to the gulf waterway. It adopts a nine foot project for the upper Mississippi where the depth is at present six feet, a six foot project in the Missouri river up to Sioux City, and a nine foot project on the Tennessee river from its mouth to Knoxville. It authorizes deepening of the connecting channels in the great lakes and transfer of the New York state barge canal from the state of New York to the federal government if the state approves it.

Senator A. H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], who was active in yesterday's successful move by representatives of nine states to restrict water diversion at Chicago through the Blaine amendment, expressed his opposition to the entire bill just before it was passed. No other voice was heard against the nays were called for by Vice President Curtis.

The bill came to the senate from

MELLON COMES TO DEFENSE OF THE NEW TARIFF

Insists It Will Aid Better Business.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon today issued a defense of the new Hawley-Smoot tariff law. Instead of injuring business, retarding business recovery or ruining foreign trade, Mr. Mellon, as the financial authority of the administration, asserted that it makes a "definite contribution to business stability."

Elimination of the uncertainties of the last 15 months while the tariff bill was pending and the promise of a more businesslike revision in the future through the amended flexible provisions are the factors in Mr. Mellon's opinion which will aid business recovery.

Say Gloomy Prophecies Fail.

"It seems to me that fears and criticisms have been greatly exaggerated," said Mr. Mellon. "Whenever a new protective tariff law has been enacted gloomy prophecies have been made. They have failed to materialize as far back as I can remember, and my memory goes back many years. The rates in the bill as it passed the house a year ago were higher than in the bill recently signed by the President. Yet business at that time did not take alarm. There seems to be no reason why it should now. I know of no industry that is seriously hurt, while those industries which needed additional protection and received it are benefited.

"I have canvassed the situation with the secretary of commerce, and the notion that this law is going to destroy our foreign trade, expressed in some quarters, is certainly without foundation. The United States will continue to buy a vast quantity of foreign products and to sell the products of its farms, mines, and factories all over the world. In so far as imports are concerned, foreign nations that do business with us would do well to remember that the all important factor is the maintenance of the high purchasing power and standard of living of the American people."

Predicts Early Adjustment.

Secretary Mellon insisted that industries should be able to adjust themselves to the new law without difficulty. He denied that there is such a marked increase in the level of industrial rates as critics of the bill would have the country believe. He expressed particular approval of the flexible provisions.

"The enactment of this measure brings to an end fifteen months of uncertainty," said Mr. Mellon. "American industries know now where they stand and will, I am confident, adjust themselves without difficulty to new conditions.

"There seems to be an impression that the new bill makes a sweeping revision upward of existing rates. While it is true that there is a sharp increase in rates applicable to the agricultural schedule, generally speaking, other rates cannot be said to have been advanced sufficiently to alter substantially our existing economic position. In fact, only a comparatively few of the major items have been changed.

"I do not mean to imply that the bill is free from defects. No tariff bill is. But this measure at least by its own terms provides the means whereby inequalities and errors may be adjusted.

Praises Flexible Provisions.

"I look upon the flexible provisions as highly important. I believe that they offer the opportunity not only to correct errors and to adjust rates to meet new and changing conditions, but that they lay a foundation for a businesslike method of tariff revision, free from the pull of sectional and political interests that seem to make by the legislative body almost impossible a scientific and well balanced revision possible.

"If these provisions are intelligently and courageously applied, they should go a long way toward making another legislative revision of the tariff unnecessary for many years to come."

Watson Defends Tariff.

Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], majority leader of the senate, defended the new law in a radio speech tonight.

"The law just passed was held in the senate almost nine months and it is now but four months and a half until the election occurs this fall," said Senator Watson.

"Whether or not four months will

ALERT BOY RIDES WITH POLICE AND SPOTS A GUNMAN

The alertness of a 15 year old boy, William Maloney, brought about the capture yesterday of a St. Louis gunman an hour after he had slugged and robbed Leo Breskin, 74 year old haberdasher, in his store at 3509 West North avenue.

Living next door at 3507 West North avenue, William witnessed the robbery and found Breskin unconscious from a blow of a pistol butt after the gunman fled with $50. When a flivver squad composed of Detectives Curran, Mulvey and McMahon arrived from Austin station William climbed into their car.

They had cruised the neighborhood for many blocks when at Kedzie and Chicago avenues William spied the fugitive. The police captured and disarmed him. At the Austin station he confessed 15 previous robberies. He was booked as Leslie Moore Combs. He said he came here recently from St. Louis.

ALL OVER WITH MORROW NOW, M'BRIDE SAYS

Minneapolis, Minn., June 20.—(AP)—F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, declared here today that Dwight W. Morrow has sacrificed his political future by winning the Republican nomination for senator in New Jersey on a wet platform.

Dr. McBride said the ambassador's stand on the prohibition question "takes away his last chance for the Presidency." Dr. McBride added:

"Mr. Morrow will be merely another wet from New Jersey if he is elected. So far not one dry vote in the house has been lost and nominations for the senate represent a net gain of one dry vote, even though New Jersey again sends a wet to the senate."

SUMMER DEBUT TODAY TO BRING RISE IN MERCURY

Summer begins officially today, the longest day of the year. The solstice occurs at 10:54 o'clock tonight, Chicago daylight saving time, when the sun reaches the northernmost extremity of its six months' swing in the northern hemisphere, and turns back southward.

The sun rises today at 5:24 a. m. and sets at 8:40 p. m., making 15 hours and 16 minutes of sunshine.

The forecast for today was fair and somewhat warmer, with the temperature reaching a probable maximum of 86 degrees. This is about six degrees above the normal maximum for this time of the year, according to Forecaster W. P. Day.

O. K. M'Nider Over Protest by Brookhart

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—Hanford MacNider, former assistant secretary of war, was today confirmed by the senate as minister to Canada over the protest of Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart [Rep., Ia.], who climaxed a bitter attack on MacNider by charging the latter had turned recent American Legion conventions into "drunken revels."

Except for a spirited defense of MacNider's personal habits and his devotion to the interests of ex-service men by Senator Daniel Steck [Dem., Ia.], Brookhart's attack left the senate unmoved and his was the only dissenting voice when MacNider's appointment was approved without a record vote.

"Too many Legion conventions have been just drunken revels," shouted Brookhart, "and I've seen this man MacNider leading those revels, and I am opposed to sending him anywhere to represent the United States."

Steck Leaps to Defense.

"I cannot let that last statement go by unchallenged," declared Steck in one of the few speeches he has made during his nearly six years in the senate. "I care nothing about the political differences between my colleague and Mr. MacNider, but I can't overlook such statements when I know what he has done for veterans.

"When the senator, my colleague, says Hanford MacNider is a drunkard he is either ill advised or he doesn't know what he is talking about. Years ago Mr. MacNider did take a drink occasionally, but for the last four years, since he came into political life, he has been a teetotaler."

Brookhart candidly admitted that his attack on MacNider was the outgrowth of a personal as well as a political feud which reached its greatest height when MacNider and his father, a prominent Iowa banker, led the fight which resulted in the ousting of Brookhart from the senate in 1926.

Calls Him Soldiers' Enemy.

"The younger MacNider was the chief lobbyist against me among senators at that time," asserted Brookhart. "He is the worst enemy that soldiers ever had. He represents the cement trust and the chain farming evil. I don't know why he was appointed, unless it was to reward him for his work in the campaign. He has succeeded in making the American Legion a partisan and political organization."

Reading from some of MacNider's speeches criticizing senate radicals in general and himself in particular, Brookhart came on one in which MacNider complained that in spite of his constant opposition to the administration Brookhart was allowed to control federal patronage in Iowa.

"That," said Brookhart, "refers to young American Legion members who I succeeded in getting appointed as United States marshals in Iowa, any one of whom would make a better minister to Canada than this man MacNider."

Superior Judge Williams yesterday granted leave to Mrs. Lottie Gut, 17 years old, 4921 South Wood street, to file a cross bill to her husband's suit for divorce. She testified she married Cazimir Gut, 70 years old, on Feb. 3, 1927, without seeing him previously. Her mother, she said, had shown her Gut's picture, but she later found out that the picture had been taken when he was young. She left him the day after their marriage. A few days ago her husband filed suit for divorce, charging desertion.

Girl, 4, Gives Clew to 'Tape Bandit' Gang

Louise Patterson, who has a keen memory for a 4 year old, told Detective Sergeants Fred Wirsing and William O'Neil a story yesterday which, they said, had helped them a long way towards solution of two of the major house robberies of last winter.

Early in the evening on Jan. 6 five bandits strode past a maid into the home of Charles M. Richter, millionaire magazine publisher of 1418 Lake Shore drive, subdued the family and servants with pistols and soft words, and gathered up $23,742 in jewelry. Before departing they bound and gagged all members of the household with tape.

Three weeks later a band of four housebreakers posing as interior decorators persuaded a servant to admit them to the home of Stuart Templeton, a lawyer living at 1388 North Green Bay road, Lake Forest. The Templetons being away, the robbers ransacked the house at leisure and took approximately $5,000 in loot. Again tape was used to bind and gag the servants.

Woman Gives Bandit Clew.

Information as to the "tape" bandits came to the police four weeks ago from Louise's mother, Mrs. Kathleen Patterson, at that time a county jail prisoner. She had been returned here from Victory, Ky., with Ray Miller, a former convict, to whom she had turned over the $18,000 inheritance of her husband, Merton Patterson, former marine and father of Louise.

"Ask Harry Lewis about the Richter and Templeton jobs," the erring wife hinted to Sergt. Wirsing. Questioned further, she admitted a grudge against Lewis, who had spurned her to marry another woman, but she would go no further in implicating him in the robberies.

As a matter of routine, Sergts. Wirsing and O'Connell investigated Lewis, a handsome man of 26 years, found him living with his bride at the Hermine hotel, 4101 Kenmore avenue, and took him in custody for questioning.

Denies Knowledge of Robberies.

"Sure, I knew Mrs. Patterson, and she's given me this rap because I wouldn't marry her," Lewis asserted. "I've had all my teeth kicked out by Oregon state police trying to connect me with a big mail robbery out there. You can kick me around, too, but I don't know a thing about these jobs you speak of."

To the sergeants Mrs. Patterson's hint began to appear dubious. Since the gunmen in both robberies had been masked, they decided it would be useless to have the victims confront Lewis. But before releasing him they decided to consult 4 year old Louise in his presence.

Yesterday, therefore, they took the prisoner to the Lincoln hotel, 1812 Lincoln avenue, where Louise and her mother have been staying.

Child Tells of Game.

"Yes, I remember Mr. Lewis," piped Louise. "He used to call on mother real often. He used to bring other men in and they would play a game of 'prisoners.'"

"What game is that?" asked O'Neil.

"Well, Mr. Lewis would tie another man's hands behind his back with tape. Then he would paste tape across the other man's mouth. Then he'd say to him, 'Now, tug hard and see if the tape holds.'"

Louise wriggled in her chair and compressed her lips, illustrating the game. "But the other men couldn't get free, so Mr. Lewis would take off the tape and say, 'We win.'"

All this was related to Police Chief Lester Tiffany of Lake Forest, who put Lewis in the village jail on a warrant charging robbery and larceny. Warrants were also taken out against Fred Ramsey, Willim Heeney, and Lester Gillis, reputed "playmates" of Lewis in the "game" Louise remembered so vividly.

PEACE MAKING COP LOSES HIS GUN IN HOLDUP

While off duty and strolling in plain clothes yesterday morning Policeman Patrick Duggan of the Hudson avenue station encountered at Hamlin and Eddy streets three men who apparently were having a quarrel.

"Say, what's going on here?" asked Policeman Duggan.

"Merely a stickup," replied one of the men, pointing a pistol at the policeman. "I'll frisk you, too, since you have insisted upon joining the party." Duggan, who was going to his home at 3800 Eddy street, surrendered his service revolver, and the other two, Jack Rose, 3735 Irving Park boulevard, and James Ward, 3757 Patterson, each gave up a small amount of money.

The bandit climbed into a nearby automobile, but, unable to start it, fled on foot. Acting Commissioner of Police Alcock said he will scan the report on the policeman's conduct before taking any action.

Boss Racketeer Slain

Yesterday's raids on the Capone syndicate's distilleries in Cicero followed the discovery of the body of Lorenzo Juliano, boss racketeer and Capone henchman, who had been taken for a ride and slain.

Twelve Cicero alcohol distilleries, believed to have been operated by the Capone booze syndicate, were raided late yesterday by twenty prohibition agents under Assistant Administrator George Hurlburt.

Yesterday's cleanup brought the total of stills raided in Cicero in the last week to twenty-four. The average capacity of the twenty-four plants was 250 gallons a day, which would mean a daily output of 6,000 gallons, worth $30,000, according to Hurlburt. The monthly revenue to the booze syndicate on this basis would be $900,000.

Stills in Bungalows.

Only two prisoners were taken in the raids yesterday and early last evening, but six had been apprehended on the previous raids, and the agents said they would connect several others in the development of a conspiracy case. All of the twenty-four distilleries were found in bungalows.

The most elaborate plant was found at 3414 South 58th avenue, a 750 gallon recooker, which was used to refine first run alky made in the smaller stills. The recooker had a double column 24 inches in diameter and 15 feet in height. It was equipped with an electric blower designed to force the alcohol fumes upward, so they would not be smelled by dry snoopers.

The apparatus also included a 600 gallon receiving tank, which supplied the crude alky for the refining process an electric motor and an oil burner. There were 260 gallons of the finished product, which tested 190 proof, as chemically pure as the government standard.

Two Stills; Two Prisoners.

The two prisoners were seized at 3404 South 58th avenue, where two 100 gallon stills were found. The prisoners are Louis Nassatta and Joe Falsetto. A 150 gallon preheater and sixty gallons of alky were found at this address, together with three large concrete vats filled with mash.

At 1438 South 51st avenue, the raiders destroyed a 500 gallon distillery and eight 750 gallon vats of mash. At 3405 59th avenue a 200 gallon still, a 250 gallon preheater, and 20,000 gallons of mash were destroyed.

The raiders destroyed two 300 gallon stills at 3710 South 59th avenue. This bungalow also housed a 350 gallon preheater, 150 gallons of alcohol and 7,500 gallons of mash. The agents were still working at an early hour this morning and had not reported on all the addresses at which they were directed to make raids.

The law as about the bungalows raided were well kept and the buildings in a good state of repair, and lace curtains at the windows added to the appearance of domesticity. However, nothing except the distilling apparatus was found inside.

Oak Park Seizure.

Oak Park police yesterday arrested three men and seized 1,338 bottles of bourbon, Scotch whisky, imported gin and Barcardi rum. They captured an automobile in an alley at Pleasant street and South boulevard and arrested James Matthews, who gave his address as Daytona Beach, Fla. The car was loaded with liquor. Later they seized another car in a garage at 110 South Grove avenue, where the remainder of the liquor was stored. Jesse Warren, who admitted driving this car from Florida, was arrested. V. A. Howard of 932 Pleasant street, admitted having rented the garage but denied ownership of any part of the liquor. All three were turned over to prohibition authorities.

THE JULIANO MURDER

Back of the murder of Lorenzo Juliano, whose body was found yesterday in an automobile near 123d street and California avenue, there was a story of bombings, murders, blackmail, and the business of making and selling alcohol. Juliano had been beaten to death.

Juliano was rated as the boss of racketeers in the southern part of the county by virtue of his affiliation with Al Capone. Juliano was a Sicilian of 23 years' residence in this county, and until the Volstead era he was a grocer in Roseland.

In 1928 Frank Basile was convicted of attempting to bribe prohibition agents and sentenced to the penitentiary. But instead of going to prison he became an informer and spy for the government agents, and in his confession he told about Juliano.

8 Murders and 12 Bombings.

At least eight murders and twelve bombings were charged to Juliano by Basile. Then on Dec. 11, 1928, Basile was slain, taken for a ride. Of course Juliano was suspected and in order to obtain evidence against him Tony Feltrun was arrested. Feltrun committed suicide in a police cell because he was afraid to tell on Juliano, according to police and government agents.

Juliano continued to make alcohol and had many of his countrymen working for him. He was supposed also to have a few breweries in operation. Two months ago Chief of Police George Fiedler of Blue Island raided an elaborate still owned by Juliano and seized 200 cans of alcohol. The chief also destroyed $5,000 worth of machinery at the still. Juliano was fined $500.

The government caught him once in 1925 and he served 90 days in jail. Later he was indicted in Indianapolis as a member of a huge booze conspiracy, but he was never taken to Indianapolis for trial.

After the bombing of the homes of Senator Deneen and Judge Swanson, now the state's attorney, Juliano was arrested and charged with those crimes by Pat Roche, chief investigator for Swanson. But there wasn't sufficient evidence to convict and Juliano went free. The story, as Roche had it then, was that Juliano also killed "Diamond Joe" Esposito, a Deneen supporter.

Esposito had told Juliano to gather a large fund for a political contribution and Juliano had done so, giving the money to Esposito, according to Roche's information. But George Golding and his rough riding crew of prohibition agents invaded Juliano's territory and wrecked numerous stills in Chicago Heights and Blue Island and, Roche was told, Juliano retaliated by killing Esposito and bombing the homes of Deneen and Swanson.

Borrows Car; Vanishes.

Last Thursday at 4:40 p. m. Juliano borrowed an automobile from Daniel La Morte, 12824 South Winchester avenue, Blue Island. At six o'clock Juliano telephoned a bet on the last race at Washington Park to Ray Connors in a Blue Island cigar store. That night he was reported missing.

Yesterday an automobile was seen in the muck adjoining a clayhole outside of Blue Island. It had ran several hundred feet off the road. Juliano's body was in it, the head wrapped in a blanket on which were the printed letters, "Inf-Op Room," indicating it had been taken from some hospital. The feet were protruding from the window of the automobile.

Coroner Bundesen said an autopsy showed Juliano was beaten to death, not shot. The back of his head was crushed, his back was broken and all of his ribs were cracked.

NIEMOTH FOUND GUILTY; CHICAGO LAWYER SCORED

Baltimore, Md., June 20.—[Special.]—"If we are going to have a law-abiding community then you must convict this criminal and send back to Chicago this spokesman for gangdom who has come here to insult us by his presence," State's Attorney Herbert O'Conor told the jury today in closing the trial of William Niemoth, Chicago gangster, charged with participation in the Henry Sonneborn company clothing plant holdup here Oct. 1, 1926.

The jury in half an hour found Niemoth guilty. The verdict involved several counts, and it is possible Niemoth may be given twenty-five years—ten for holdup and fifteen for larceny.

In his closing arguments State's Attorney O'Conor scorchingly assailed W. W. O'Brien, former assistant state's attorney of Chicago, who, although he bears wounds from gangsters' guns, has become their defender, and in his defense of Niemoth sought to prove an alibi.

"I have never in all my life heard a respectable community so insulted as it has been by the spectacle which I have just witnessed," said O'Conor after O'Brien had finished his argument.

"His [O'Brien's] cowardly tactics were those which may be used elsewhere in defending gangsters, but we are not going to stand for them in Maryland. Such wilful distortion of facts would only be used where the slime of gangland trails across the floors of temples of justice.

"In his case I think the state's attorney's office has performed its duty, no thanks to Mr. O'Brien, who has said we have manufactured evidence, coached witnesses and seek conviction for political purposes. That may be the way Mr. O'Brien conducted his office in Chicago, but that is not the way we conduct ours here."

ALCOCK SHIFTS 10 CAPTAINS IN POLICE SHAKEUP

Ex-Deputy Commissioners Get Station Jobs.

$55,825 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,825 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter. The information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street, telephone State 3729.

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock issued an order last night transferring ten captains as part of his reorganization to end the rule of criminals and gangsters. He delayed for a few days the removal of 700 plain clothes men from detective bureau squads to uniform patrol duty in the various districts but that will be done soon, he declared.

Among the captains named in the order are the five who acted as deputy police commissioners under the two previous commissioners. The order was as follows:

CAPT. THOMAS WOLFE to South Chicago.

CAPT. JAMES L. MOONEY to Brighton Park.

CAPT. MARTIN R. MULLEN to Des Plains street.

CAPT. IRA J. McDOWELL to Irving Park.

CAPT. WILLIAM L. STAPLETON transferred from Cottage Grove to the detective bureau.

CAPT. JOSEPH J. O'CONNELL transferred from Brighton Park to Cottage Grove.

CAPT. RICHARD GILL transferred from Hyde Park to the detective bureau.

CAPT. CHARLES McGURN transferred from Irving Park to West North avenue.

CAPT. WILLIAM P. KENNEDY transferred from West North avenue to the detective bureau.

CAPT. JOHN B. ENRIGHT transferred from Des Plains street to the first deputy's office.

Predicts He Will Win.

"Our backs are against the wall and we are fighting with all our strength," Acting Commissioner Alcock said, "but I predict that we will win. I will have the coöperation of all honest law enforcing agencies. In 1917 and 1918 I had the coöperation of the judges and the courts, and I expect it now."

Included in Alcock's plans is the restoration of the dignity that patrol sergeants enjoyed in former days.

"All a patrol sergeant does now is ride around in a flivver with his men," the commissioner explained. "He is on a par with patrolmen. My idea is to raise him to his rightful rank. He is responsible for the patrolmen and should see that they are on the job.

"The sergeant checks on the patrolman and the lieutenant is held responsible for the sergeant and the captain is supposed to see that the lieutenant does his work. I'll see that the captains do theirs."

Seeks Police Back Pay.

He arranged to get back pay for those who lost time and wages due to illness in the past five and one-half months. A budget provision of this year precluded payment to policemen of their salary while ill but Alcock induced the aldermen to change this and he will try to get the back pay.

"They will be more likely to give better service when they understand I am trying to treat them as they should be treated," he added. "I am going to have the policemen pull a box only once an hour instead of every twenty minutes as they do now."

The acting commissioner was getting his department in shape preparatory to the resumption of the investigation of it ordered by the city council after the murder of Alfred Lingle.

Ames Issues a Statement.

What is in store for the department might be seen in the following statement, issued yesterday by Maj. Carlos Ames, chairman of the civil service commission:

"While we know that thousands of our police are doing their full duty, still the fact remains that every captain, lieutenant, sergeant and patrolman is under suspicion for maintaining corrupt relations with gangs, and the police force is on trial.

"Our duty is to ascertain the facts as they exist and punish offenders wherever we find them, irrespective of their rank or term of service. It will be the duty of the council committee to present evidence to the civil service commission and we expect that duty will be performed fearlessly and efficiently.

The men in the department also have a duty to perform. We expect them to render every assistance in their power and I want to say to the men on the force, irrespective of rank, we shall demand of them every bit of information which might have a bearing on the subject now under investigation. We expect them to come forward voluntarily, freely and without hesitation and lay before us such information as will enable this commission to arrive at a just determination of the facts.

"Cannot Wink at Crime."

"Chicago has no use for crooked, double dealing policemen, nor has the great majority of the police department itself, but we cannot hope for security as long as we wink at perpetuation of the criminal system of gang rule emphasized by murder, assassination and other crimes of violence.

"For my own part, I desire to subscribe myself as a loyal supporter of the policy so emphatically declared by Mayor Thompson in his instructions to Acting Commissioner of Police Alcock to "Drive the crooks and gangsters out of Chicago." To do this work it will be necessary for Chief Alcock to have loyal, earnest and industrious subordinates. It will be necessary to get rid of every crooked policeman now in the service, and I want to assure the members of the council committee they will have the assistance, support and coöperation of the civil service commission."

London Papers "Purified" to Meet Irish Censor Law

(Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.)

DUBLIN, June 20.—A special "purified" edition of two English Sunday newspapers will be printed in London for circulation in the Irish Free State. This was disclosed tonight with the announcement that the "People" and the "Empire News"—both previously banned under the censorship of publications act—would be on sale again Sunday with most of their crime news removed.

5 SERGEANTS TAKEN "OUT OF CAGE" WHEN ALCOCK GETS POWER

The five sergeants elevated by Acting Commissioner Alcock, four to temporary lieutenancies and one to the post of acting deputy commissioner, had been relegated, in recent years, to obscure duties, and little has been heard of them. In police parlance, they had been "put in a cage."

As sergeants, the men received $2,900 a year. As lieutenants, they will receive $3,900, and the acting first deputy, James B. Scanlan, will receive $8,000. Something about these men follows:

Deputy Commissioner Scanlan—Member of the department since 1907 and associated with Alcock for sixteen years. Married, the father of three children, he lives at 351 W. 72d street.

Christopher J. Reed—Policeman since 1893 and associated with Alcock since 1920. Father of six children, he lives at 1017 West Garfield boulevard.

Lawrence J. Rafferty—With the department twenty-three years, close friend of Alcock fifteen years. Father of eleven children, home at 1646 West 102d street.

These three men were assigned to outlying stations under Chief Collins' régime, and for three years under the Thompson administration they have been on police inspection duty.

Michael J. Alcock—Brother of the acting commissioner. He has been a policeman since 1907. The father of three children, he lives at 1122 North Mansfield avenue. For eight years he has been dispensing gasoline to squad cars.

Willow J. Bowler—A policeman for more than thirty years. His father was a veteran of the Haymarket riot. For the last ten years he has been assigned to the narcotic detail. Residence, 216 Kilbourn avenue.

JUDGE CALLS U. S. ACTION SLIPSHOD IN DEPORTATION

CRIMINAL COURT.

Louis Fink, confidence game, sentenced to 1 year in the county jail by Judge Philip Finnegan.

Emil Seitman, Edward Panek and George Sturgeon, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Harry B. Miller.

Judge Harry B. Miller yesterday refused to wait longer for the government to act in the deportation case against George Sturgeon, 18 years old, an Irish alien, and he imposed a sentence of 1 year to life in Pontiac reformatory against the youth, who had pleaded guilty to burglary.

S. D. Smith, district director of the United States department of labor, was subpoenaed by the judge to find out the reason for the delay in deporting Sturgeon.

"Government Is Asleep."

"Chicago at present is overrun with undesirable aliens and the federal government is apparently sleeping on the job," said the judge. "I have waited for deportation in this case since April 3.

"The government action is slipshod. I am surprised at the way they handle deportation of aliens. I am not going to criticise you, Mr. Smith, but the methods are nothing to be proud of."

Smith told the judge that he has been trying to get the required deportation warrant, but that he did not expect to have it until some time in August. The judge said he would not wait any longer and imposed sentence at once.

Official Explains Delay.

Smith later in the day said that the judge apparently was not familiar with deportation procedure or he would have known that it takes several months before a deportation proceeding is concluded. He said that the Chicago district has 300 deportation requests a month and that in each case a hearing must be held and the recommendations sent to Washington. Chicago is only one of 34 districts, Smith pointed out, and a request for a warrant is necessarily a slow procedure.

CONSUL GENERAL TELLS LATVIA'S PART IN '33 FAIR

Arthur B. Lule, formerly an officer in the imperial Russian army and now Latvian consul general, was the guest at a luncheon given by World's Fair officials yesterday. In conjunction with Maj. Felix J. Streyckmans, chairman of the foreign groups committee, Mr. Lule formulated plans for the participation of Latvia in the fair in 1933. Mr. Lule, who is completing a tour of Latvian consulates, praised the part Latvians are taking in American life.

Will Rogers, cowboy comedian, arrived in Chicago yesterday to fill a week's engagement in a local theater and "see just what the Century of Progress exposition means." After visiting Ambassador Dawes and discussing the fair, Will made a tour of the lake front site selected by the fair committee.

WOOD ALCOHOL DEATH EPIDEMIC SENDS DORAN MEN INTO CONFERENCE

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—Alarmed over reports of deaths from synthetic methanol, or wood alcohol, Dr. J. M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, today called an interdepartmental conference to discuss ways to meet what is regarded as a dangerous situation confronting the government.

Those participating were shown reports from New York, Buffalo, New Orleans, Peoria, and other cities which have had epidemics of alcohol poisoning.

The report from New York showed that Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, had found that out of thirty-seven deaths from May 5 to June 13 from acute alcoholism thirty autopsies showed the presence of methanol in large quantities, but no ethyl alcohol.

afford time and opportunity for this tariff law to vindicate the wisdom of its provisions and the soundness of its rates cannot now be foretold, but that vindication is just as sure to come later on as day is to follow night."

Meanwhile, Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] continued the bombardment against the tariff law in a speech in the senate, dealing particularly with cable dispatches regarding French protests.

JAPANESE PROTESTS

GENEVA, June 20.—(AP)—A protest against "unreasonably high special tariffs" which he said were seriously injuring Japan was uttered today by Buntske Kurimoto, delegate for Japanese employers at the international labor conference.

Apparently alluding to the United States, Mr. Kurimoto complained of curtailment "of our most vitally important exports." He added: "never before have we experienced such a severe blow, dealt by a country on whom we have confidently depended and for whom we have felt a deep friendship."

The Japanese delegate pleaded for economic disarmament through the lowering of tariff barriers, which, he said, would be more effective in promoting world peace than military and naval disarmament.

Alabama Klansmen Burn Oscar De Priest in Effigy

Birmingham, Ala., June 20.—(AP)—Oscar De Priest, Negro congressman from Chicago, was burned in effigy by 1,000 persons dressed in the regalia of the Ku Klux Klan in Collegeville, Negro section of North Birmingham. Tom Johnson, communist organizer, also was burned in effigy. The demonstration followed an automobile parade through the Negro district when pamphlets warning against affiliating with communistic organizations were distributed.

ARRESTED FOR FATAL STABBING.

Anthony Olesko, 35 years old, of Arlington Heights, a laborer, alleged to have fatally stabbed Philip Gracio, also of Arlington Heights, following a quarrel in the suburb on June 10, was arrested yesterday.

DAVID RENEWS HIS DEFIANCE OF JUDGES' ORDER

McGoorty Elected Head of Criminal Court.

Superior Judge John J. McGoorty was unanimously elected chief justice of the Criminal court yesterday at the annual meeting of the Circuit and Superior court judges. He will succeed Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle at the opening of the fall term in September.

After the election, however, the harmony of the meeting was disrupted when Superior Judge Joseph B. David defied the order of the executive committee assigning him to duty in the Criminal court.

The assignment was made by Chief Justice Harry A. Lewis, who succeeded himself as head of the Superior court, and the other members of the executive committee, Judge Denis E. Sullivan, head of the chancery division, and Judge Walter P. Steffen, head of the law division. Judge David successfully challenged the authority of the committee last April by remaining in his court after he was ordered transferred to the Crimical court.

Judge Changes His Mind.

At that time Judge David had first volunteered to serve in the Criminal court and later served notice of his refusal. The members of the committee said that the judge changed his mind because they would not promise to allow him to sit in emergency court during the summer vacation. This post will be shared by Judge Gentzel and Judge Fitch in four week periods beginning on July 21.

"I will not be punished," Judge Davis declared as this announcement was made yesterday. "Until the constitution is obeyed I will not sit in the Criminal court. The law provides that the judges shall sit in that court in rotation, yet some judges have not sat there in ten years and the head of the chancery division [Judge Sullivan] has not been there for 16 years. I, who have held court in the Criminal branch recently, will carry my stand to the Supreme court if necessary."

Judge to Hold Court.

Later Judge Davis indicated that he will hold court during the summer to hear divorce and other cases despite the refusal of the committee to name him for the post. In this event he will serve notice on Superior Court Clerk M. S. Szymczak to make assignments to his court. Members of the committee refused to comment on Judge David's refusal to comply with the order and his plan to hold court other than to say, "No one paid any attention to Judge David's stand."

After his election Judge McGoorty said, "I am deeply appreciative of the honor bestowed on me. I will bend every effort to fulfill the duties of the position and coöperate fully with the law enforcing agencies."

Judge Sabath volunteered to serve in the Criminal court after nine years in the Divorce court. He will sit with Judges Frankhauser, Schwaba, and Williams. Judges Caylor, Fitch, Isaacs, Kavanagh, McKinley, Miller, and Steffen will sit in the law branch. Judges Lewis and John J. Sullivan will hear divorces and Judges Denis E. Sullivan, Lindsay, and Gentzel will hear chancery cases.

Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski was elected chief justice of the Circuit court. Judge Michael Feinberg will head the chancery division and Judge Normoyle the law division of that court.

Maguire Denies Vote Board Hires Crooks to Man Polls

Fred V. Maguire, chairman of the board of election commissioners, last night denied that persons with police records have at any time been employed as judges and clerks of election. This charge against Maguire was made earlier yesterday in a petition filed before County Judge Jarecki by Charles Center Case, former attorney for the election board and now a special assistant state's attorney. The petition asks Maguire's removal from office.

Maguire has been a member of the board since 1924. In a statement last night he criticized Case for what he termed the lawyer's "usual viciousness and disregard of the truth." Maguire declared that the election board, under his chairmanship, has always done its best to investigate the character, intelligence and ability of every person it appoints.

Statement by Maguire.

"The facts underlying my disagreement with Mr. Case," Maguire said, "concern Mr. Case's attempt, during the time he was attorney for the board, to dominate the policies of the board in order to serve his own peculiar political purposes. So far as the charges themselves are concerned I shall ask Judge Jarecki to permit the filing of this complaint and set the case down for a prompt hearing.

"The conduct of registrations and elections involves the employment of upwards of 15,000 judges and clerks. Some mistakes are inevitable and it has always been the case that some undesirable persons are selected. I have always insisted upon a thorough investigation of every complaint affecting an election official."

Case's petition charges that Maguire during the elections of the last few years has failed to comply with the law in selecting judges and clerks. It names more than 100 election board employés who are alleged to be notorious characters and calls attention to 12 men who served as clerks when the petition charges, they were known to have police records.

Chairman Maguire declared that 11 of the 12 were discharged between March 10 and March 28, before the April primaries, when investigation revealed they had criminal records. The other clerk, according to Maguire, is reported to have served a jail term at one time, although it has not been definitely ascertained.

Alleges Extensive Frauds.

"Election frauds are one of the principal sources of gangsters' power," Case's petition said. "It is common knowledge that extensive election frauds were committed at the registrations, canvasses and elections; that many if not most of such frauds were committed by or with the connivance of judges and clerks in the so-called deliverable wards."

Six wards—the 1st, 20th, 25th, 26th, 27th, and 42d—are specified as "deliverable" in the petition.

As a special assistant state's attorney, Case has been investigating alleged election frauds. Judge Jarecki, who as head of the county's election machinery appoints the commissioners, said:

"The petition was presented to me without previous knowledge. I have continued the matter until Monday at which time I expect Maguire to be present."

COUP HALTS CASH FOR WICKERSHAM LAW ENFORCERS

Point of Order Kills Fund in Deficiency Bill.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—An unexpected point of order raised in the house today knocked out of the second deficiency bill an appropriation of $250,000 to allow the Wickersham law enforcement commission to continue its work after July 1. Unless the item is reinstated the commission will have no funds at its disposal after that date.

Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.], a wet leader, raised the point of order during consideration of the deficiency bill that the appropriation had not been authorized. Representative Carl R. Chindblom [Rep., Ill.], temporary chairman, immediately sustained the point.

Although taken by surprise, congressional drys friendly to the commission, after hurried conferences, tonight were confident that the appropriation in some way would be replaced, so that the commission could continue to function for another year.

"Must Be Cleared Up."

"It is unthinkable that the President's commission should be cut off from funds with its investigation of prohibition and other laws only half finished," said Representative C. A. Christopherson [Rep., S. D.], one of the house dry leaders. "I am sure this unfortunate situation will be cleared up."

Representative L. C. Cramton [Rep., Mich.], another dry, pointed out that the senate may reinsert the appropriation, and Senator Wesley Jones [Rep., Wash.] indicated that he would sponsor an attempt to do so.

In any event, it appeared certain that the parliamentary moves to save the commission would open the way for debate in both houses and an airing of the group's activities since its creation by President Hoover a year ago. Both wets and drys are known to be dissatisfied with the commission's dealings with the prohibition question.

La Guardia Sees Opening.

The slipup which gave La Guardia his opening today was the failure of administration leaders to have passed a resolution renewing the authority of the commission to function after the end of the fiscal year July 1. Although this authority expires on that date and the commission had announced a month ago that it would require another year to complete its work, no authorization resolution has been introduced.

Gaining the floor when the appropriation item was reached, La Guardia cited the law requiring an authorization, declaring that the appropriation was "glaringly and brazenly out of order."

Representative Will R. Wood [Rep., Ind.], who was in charge of the bill, asserted that "this commission was created by congress and congress should not stop the job which it put in motion, especially when it is only half through."

Mr. Wood, however, did not contend that La Guardia was in error, and Chairman Chindblom, without hesitation, upheld him.

$80,000 Still Unspent.

"How much money has the commission already spent?" asked Representative J. Charles Linthicum [Dem., Md.]. Wood replied that out of its original $250,000 appropriation $80,000 is unspent.

"It looks to me as though a half million dollars is a good deal of money for what we have gotten," Linthicum commented.

Representative Cramton then inquired of La Guardia if he would object to an amendment to allow the commission to use the unspent $80,000 to continue its work. La Guardia replied that, "being in favor of law enforcement," he would be constrained to obect. At this Cramton took his seat and the house passed on to another part of the bill.

Deficiency Bill Is Passed.

The house passed the deficiency bill, remaining in session until 7 o'clock in order to do so. The bill carries a total of about $57,700,000. Outside of the Wickersham commission item the principal appropriation which occasioned controversy was $10,660,000 for commencing construction of Boulder dam. Representative L. W. Douglas [Dem., Ariz.] led an unsuccesful fight to strike out this item, contending that contracts for the sale of power which have been entered into are not valid.

WOMEN FLYERS ARRANGE FOR AIR DERBY

No Discord

Four women flyers who took part in last year's "powder puff" air Derby gathered at Curtiss field yesterday to discuss rules governing the women's Derby which will be held in August as a prelude to the national air races in Chicago.

There were rumors of a storm brewing in feminine flying circles over this year's rules but no major controversy developed at yesterday's meeting and at its close it appeared that the women would abide by the rules drawn up by their male contemporaries. Amelia Earhart, who flew to the meeting was surprised at the rumors.

"Nothing but the most cordial and friendly relations exist between us," she said.

Others who took part in the discussion were Mrs. Blanche Noyes, Mrs. Keith Miller, and Gladys O'Donnell. They will fly to Chicago in the two Derbies from the east and west coasts at the beginning of the national air tournament, which will open at Curtiss field on Aug. 23.

CALLS CANNON A LAW VIOLATOR, DARES HIM TO SUE

Tinkham Waives His Immunity.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—Bishop James Cannon Jr. was today called "a shameless violator of the federal corrupt practices act, a criminal statute," in a signed public statement issued by Representative George H. Tinkham [Rep., Mass.], challenging the churchman to institute suit for libel damages.

The statement was carefully phrased to give the dry leader ground for the legal action he threatened if Tinkham waived congressional immunity and repeated off the house floor charges made in a speech Tuesday.

Here's Tinkham's Statement.

Mr. Tinkham's statement follows:

"Lest Bishop Cannon shall delude any one into thinking the charges which I made against him in the house of representatives were unfounded, and meeting his challenge that I divest myself of my congressional immunity, I desire to restate over my signature the charges I made in the house of representatives that he is a shameless violator of the federal corrupt practices act, a criminal statute; that he received $65,300, mostly in cash, from a New York capitalist, Mr. Jameson, during the 1928 elections, and illegally concealed the receipt of all of this money until Feb. 15, 1929, and has not yet accounted for $48,300 of this amount, refusing to do so before the senate lobby investigation committee, before which he appeared voluntarily and where he was under oath and could have been cross-examined."

Bucket Shop Dealings.

In the house speech Tinkham, after ridiculing the bishop's assertion that the unreported $48,300 was spent for anti-Smith campaign purposes wholly within Virginia, reviewed available evidence of Cannon's dealings with Kable & Co., a now defunct New York bucketshop, whose operator, H. L. Goldhurst, is now serving a five year sentence in the Atlanta penitentiary, and concluded:

"Under all the circumstances, until Bishop Cannon has made, under oath and subject to cross-examination, under duress or otherwise, a statement of when, where, and for what purposes he expended the $48,300 entrusted to him by Mr. Jameson, for which he has made no accounting, he will stand convicted in the eyes of all honest men of having appropriated the money to his own uses."

Rushes to Cannon Defense.

Shortly after Tinkham issued his statement today a defense of Cannon by Representative Joseph C. Shaffer [Rep., Va.], in the course of debate on proposed appropriations for the creation of additional federal judgeships and prison camps, was loudly applauded in the house. Representative J. C. Shafer [Rep., Wis.], resenting a protest from Representative L. C. Cramton [Rep., Mich.] against "these fanatical anti-prohibition speeches," retorted, "Well, we've heard enough recently on the floor about this disreputable politician, Cannon."

Shaffer of Virginia leaped up to shout: "For the second time a Virginia citizen has been ambushed here on the floor of this house," and was loudly applauded when, after asserting "the American people admire a bold and fearless man," he added, "and say what you please about Cannon, he is a bold man."

DEMANDS CHURCH MAKE DIVORCEE SOCIAL OUTCAST

Deplores Increase of Parted Couples.

BY ROBERT SAGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 20.—A suggestion that divorced people who remarry should be snubbed is contained in a motion placed before the Anglican church assembly today by Athelstan Riley, vice president of the English Church union, who recommended that bishops and archbishops give advice to the laity concerning their social dealings with those who had passed through the divorce courts.

"The church of Christ in this land has never sanctioned divorce," Mr. Riley declared. "Only gradually has English reverence for holy matrimony as a lifelong bond been undermined.

"In 1913 only 577 marriages were dissolved by the courts. In 1923, when the cry of equality of the sexes was at its height, a measure was passed putting husband and wife on equal footing—a cruel and wicked act.

"One thing stands out clearly. When they are tired of each other's society the husband, in the language of the day, does the honorable thing and the hotel bills are brought to court.

"It is common knowledge since the war that a new profession has arisen—women who are prepared, for a consideration, to provide a hotel bill even if no adultery has taken place."

The speaker declared that the situation was grave and suggested a remedy in socially black-balling divorcees.

Mayor Gives Away Old Vest with Wife's Diamonds in It

Joliet, Ill., June 20.—[Special.]—Fearing to leave her rings in her jewel case because of a possible burglar or sneak thief, Mrs. Sehring, wife of Mayor George F. Sehring of Joliet, has been using an old gray vest of his honor's as a repository for diamonds worth $2,100. Yesterday while Mrs. Sehring was away from home the mayor gave the vest and some other clothing to a man he had befriended but whose name he does not know. Police have been asked to help locate the vest's new owner.

SUPREME COURT RULES AGAINST CUNEO'S TOWER

Appeal for Sixty Story Skyscraper Defeated.

John F. Cuneo, millionaire printer, was defeated in his fight to erect a sixty story tower at the northeast corner of Michigan avenue and Randolph street yesterday. The Illinois Supreme court sustained a decision of the Circuit court of Cook county which revoked Cuneo's building permit and declared illegal the amendment to the Chicago zoning code under which the permit was granted.

The court said: "In our opinion there is no merit in appellant's [Cuneo's] contention that denying him the right to erect a sixty story building upon his property will deprive him of property without due process of law.

Points to Other Buildings.

"He and his property are under the provisions and regulations of the original 1923 zoning ordinance of Chicago and its lawful amendments, which have been the guiding hand in the construction of all other business buildings in the fifth volume district." The fifth volume district constitutes the loop and central business district.

Cuneo's permit was issued by Building Commissioner Paschen on July 8, 1929, after the city council had passed an amendment to the zoning code purporting to allow the structure to rise 440 feet at the street line, instead of 264 feet, without a setback. The amendment, which designated specific parcels of property that could benefit from the additional height allowance, was declared by Chief Justice Thomas Taylor Jr. of the Circuit court to be inimical to the rights of neighboring property owners. Cuneo appealed Judge Taylor's decision.

Council Repeals Amendment.

The amendment was passed by the council building and zoning committee on June 3 and by the council on June 14. The agitation aroused among loop property owners when the existence of the amendment was discovered was increased when members of the council committee said that it had been slipped through the meeting without their knowledge. At a second meteing they voted to repeal it and the council affirmed their action.

Attorney Barnet Hodes, counsel for Cuneo, announced that he will file a petition for a rehearing by the Supreme court. Justice Warren Duncan dissented from the majority opinion of the court.

Mobile, Ala., June 20.—[Special.]—Harold H. Schroeder, for three weeks the center of a death mystery that has kept the police of several states on the alert, was found hiding in the weeds of a vacant lot today, a few blocks from the home and wife he left the latter part of May to attend the Memorial day automobile races at Indianapolis, Ind. He had been hiding in Mobile five days, he said. He had one cent and a penknife in his pockets.

He was taken to police headquarters and asked to explain how it was that his automobile was found partly burned at the edge of a road outside Indianapolis, with the charred body of a man inside. The body was at first identified as that of Schroeder, as his coat was found in the car, with a receipt for $60,000 life insurance recently taken out by Schroeder in the pocket.

His Explanation.

This was Schroeder's explanation as told to police tonight:

"I left Indianapolis the night of May 30, after seeing the 500 mile race, and was driving along the national road west and picked up a pedestrian, a hitch hiker. I did not ask his name. He said he was from Massachusetts. While we were driving along toward Terre Haute, my companion dropped to sleep. Later on I also fell asleep and the car ran into a ditch. I awoke and looked over and saw the hitch hiker was sitting in a position as though his neck had been broken, and he did not move.

"I turned around and drove toward Indianapolis. We got almost to the city and I stopped the car, got out and touched a match to the gasoline tank. I was afraid to have a dead man on my hands and I thought I might be suspected of having killed him myself."

Schroeder said he would fight extradition to Indiana.

Search for Schroeder began here a week ago, after his wife, Mrs. Leah Schroeder, admitted she had received two letters from her husband, posted in Nashville, Tenn., several days after the charred body and car were found near Indianapolis.

Faces Murder Charge.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 20.—[Special.]—Informed tonight of the arrest in Mobile of Harold H. Schroeder, County Prosecutor Judson L. Stark stated that he will be returned here immediately to face charges of the murder of a man found in the Schroeder automobile on a road west of Indianapolis May 31. This man has not been identified, few efforts have been made even to claim his body. Police examined the charred torso and reported they found a knife or bullet wound in the chest. Scraps of clothing did not correspond to Schroeder's coat found in the smoldering automobile.

Indianapolis officers working on the case had just left Mobile this morning. They were apprehended at Montgomery, Ala., and turned back south. Schroeder's brother and sister who live at Chicago and Elkhart, Ind., respectively, also are reported hurrying to Mobile.

Woman Held Up in Auto; Loses Her Gems and Cash

Mrs. Hazel Gunning, 821 Waveland avenue, was preparing to drive away from her mother's home at 210 East Erie street last night when two robbers stepped into her automobile and took her wrist watch, a ring valued at $650, and $3.50 in cash. They then compelled her to drive to 657 St. Clair street, where they joined two other men in another car and escaped.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 20.—(AP)—Edward M. Devereux, treasurer of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and Mrs. Devereux of Baltimore were seriously injured today when their automobile was overturned in a collision with another car. The couple was taken to Bryn Mawr hospital, where physicians reported Mr. Devereux had suffered fractured ribs and severe cuts and contusions. Mrs. Devereux had cuts and bruises of the head and possible fractures. Their son, Edward Jr., escaped injury.

BYRD DESCRIBES HIS EXPLOITS AS HOOVER LISTENS

Receives Formal Thanks of His Country.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, polar explorer and aviator, took Washington by storm tonight with his verbal and pictorial story of his latest exploit, the conquest of the south pole by air and the exploration of the frozen wastes of the antarctic continent.

An audience of 6,000 persons, including President Hoover, Vice President Curtis and hundreds of high ranking officials and officers were present in the Washington auditorium as the drama of the Byrd expedition's successful struggle against cold and ice and snow was unfolded on the films.

Time and again the audience applauded as incidents of the expedition's two year fight to win a wider knowledge of the antarctic continent were portrayed. The appearance of Rear Admiral Byrd in person as he told the story of his achievements and again as he appeared as the principal actor in the pictured story of the Byrd-Balchen flight over the south pole was the signal for applause.

Gold Medal Presented.

The President presented to the rear admiral a special gold medal cast by the National Geographic society to commemorate the young explorer's flight over the south pole. This was the climax of a crowded day for the eighty odd members of the Byrd expedition. From the time the party arrived in the capital at 9 a. m. until they left late this evening for New York, they were the center of constant attention and applause.

On two occasions Rear Admiral Byrd was publicly praised for his "courage, daring and leadership" by President Hoover. At a private luncheon in his honor, Byrd's exploits were extolled by Washington officials.

At the capitol the explorer's unexpected arrival threw the legislative machinery out of gear for twenty minutes. Rear Admiral Byrd was taken upon the floor of the senate while his companions watched the proceedings from the galleries. After he had shaken hands with Vice President Curtis and all the senators present and the senate pages, the naval officer called on Speaker Longworth [Rep., O.] and greeted members of the house.

Auditorium Crowded.

The big auditorium, gayly decorated with flags and pennants, was crowded long before the arrival of President Hoover and the explorer. The first to arrive on the stage were the eighty members of the Byrd expedition.

Rear Admiral Byrd, in a full dress uniform of blue, entered the side door amidst tumultuous applause. The audience was still standing a moment later when President Hoover arrived and took a seat in front of the microphone. Rear Admiral Byrd grinned happily as the crowd applauded.

Under the proscenium arch three naval flags were draped in the "Yoke - William - X - ray" signal. It meant "Well done."

Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the Geographic society, introduced President Hoover to the audience.

Praises His Example.

"I am glad to welcome Admiral Byrd back to Washington," President Hoover said in his address tonight. "I speak not merely for myself but for the nation as a whole and for every individual citizen. His contribution to exploration and scientific research has done honor to his country, and his country takes a just pride in them and in him. More than that, his daring and courage have thrilled each one of us individually, because he has proved anew the worth and power and glory of qualities which we believe are latent in our people. For men of our race to master extraordinary difficulties, to carry through great adventure, thrill us with pride, with hope, and with confidence. I sometimes think that this is the greatest value of modern explorers.

"I do not minimize the scientific gains of such expeditions, but the human values are so immediate and so universal in their effect that it may well be that they transcend the scientific service. Every hidden spot of the earth's surface remains a challenge to man's will and ingenuity until it has been conquered. Every conquest of such a difficult goal adds permanently to mankind's sense of power and security. Great explorers, therefore, do not merely add to the sum of human knowledge, but also they add immensely to the sum of human inspiration.

"Knowledge, too, has been enriched by Admiral Byrd's expedition. New coasts of the antarctic continent have been mapped and new regions have been explored. Geological data have been increased, which contribute to our knowledge of the history of the earth. New knowledge of magnetic currents and of weather changes has been gained. The store of the world's knowledge may not be priced in money, for money we make and spend, but knowledge remains always with the race."

Tumultuous applause greeted Rear Admiral Byrd as he rose to reply.

"It is our belief that the expedition to the antarctic continent contributed materially to the sciences. The total area explored, surveyed, and investigated covers approximately 160,000 square miles.

"New land and new mountain ranges were discovered and large portions of the Ross ice barrier were explored.

Claims Land for U. S.

"Marie Byrd land lies east of the 150th meridian, and so outside the Ross dependency claimed by Great Britain. It was first observed on a flight Dec. 18, 1928, and claimed in the name of the United States.

"Then, on Dec. 5, 1929, after five unsuccessful attempts, we succeeded in flying over the theretofore impenetrable area on the eastern coast of Ross sea. Here, beyond the ice islands and shelf ice that have turned back all explorers since Sir James Clark Ross, we discovered, first, a magnificent range of mountains, and, next, an extensive coast, continuous with and providing access to the plateau of which Marie Byrd land is a southern boundary. This area also lies outside the Ross dependency.

"Finally, the geological party, under Prof. Gould, my second in command, penetrated Marie Byrd land and claimed it for the United States.

"Our investigations had the result of dispelling certain erroneous conceptions. For example, Carmen land, first 'observed' by Amundsen, is for a large part removed from the map.

"The polar flight drove home these conclusions. It emphasized the usefulness of the aerial mapping camera as the explorer's newest tool. It established the value of radio in exploration."

CHICAGO IN HOLE IF RELIEF FAILS, SENATORS TOLD

Officials Urge Passage of Strawn Bills.

All the difficulties that can befall a bankrupt municipality were presented in full detail as a future picture of Chicago yesterday to five state senators holding a hearing to determine if the major taxing agencies of Cook county are behind the citizens' committee relief bills now pending in the senate. The legislators were assured that the picture would become an actuality if the thirty measures do not pass.

The first of the hearings, held in the Mid-Day club, 33 South Clark street, was attended by high officials of most of the taxing agencies, and their parade to the witness stand presented this prospect to the senators if relief is not obtained—martial law, closed schools, the city unprotected by policemen and firemen, and an empty treasury. The hearing will be resumed this morning.

Cermak Is First Witness.

President Cermak of the Cook county board was the first witness.

"The corporate fund has been drained," he said. "This reassessment has already cost the county nearly $7,850,000, and I've no idea how much more it will cost. We will have to go to the governor and ask for another special session of the legislature if the boards of assessors and reviewers keep asking more money for it, for they have our backs to the wall and guns at our heads."

"The county institutions will close," said Mr. Cermak, "if these relief bills are not passed."

Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the city council finance committee, told how the city's coffers will be emptied by July 1 and predicted that 1,000 policemen will be laid off unless relief is obtained. Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], Mayor Thompson's floor leader, was next called. Questioned by Senator Victor P. Michel of Peoria on his relations with the mayor, Nelson replied, "I have the honor of his confidence and, at times, of reflecting his views."

Discuss Mayor's Attitude.

This led the senators into a by-lane seeking reasons why the mayor could not have answered their request and appear personally to tell his stand on the pending bills. Nelson said he believed the mayor favored the measures, and First Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Breen, who followed Nelson, said he was equally sure that this was the mayor's attitude.

"Well," said Senator Lowell B. Mason of Oak Park, chairman, after a whispered consultation with his colleagues, "the committee feels it would be helpful to them if the mayor would come. Would you carry that message to him and report back to us at 2 p. m.?"

Breen promised, and at the opening of the afternoon session he told the senators that the press of the mayor's engagements prevented his attendance, but quoted him as heartily behind the relief plans.

Other Officials Testify.

State's Attorney Swanson, Deputy Fire Commissioner Edward A. Maloney, Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the citizens' committee, Acting Commissioner of Police Alcock, President Philip R. Clarke of the Central Trust company, J. L. Jacobs, county efficiency expert; James A. Hemingway, school trustee; Attorney Frank Righeimer of the board of education, Dr. Benjamin Goldberg of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium, and Victor S. Petterson, deputy city controller, were also on the stand.

All predicted that the city and county governments would be in straits if the bills did not pass. Mr. Strawn told of events leading to the formation of the citizens' committee.

The testimony led Senator Earl B. Searcy of Springfield to remark that the next legislature would have a "stupendous" tax program before it. There was no disagreement on this statement. Today the park boards, Health Commissioner Kegel and President Caldwell of the board of education will testify. The committee will report to the senate on Tuesday.

State Income Tax Is Certain Next Year if Voters Approve It

BY PARKE BROWN.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Springfield, Ill., June 20.—[Special.]—The appellation "income tax amendment" was conceded today to have been tacked permanently on the proposed amendment to the revenue article of the Illinois constitution which will be submitted to the voters of the state next November.

The general purposes of the amendment is described by its proponents as that of authorizing the legislature to classify property in order to reach intangibles which now escape personal property levies. But they, as well as opponents of the proposal admitted today, as the assembly went home for the week-end, that the first direct effect of popular approval of the amendment would be the enactment of tax on salaries, wages, and other income.

Even with the existent grave doubt of the legality of such a statute under the present basic law, it was pointed out, efforts to establish an income tax have failed by only a few votes in past assemblies. If the legal doubts are eliminated at the polls in November, one veteran pointed out today, the passage of such a law is virtually certain in the legislative session beginning next January.

Text of Amendment.

The final form of the amendment resolution as it passed both houses yesterday was the subject of many inquiries, telegraphic and otherwise today. In response, George C. Blaeuer, chief clerk of the house, made public copies of the text as it went to the state printers.

In exact form, the resolution follows:

"Resolved, by the senate of the state of Illinois, the house concurring herein, that there shall be submitted to the electors of this state for adoption or rejection at the next election of members of the general assembly of the state of Illinois, in the manner provided by law, a proposition to amend article IX. of the constitution by amending sections 1, 3, 9, and 10 to read as follows:

"Section 1. The general assembly shall have power to enact laws to provide revenue. All real estate for imposition of taxes shall be in one class, except that mineral lands and land devoted to reforestation may be in different classes.

How Tax Is to Be Divided.

"Section 3. If a tax is imposed upon incomes the state shall not receive more than 15 per centum of the proceeds thereof, after deducting the cost of collection, except by the affirmative votes of two-thirds of the members elected to each house of the general assembly. And unless otherwise provided by a similar two-thirds vote, the remainder shall be distributed among the several counties in the ratio which the total collected from taxpayers of each county bears to the total collected from taxpayers of the whole state, and the amount allocated to each county may be further divided among the county and other municipal corporations within or partly within such county as the general assembly may from time to time by general law direct. Other taxes collected by the state may be distributed in whole or in part among the counties and other municipal corporations in such manner as the general assembly shall direct by general law.

Taxing Powers Delegated.

"Section 9. The general assembly may vest the corporate authorities of cities, towns, villages, sanitary districts, park districts, and other municipalities with power to make local improvements by special assessment, or by special taxation of contiguous property, or otherwise. For all other corporate purposes all municipal corporations may be vested with authority to assess and collect taxes.

"Section 10. Except as permitted in section 2, the general assembly shall not impose taxes upon municipal corporations or the inhabitants of property thereof for corporate purposes, but shall require that taxes be levied by municipal corporations for the payment of debts contracted under authority of law. Private property shall not be liable to be taken or sold for the payment of the corporate debts of a municipal corporation."

Legislators Hurry Home.

The special session, with this resolution out of the way and the Strawn relief bills passed in the house, went flat suddenly today when it was found that most of the assemblymen had taken night or morning trains for their homes. The chief business transacted was the advancement of the Strawn bills to second reading in the senate. It is expected they will be advanced to third reading next Tuesday and passed Wednesday.

The only doubt concerning this schedule was the question of attendance next week. Gov. Emmerson, however, expressed his confidence that there will be more than a quorum of the upper house on hand ready to vote the local government of Cook county the financial relief it is seeking. Except for pointing out informally that he had not attempted to exert any pressure for the adoption of the constitutional resolution, the governor said he had nothing to say about the session's record, except that he never has sponsored any attempt toward an income tax.

The house has little business left to transact. On second reading in that chamber are the senate bill for the Camp Grant artillery range and the house bill to authorize the Lincoln park board to issue $1,000,000 in bonds for shore line restoration and protection without referendum.

3 AUTO DEATHS RAISE YEAR'S TOTAL TO 422

Three deaths caused by automobile accidents in Cook county increased the county's motor fatality toll to 422 since Jan. 1. The victims:

Bert Wold, 7 years old, 1502 North Tripp avenue. Died of injuries suffered on June 12 when he was struck by an automobile driven by Frank Mango, 4737 McLean avenue, at Grand and Tripp avenues.

John O'Neill, 70 years old, 17 North Curtis street. Injured on June 9 when he was run down at Washington boulevard and Des Plaines street by an automobile driven by Harry Hemberger, 2605 North Neva avenue.

Richard Whitman, 36 years old, 917 Lawrence avenue. Injured on June 16 in a collision between his automobile and a car driven by Albert Larman, 1630 South Sawyer avenue, at California and Ogden avenues. Larman is under bond on a charge of assault with an automobile.

BAKING CONCERN WINS FIGHT ON WAGON LICENSE

The suit of the Ward Baking company to enjoin the city from collecting a license fee on its bakery wagons was decided in favor of the company yesterday by the Illinois Supreme court. The court reversed the Circuit court of Cook county, which dismissed the company's bill of injunction. The opinion said the ordinance licensing the wagons cannot be upheld since the wagons impose no burdens on the city which will warrant the collection of an additional license fee. The company charged that the council passed the ordinance to obtain revenue to make up for $7,000,000 lost annually by the closing of saloons.

the house bearing 110 millions in authorizations," said Senator Vandenberg. "As reported from the commerce committee to the senate the total is upwards of 125 millions by one method of calculation.

Puts Cost at 335 Million.

"If the ultimate cost of the various projects is computed rather than the amount specifically authorized toward these projects in the bill the total would be from 335 to 340 millions. That is the commitment which we are giving the country to understand that it may expect.

"This commitment would mortgage all the money which we are likely to spend under the annual lump sum appropriation system for the next 12 years even if no other rivers and harbors bills are passed in the meantime.

"It ought to be clearly understood by the country that when the bill is passed there is no immediate opportunity for all the things thus promised to be done. Many of these commitments are without a final approval of the board of engineers."

Senator S. W. Brookhart [Rep., Ia.] told the senate that the rivers and harbors bill should not be called a "pork barrel" bill as the expenditure of money for inland waterway development will help to make possible cheaper transportation rates. He accused the railroads of trying to prevent expenditure of money on waterways.

BYRD DESCRIBES HIS EXPLOITS AS HOOVER LISTENS

Receives Formal Thanks of His Country.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, polar explorer and aviator, took Washington by storm tonight with his verbal and pictorial story of his latest exploit, the conquest of the south pole by air and the exploration of the frozen wastes of the antarctic continent.

An audience of 6,000 persons, including President Hoover, Vice President Curtis and hundreds of high ranking officials and officers were present in the Washington auditorium as the drama of the Byrd expedition's successful struggle against cold and ice and snow was unfolded on the films.

Time and again the audience applauded as incidents of the expedition's two year fight to win a wider knowledge of the antarctic continent were portrayed. The appearance of Rear Admiral Byrd in person as he told the story of his achievements and again as he appeared as the principal actor in the pictured story of the Byrd-Balchen flight over the south pole was the signal for applause.

The President presented to the rear admiral a special gold medal cast by the National Geographic society to commemorate the young explorer's flight over the south pole. Every hidden spot of the earth's surface remains a challenge to man's will and ingenuity until it has been conquered. Every conquest of such a difficult goal adds permanently to mankind's sense of power and security. Great explorers, therefore, do not merely add to the sum of human knowledge, but also they add immensely to the sum of human inspiration.

"Knowledge, too, has been enriched by Admiral Byrd's expedition. New coasts of the antarctic continent have been mapped and new regions have been explored. Geological data have been increased, which contribute to our knowledge of the history of the earth. New knowledge of magnetic currents and of weather changes has been gained. The store of the world's knowledge may not be priced in money, for money we make and spend, but knowledge remains always with the race."

Tumultuous applause greeted Rear Admiral Byrd as he rose to reply.

"It is our belief that the expedition to the antarctic continent contributed materially to the sciences. The total area explored, surveyed, and investigated covers approximately 160,000 square miles.

"New land and new mountain ranges were discovered and large portions of the Ross ice barrier were explored.

Claims Land for U. S.

"Marie Byrd land lies east of the 150th meridian, and so outside the Ross dependency claimed by Great Britain. It was first observed on a flight Dec. 18, 1928, and claimed in the name of the United States.

"Then, on Dec. 5, 1929, after five unsuccessful attempts, we succeeded in flying over the theretofore impenetrable area on the eastern coast of Ross sea. Here, beyond the ice islands and shelf ice that have turned back all explorers since Sir James Clark Ross, we discovered, first, a magnificent range of mountains, and, next, an extensive coast, continuous with and providing access to the plateau of which Marie Byrd land is a southern boundary. This area also lies outside the Ross dependency.

"Finally, the geological party, under Prof. Gould, my second in command, penetrated Marie Byrd land and claimed it for the United States.

"Our investigations had the result of dispelling certain erroneous conceptions. For example, Carmen land, first 'observed' by Amundsen, is for a large part removed from the map.

"The polar flight drove home these conclusions. It emphasized the usefulness of the aerial mapping camera as the explorer's newest tool. It established the value of radio in exploration."

CHICAGO IN HOLE IF RELIEF FAILS, SENATORS TOLD

All the difficulties that can befall a bankrupt municipality were presented in full detail as a future picture of Chicago yesterday to five state senators holding a hearing to determine if the major taxing agencies of Cook county are behind the citizens' committee relief bills now pending in the senate. The legislators were assured that the picture would become an actuality if the thirty measures do not pass.

The first of the hearings, held in the Mid-Day club, 33 South Clark street, was attended by high officials of most of the taxing agencies, and their parade to the witness stand presented this prospect to the senators if relief is not obtained—martial law, closed schools, the city unprotected by policemen and firemen, and an empty treasury. The hearing will be resumed this morning.

Cermak Is First Witness.

President Cermak of the Cook county board was the first witness.

"The corporate fund has been drained," he said. "This reassessment has already cost the county nearly $7,850,000, and I've no idea how much more it will cost. We will have to go to the governor and ask for another special session of the legislature if the boards of assessors and reviewers keep asking more money for it, for they have our backs to the wall and guns at our heads."

"The county institutions will close," said Mr. Cermak, "if these relief bills are not passed."

Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the city council finance committee, told how the city's coffers will be emptied by July 1 and predicted that 1,000 policemen will be laid off unless relief is obtained. Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], Mayor Thompson's floor leader, was next called. Questioned by Senator Victor P. Michel of Peoria on his relations with the mayor, Nelson replied, "I have the honor of his confidence and, at times, of reflecting his views."

Discuss Mayor's Attitude.

This led the senators into a by-lane seeking reasons why the mayor could not have answered their request and appear personally to tell his stand on the pending bills. Nelson said he believed the mayor favored the measures, and First Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Breen, who followed Nelson, said he was equally sure that this was the mayor's attitude.

"Well," said Senator Lowell B. Mason of Oak Park, chairman, after a whispered consultation with his colleagues, "the committee feels it would be helpful to them if the mayor would come. Would you carry that message to him and report back to us at 2 p. m.?"

Breen promised, and at the opening of the afternoon session he told the senators that the press of the mayor's engagements prevented his attendance, but quoted him as heartily behind the relief plans.

Other Officials Testify.

State's Attorney Swanson, Deputy Fire Commissioner Edward A. Maloney, Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the citizens' committee, Acting Commissioner of Police Alcock, President Philip R. Clarke of the Central Trust company, J. L. Jacobs, county efficiency expert; James A. Hemingway, school trustee; Attorney Frank Righeimer of the board of education, Dr. Benjamin Goldberg of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium, and Victor S. Petterson, deputy city controller, were also on the stand.

All predicted that the city and county governments would be in straits if the bills did not pass. Mr. Strawn told of events leading to the formation of the citizens' committee.

The testimony led Senator Earl B. Searcy of Springfield to remark that the next legislature would have a "stupendous" tax program before it. There was no disagreement on this statement. Today the park boards, Health Commissioner Kegel and President Caldwell of the board of education will testify. The committee will report to the senate on Tuesday.

State Income Tax Is Certain Next Year if Voters Approve It

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 20.—[Special.]—The appellation "income tax amendment" was conceded today to have been tacked permanently on the proposed amendment to the revenue article of the Illinois constitution which will be submitted to the voters of the state next November.

The general purposes of the amendment is described by its proponents as that of authorizing the legislature to classify property in order to reach intangibles which now escape personal property levies. But they, as well as opponents of the proposal admitted today, as the assembly went home for the week-end, that the first direct effect of popular approval of the amendment would be the enactment of tax on salaries, wages, and other income.

Even with the existent grave doubt of the legality of such a statute under the present basic law, it was pointed out, efforts to establish an income tax have failed by only a few votes in past assemblies. If the legal doubts are eliminated at the polls in November, one veteran pointed out today, the passage of such a law is virtually certain in the legislative session beginning next January.

Text of Amendment.

The final form of the amendment resolution as it passed both houses yesterday was the subject of many inquiries, telegraphic and otherwise today. In response, George C. Bineuer, chief clerk of the house, made public copies of the text as it went to the state printers.

In exact form, the resolution follows:

"Resolved, by the senate of the state of Illinois, the house concurring herein, that there shall be submitted to the electors of this state for adoption or rejection at the next election of members of the general assembly of the state of Illinois, in the manner provided by law, a proposition to amend article IX. of the constitution by amending sections 1, 3, 9, and 10 to read as follows:

"Section 1. The general assembly shall have power to enact laws to provide revenue. All real estate for imposition of taxes shall be in one class, except that mineral lands and land devoted to reforestation may be in different classes.

How Tax Is to Be Divided.

"Section 3. If a tax is imposed upon incomes the state shall not receive more than 15 per centum of the proceeds thereof, after deducting the cost of collection, except by the affirmative votes of two-thirds of the members elected to each house of the general assembly. And unless otherwise provided by a similar two-thirds vote, the remainder shall be distributed among the several counties in the ratio which the total collected from taxpayers of each county bears to the total collected from taxpayers of the whole state, and the amount allocated to each county may be further divided among the county and other municipal corporations within or partly within such county as the general assembly may from time to time by general law direct. Other taxes collected by the state may be distributed in whole or in part among the counties and other municipal corporations in such manner as the general assembly shall direct by general law.

Taxing Powers Delegated.

"Section 9. The general assembly may vest the corporate authorities of cities, towns, villages, sanitary districts, park districts, and other municipalities with power to make local improvements by special assessment, or by special taxation of contiguous property, or otherwise. For all other corporate purposes all municipal corporations may be vested with authority to assess and collect taxes.

"Section 10. Except as permitted in section 2, the general assembly shall not impose taxes upon municipal corporations or the inhabitants of property thereof for corporate purposes, but shall require that taxes be levied by municipal corporations for the payment of debts contracted under authority of law. Private property shall not be liable to be taken or sold for the payment of the corporate debts of a municipal corporation."

Legislators Hurry Home.

The special session, with this resolution out of the way and the Strawn relief bills passed in the house, went flat suddenly today when it was found that most of the assemblymen had taken night or morning trains for their homes. The chief business transacted was the advancement of the Strawn bills to second reading in the senate. It is expected they will be advanced to third reading next Tuesday and passed Wednesday.

The only doubt concerning this schedule was the question of attendance next week. Gov. Emmerson, however, expressed his confidence that there will be more than a quorum of the upper house on hand ready to vote the local government of Cook county the financial relief it is seeking. Except for pointing out informally that he had not attempted to exert any pressure for the adoption of the constitutional resolution, the governor said he had nothing to say about the session's record, except that he never has sponsored any attempt toward an income tax.

The house has little business left to transact. On second reading in that chamber are the senate bill for the Camp Grant artillery range and the house bill to authorize the Lincoln park board to issue $1,000,000 in bonds for shore line restoration and protection without referendum.

BAKING CONCERN WINS FIGHT ON WAGON LICENSE

The suit of the Ward Baking company to enjoin the city from collecting a license fee on its bakery wagons was decided in favor of the company yesterday by the Illinois Supreme court. The court reversed the Circuit court of Cook county, which dismissed the company's bill of injunction. The opinion said the ordinance licensing the wagons cannot be upheld since the wagons impose no burdens on the city which will warrant the collection of an additional license fee. The company charged that the council passed the ordinance to obtain revenue to make up for $7,000,000 lost annually by the closing of saloons.

the house bearing 110 millions in authorizations," said Senator Vandenberg. "As reported from the commerce committee to the senate the total is upwards of 125 millions by one method of calculation.

Puts Cost at 335 Million.

"If the ultimate cost of the various projects is computed rather than the amount specifically authorized toward these projects in the bill the total would be from 335 to 340 millions. That is the commitment which we are giving the country to understand that it may expect.

"This commitment would mortgage all the money which we are likely to spend under the annual lump sum appropriation system for the next 12 years even if no other rivers and harbors bills are passed in the meantime.

"It ought to be clearly understood by the country that when the bill is passed there is no immediate opportunity for all the things thus promised to be done. Many of these commitments are without a final approval of the board of engineers."

Senator S. W. Brookhart [Rep., Ia.] told the senate that the rivers and harbors bill should not be called a "pork barrel" bill as the expenditure of money for inland waterway development will help to make possible cheaper transportation rates. He accused the railroads of trying to prevent expenditure of money on waterways.

BUGLES TO CALL TROOPS TO FRAY IN CHICAGO TODAY

"Air Battles" to Thrill Throngs in War Show.

The bugles will sound at Soldiers' field today. Eight days of spectacular military maneuvers will exhibit every branch of the army in action to demonstrate to the civilian, according to Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Sixth Corps area and director of the tournament, "what we do in war as well as what we must do in peace time to be able to defend our country."

Action aplenty is promised for the performances each afternoon and evening at the stadium. Twenty acts will occupy the two hours of each session. A mile long smoke screen, 1,000 feet deep, will be a curtain raiser, with a reproduction of the battle of Chateau Thierry as a finale.

On Program of Maneuvers.

Infantry, artillery, cavalry, machine gun troops, naval and military bands, polo teams and the Black Horse troop will participate in the ground maneuvers. Each evening, in addition, a national group will present special attractions for the evening devoted to their nation. These will include native costume dances, gymnastics, bands and choruses.

Preliminary activities, however, indicate that the public will nominate the aviators as the principal attraction. Chicagoans have spent the last two days keeping a weather eye on the swarms of planes that have been roaring over both loop and outlying districts, "warming up" for the show.

More Planes to Join.

By today the ranks of aircraft will have been swelled to 100. One of the acts in which the planes will participate will be a mock air raid on a village set up at one end of the stadium. Great searchlights, some of them five feet in diameter and estimated to have one billion candlepower, capable of detecting a sky prowler six miles away, will be thrown on the aircraft, and anti-aircraft guns will "bombard" the "enemy."

Virtually every type of airplane will be seen in the tournament. Attack and pursuit planes, bombers, radio equipped planes which will broadcast and blimps will participate. There will also be a "firefly" stunt plane.

Brings Bombing Craft.

Capt. F. D. Hackett arrived in Chicago yesterday from Langley field, Virginia, with the second bombardment group of planes, including six twin motored Keystone bombers. Three more will reach here today. Maj. G. E. Brower of Selfridge field, Michigan, heads the group of 44 pursuit planes, with a couple of transports, which have been seen in formation flying the last two days.

The public will be invited to try out a "flight tutor" to be found in the aviation section. This is the metal chair set on a revolving axis, in which candidates for aviation instruction are tested.

There will be a glass room, set up and sealed, into which the poison gas used in the trenches of France will be poured. Soldiers wearing gas masks will enter the chamber and demonstrate how they were protected.

Governor to Be Guest.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, his staff, and Mrs. Emmerson will be guests of honor at the tournament tomorrow evening for the "Illinois day" performance. Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Parker will honor Gov. and Mrs. Emmerson with a dinner at noon tomorrow in the west ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Among the sixteen guests will be Gov. and Mrs. Walter J. Kohler of Wisconsin, Maj. Gen. Milton J. Foreman, and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Caspar H. Conrad Jr. Gen. Conrad is commandant at Fort Sheridan.

Fireworks Begin to Take Death Toll

JAMES ROBERTSON.

OFFICER KILLS 1 ROBBER, BEATS, SEIZES ANOTHER

Detroit, Mich., June 20.—(AP)—One of two robbers who held up a filling station early today was shot and killed by Patrolman John Laird, who then used the butt of his pistol as a bludgeon and clubbed the other bandit into unconsciousness.

The dead robber was identified as Oley I. McLean, 37. The captured robber is George J. Hamell.

Patrolman Laird was in the washroom of the filling station when the two men entered.

Bandit Kills Policeman.

New York, June 20.—(AP)—Patrolman Patrick Mitchell was shot and killed today in a gun duel with a bandit who held up a malt and hops store near Amsterdam avenue and 12th street. The bandit who was wounded identified himself as George Harris, 30, of 6301 Euclid avenue, Cleveland, O.

A dying robber, who was shot six days ago as he fled from a drug store he had robbed on Amsterdam avenue, identified himself just before he died today as John O'Shea, 24, of McHenry, Ill. He asked that his brother, Daniel O'Shea, of McHenry, be notified. He previously had given the name of Michael Delaney.

R. O. T. C. CAMP IS OPENED AT FORT SHERIDAN

A field of khaki colored tents was spread over the parade ground at Fort Sheridan last night, signalizing the opening of the sixth annual R. O. T. C. encampment at the fort. About 350 young men, students from nineteen colleges in eleven states, were snug on their cots, marking an innovation, for the men have previously been quartered in the stone walled dormitories of the fort.

Drill work, instruction in firearms, chemical warfare and anti-aircraft maneuvers will begin today and continue for six weeks. At the end of this period the men will be commissioned second lieutenants in the army reserve corps.

Tetanus Develops

The first fireworks fatality of the year occurred yesterday when 10 year old James R. Robinson Jr., 1938 South Harvey avenue, Berwyn, died at St. Anne's hospital of tetanus, which developed after a toy gun exploded in his hand on May 13.

RAN SHOESTRING TO 15 MILLIONS; ENDS IN CRASH

New York, June 20.—(AP)—Harold Russell Ryder, credited with having run a shoestring to $15,000,000 by trading on the New York Stock Exchange, was reported near collapse today as a county grand jury began an investigation of the brokerage firm of which he was a member.

The brokerage firm, Woody & Co., was suspended yesterday by the exchange. Eugene I. Garey, counsel for creditors, said an audit of the books indicated liabilities of $3,000,000 and assets of not over $500,000.

Friends told of a drudge to playboy transformation in Ryder. For years he lived quietly in an unpretentious Brooklyn apartment. Last fall he moved to Park avenue and became a well known figure along Broadway. In the clubs he was known as "Night Ryder of Broadway" because of his lavish expenditures.

Last April he gave $200,000 to Union college of Schenectady for an electrical laboratory.

3 Negroes Lose Appeal from Death Sentences

The Supreme court yesterday refused to grant a rehearing to three colored men under sentence of death for the murder of Martin French, a guard at the Franklin Trust and Savings bank. The date of execution was fixed at July 25. The men were convicted soon after the murder in January, 1929, but appeals have delayed their punishment. The trial was the first one in which the state introduced the science of ballistics to show which defendant fired the fatal bullet. Maj. Calvin Goddard testified in the case.

CAR FRANCHISE GETS APPROVAL OF 112 GROUPS

Indorsement Is Voted by Wage Earners' League.

Ald. Joseph B. McDonough, chairman of the nonpartisan committee favoring the transportation ordinance, announced yesterday that 112 labor, civic, and business organizations have indorsed the proposed franchise to a company consolidating the surface and elevated lines. The names of the latest organizations to indorse the ordinance are:

Edgewater Association for Progress, Rogers Park Kiwanis club, Property Owners' Traction association, Better Citizens' Protective League of the Northwest Side, Brainerd Improvement association, Crawford Civic association, Peterson Community Center club, Central Fullerton Avenue Business Men's association, and Chatham Fields Improvement association.

O. K. from Wage Earners' League.

In addition the Wage Earners' league, whose directors some time ago decided to support the ordinance, adopted a resolution of indorsement at a meeting yesterday in Electricians' hall.

Peter S. Lambros, publisher of the Greek Star, issued a statement yesterday commending the ordinance. He argued that the ordinance will greatly increase transportation facilities and therefore permanently benefit the city. As another reason for support he asserted that the extensions and improvements would provide work for the unemployed. He added that Chicago should get its house in order for the approaching World's Fair.

Magerstadt Backs Plan.

Ernest J. Magerstadt also gave the ordinance a boost. He wrote:

"In my capacity as clerk of the Criminal court, as sheriff of Cook county and as city collector, I have probably had a far more intimate contact with public affairs, including transportation, than has the average citizen.

"In my judgment, the primary feature to be considered in a transportation service is service at a reasonable cost. Other questions, while of more or less importance, are nevertheless subordinate to service and reasonable fares. The proposed ordinance provides for transportation facilities far superior to those of any municipality of the world; and the cost thereof is—by the terms of the ordinance—to be reasonable at all times, which is all that a reasonable minded public would expect."

Points to Labor Indorsements.

Ald. Oscar F. Nelson, before the Park Manor Improvement association last night, said: "The building trades council has indorsed this ordinance. The Wage Earners' league has indorsed it unanimously. Every affiliated local union that has had the opportunity to discuss it has gone on record in favor of it. Before the July 1 referendum I believe that practically every trade union in Chicago will not only indorse the ordinance, but will go out and actively work for it.

"I look for activity after the ordinance is passed which will aid in relieving the present unemployment."

JOBLESS BAKER KILLS HIMSELF.

With only $30 left and with no prospects of employment, Henry Schwarz, 58 year old baker, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a pistol yesterday in his room at 2177 Jackson boulevard.

Carter Harrison Declares Transit Plan Is Inadequate

BY CARTER H. HARRISON.
[Former mayor of Chicago.]

With trepidation I venture to express an opinion on the traction ordinance. On the word of Walter Fisher we have it that opposition will be chargeable principally to self-seeking. According to his dictum, no valid criticism may be leveled against the ordinance; it is his handiwork and it is good—he knows whereof he speaks; he is as cocksure of its perfection as he was 23 years ago of the 1907 ordinances, also his handiwork, also well nigh perfection, if we are to believe what he wrote and said at that time.

Those ordinances functioned for less than a decade; then they blew up. To mention a single but vital defect, they called for the construction of seven miles of double track or fourteen miles of single track extension in each year and every year of their lives.

Asks About the Guaranty.

Since 1914, how many miles of extension have been built to provide transportation in districts where it was sorely needed? Residents of outlying sections are asked today to vote for the pending ordinance on the pledge of improved transportation. What guaranty is there, other than the word of Mr. Fisher, that the fate of the 1907 ordinances will not befall the present plan?

Were one to take the trouble to dig up at the public library the old files of THE TRIBUNE and the News he would find similar arguments, couched in very similar terms, for the approval at the referendum of the then pending ordinances that are found in the editorial columns of those papers today. The same Walter Fisher, held up now as the incarnation of traction wisdom, was the prophet of the earlier days.

The old editorials, even to the praise of Mr. Fisher and his superintelligence, with few changes, could be run again today. One might almost fancy the editors had fallen asleep and were dreaming the old dreams over again. The same wise men, or others as like them as peas in a pod, who urged the approval of the 1907 settlement urge public support of the present Insull-Fisher ordinance.

Predicts Repetition of 1907.

It is the same old ballyhoo, due to the same causes, voiced by the same interests, that, if heeded, will leave the citizens just where the ballyhoo of 1907 left the citizens of that day—holding the bag.

Gov. Dunne and others have shown how this ordinance is to all intents and purposes a grant in perpetuity, that there is grave danger of an increase in fares, that not only will there be a reduction in compensation received by the city, but that the sixty odd million dollars now in the traction fund in its entirety, plus all that may accrue to the fund in years to come, must be spent on the construction of an ineffective subway which the company has graciously consented to use free of all rental.

They have shown that no means of enforcing compliance with the terms of the ordinance are provided other than an appeal to the courts with all of the inevitable interminable delays, the company absolutely refusing to accept, the city officials supinely declining to insist upon the usual provision for a forfeiture of grant should the company fail to live up to its engagements.

These objections afford ample ground for public disapproval.

Another Objection Told.

There is another, to my mind an insuperable, objection. What I look for in a traction ordinance is comparative certainty of good service. Chicago should demand rapid transit that will meet its needs, a service worthy of a city of close to three and a third million souls. This is the second city in the United States, probably the third city in the world. It covers approximately 200 square miles of territory.

A satisfactory ordinance should provide for an ultimate system that would make it possible for a worker living in any section to earn his livelihood in any other. It should provide at some time, distant in the future perhaps, but ultimately certain at least, for real rapid transit, a boon which may be had th but one way, a comprehensive subway system, grid-ironing the entire city, bringing all sections in intimate touch with one another.

Not until a genuine effort has been made to acquire such a system is it a sufficient answer to say ex cathedra the price would be prohibitive, it cannot be done. To satisfy me an answer must come from some other than Mr. Insull with his elevated railroads to sell.

Plan of 1914 Recalled.

In 1914 I advocated a comprehensive subway system. THE TRIBUNE and the News for reasons of their own, fought it. It failed at the referendum.

That system could have been built for one-half, possibly a third, of what it would cost today. It would be far cheaper to build today than 20 years hence. Whatever the cost, the amount would be returned in a generation 10 times over in time saved to the workers, in the advance of real estate values that would enrich outlying property owners.

The present ordinance is an Insull ordinance; and an Insull ordinance by the very nature of things is an elevated railway ordinance; and an elevated railway by the necessities of its construction cannot give real rapid transit to a city of the size of Chicago.

The dinky subway provided for becomes dinkier than ever. About all it will do will be to take the crowds off the streets in the downtown district, thus relieving congestion and making it possible for greater numbers to pay tribute to the State street stores and to Messrs. Balaban and Katz.

FIGHTS RECALL PETITION AGAINST DETROIT MAYOR

Detroit, Mich., June 20.—[Special.]—A petition signed by many taxpayers asking an injunction restraining the city clerk's office from continuing its check of the petition for the recall of Mayor Bowles is to be filed in Circuit court tomorrow by Louis J. Colombo, attorney for Mayor Bowles.

The petition, prepared by Colombo and Attorney Frank H. Dohany, member of the board of street railway commissioners, will be filed in the name of several taxpayers.

Attorney Colombo, of Henry Ford counsel, said he had agreed to represent the mayor in his anti-recall battle at the express invitation of Harry Bennett, chief of the Ford service division.

A week ago Ford called on Mayor Bowles and told the mayor that he was doing a good job and that the only apparent reason for a recall is that somebody's toes had been stepped on.

GIRL, 9, DIES OF BURNS.

Lillian McGee, 9 years old, colored, died yesterday in Michael Reese hospital of burns accidentally incurred two months ago in her home at 2930 Cottage Grove avenue.

SUBURBAN BANK ROBBED 2D TIME IN THREE MONTHS

For the second time in less than three months, the First State bank of Fox River Grove, in McHenry county, 35 miles northwest of Chicago, was held up yesterday and robbed of all the cash on hand, amounting to $2,000.

Two well dressed young men, whom the assistant cashier, Richard Novak, mistook for furnace salesmen, entered the bank at 2 p. m. As Novak stepped out of his cage to greet them, one robber drew his gun, waving the cashier and two customers, J. R. Pallman and Paul Phaens, into the vault.

The other bandit scooped the cash from Novak's cage into a bag, beckoned his accomplice, and both escaped in a car. They headed towards Chicago on the Northwest highway. Novak said the two were not the same pair who robbed the bank of $1,500 on April 9.

NEW JAIL FOR DU PAGE COUNTY ASKED BY JURY

The Du Page county grand jury yesterday recommended the erection of a new county jail and courthouse or an addition to the present building adequate to care for the business of a county with a population of more than 80,000. The county board was ordered to take immediate action to procure suitable accommodations for prisoners.

The jail and courthouse is at Wheaton. The jail, the jurors said, is overcrowded and insanitary. Arrangements should be made for the proper separation of women and men prisoners and delinquents should be separated from hardened criminals, they said.

The present jail and courthouse was erected in 1896. The courthouse houses all the county and state offices in the county, and under the new census figures the county will be entitled to a Probate court and county auditor. The present building is now too crowded, it is charged.

ROTARY LOOKS BACK ON EVE OF ANNIVERSARY

20,000 Members to Meet in Chicago Monday.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

What is Rotary?

As 20,000 Rotarians will begin to gather in Chicago today for the opening of the silver anniversary of the organization on Monday, this is a pertinent question.

PAUL H. HARRIS. [Founder of Rotary.] [U. and U. Photo.]

A Rotary club is a group of representative business and professional men in each community, but its distinction is that it is made up of only one man from each business or profession in the community. For instance, there can be only one lawyer, one steel man, one woolen man in each group.

Then, each individual in the group is endeavoring to translate the Rotary philosophy of service into practice in business and in everyday life, individually and through the club.

Purposes of Rotary.

Rotary is not a religious organization and is not concerned with religion or politics of its members. Its purposes are set forth in resolution No. 34 adopted at the St. Louis convention of 1923 as follows:

"Fundamentally, Rotory is a philosophy of life that undertakes to reconcile the ever present conflict between the desire to profit for one's self and the duty and consequent impulse to serve others. This is the philosophy of 'Service Above Self.' Because he who serves must act, Rotary is not merely a state of mind, nor Rotary philosophy merely subjective, but must translate itself into objective activity; and the individual Rotarian and the Rotary club must put the theory of service into practice."

Objects of Rotary.

The objects of Rotary are to encourage and foster:

The ideal of service, and high ethical standards in business and professions.

The application of the ideal of service by every Rotarian to his personal business and community life.

The development of acquaintance as an opportunity for service.

The recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations.

The advancement of understanding, good will, and international peace through a world fellowship of business and professional men.

Chicago Is Birthplace.

Chicago was the birthplace of Rotary. In the current issue of the club magazine M. Eugene Newsom, president of Rotary International, writes:

"The thousands of pilgrims who are journeying to Chicago this month to attend the silver anniversary of Rotary International will not think of this vast metropolitan city in terms of boulevards, skyscrapers, marts of trade, but rather as the home of Paul Harris, a lawyer, who, a quarter of a century ago with three others, evolved the idea of a classification service club that has now extended its influence far beyond the boundaries of its native land. You are coming to Chicago to pay honor to that man, to hear his voice as he retells of those early days when Rotary was but a small group of congenial Chicago business men and rotated its meetings from one office to another."

The convention activities are arranged in three major divisions and show the scope of Rotary. The first will be business conferences, such as exchange, tariffs, and standards of business practice. The second will be community service clinic, such as work with crippled children, student loan funds, prison visitation, boy and girl life surveys. The third will relate to the field of international relations.

SEIPEL SUPPORTS MOVE TO BRING BACK HAPSBURGS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, June 20.—Msgr. Ignatz Seipel, who was chancellor of Austria for five years and is a power in the Catholic church, today was revealed as an ardent supporter for the movement to bring back the Hapsburgs.

Through the medium of a letter carried by Fritz Lang, Vienna sportsman, who is walking to Belgium with greetings to Archduke Otto from the Austro-Hungarian monarchists, Msgr. Seipel's sentiments have been made public just at the time that Hungary is seething with agitation to make Otto king.

Msgr. Seipel asked Lang to convey his "heartfelt greeting to the royal family," adding that he could not forget the "unforgettable merits of the dynasty and how it might be used to cope with the vital demands of the present day."

Dorothy Parker Stories Given Praise as Book

"Laments for the Living" Is True to Life.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Laments for the Living," by Dorothy Parker. (Viking.)

The first collection of the prose work of Dorothy Parker bears the characteristic title "Laments for the Living." In her poetry, Dorothy Parker has always seen life as more conducive to tears than to jubilation, although she is one of the funniest, most amusing of all those who either rhyme or don't rhyme in Americanese. It is that quality of inducing in the reader pathos by means of satire that has made of Dorothy Parker the idol of her period.

DOROTHY PARKER.

Completely characteristic of her—our—day her poems are apparently hard boiled criticisms of life and love and living and underneath as sentiment—inducing as the Sweet Alices of another day. "Laugh, Clown, Laugh" is the sentimental war cry of our generation. The trouble with a good deal of poetry and prose is that when the clown hasn't naturally something to laugh in spite of, the author supplies him with a false heart break.

Dorothy Parker, in "Laments for the Living," has written thirteen stories—some very short, some a little longer which are exactly what one who admires her poetry would hope for in her prose. And they are authentic satires, coated with laughter, with a tear slipping off the old heart as they are read. There is nothing false about any of their heart breaks. They are, on their surface, very funny stories, mostly about young things with a little edge on, or about love that is gone but not forgotten.

Underneath they are as sad as life itself is sad, and you don't need to be anything but an honest person to admit that incontrovertible fact. Shot through here and there with moments of happiness, a dawn at sea, a child's unexpected glee, the feel of cool linen sheets [as Rupert Brooke said], a friend's sudden understanding, that evanescent time of love when you love without asking why one can never look into two eyes at once, and why no two human beings can ever love with equality—life is, except for its rare moments, fundamentally sad. "Sometimes," said Sadie Thompson, in "Rain," speaking profoundly, "I feel sorry for everybody in the world."

Dorothy Parker feels exactly the same way, but, being a very modern, she laughs about it.

Some of the stories, "A Telephone Call" for instance, are masterpieces in parvo. "A Telephone Call" has all of the heartbreak of the inequality of love in it. "Mr. Durant" is a sharp piece of satire. "The Wonderful Old Gentleman" is a panorama of selfishness. "Big Blonde" is a bitter biography, a whole wasted life history in running patter. Some of the others are mere whiff, the chatter that a highball or a "line" engenders.

"Laments for the Living" are brilliant prose. They seem even more important, more impressive in a book than they did in the various magazines in which they appeared, and that is certainly the acid test for short stories.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS

BY THE LITERARY EDITOR.

FICTION.

"The Datchley Inheritance," by Stephen McKenna [Dodd Mead], is that excellent novelist in a frivolous mood. Old John Datchley left his fortune to "that one of a numerous stock of grandsons who shall be the first to marry." Ensuings ensued.

"Park Avenue," by Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. [Macaulay], is a scandal yarn by some one on the inside. The characters are said by them that know to be as thinly veiled as a tabloid front page picture.

"Parlor, Bedlam, and Bath," by S. J. Perelman and Q. J. Reynolds [Liveright], is one of those absurd, mad yarns that give you a stitch in the side from laughter.

MYSTERY.

"The Case of Robert Robertson," by Sven Elvestad [Knopf], is a mystery in which the same man is murdered twice. It is by the Edgar Allan Poe and E. Phillips Oppenheim of Scandinavia.

"The Owner Lies Dead," by Tyline Perry [Covici-Friede], is the story of a murder in a mine.

"The Square Mark," by Grace M. White and H. L. Deakin [Dutton], is one of those quiet English countryside murders where the past leaps up and stabs the present.

NEW $1 FICTION.

Among the twenty new novels published yesterday by Doubleday Doran at $1 are:

"The Autocracy of Mr. Parham," by H. G. Wells, a vision of the future and of Mr. Parham and the rich, but bossy Sir Bussy.

"Margaret Yorke," by Kathleen Norris, the story of a marriage in haste by a lady who, however, picked up the pieces of the wreckage thus caused.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

"Saint Augustine," by Giovanni Papini [Harcourt Brace], is, like his "Life of Christ," a glowing and passionate biography.

"The Life and Mind of Emily Dickinson," by Genevieve Taggard [Knopf], is the true story of the mysterious love of Emily Dickinson's life, and discloses for the first time his name. This will probably become the standard biography of that strange, eager soul.

"Hearn and His Biographers," by Oscar Lewis [Westgate Press], is a limited edition [of 350 copies] of previously unpublished source material on Lafcadio Hearn.

ABOUT PLACES.

"Chicago in Seven Days," by John Drury [McBride], is a new and revised edition of a grand guide book to our town.

"Impressions of America," by André Lafond [Foundation Strassburger], was the winner of the Prix Strassburger.

"Thin Air," by Constance Bridges [Brewer & Warren], is a travel story of Thibet, half journeys, half adventurous romance.

ABOUT THE WAR.

"Generals Die in Bed," by Charles Yale Harrison [Morrow], is the first realistic account of the war by a ranker in the Canadian army. It was suppressed in Canada.

"Captured," by Ferdinand Huszti Horvath [Dodd Mead], is a record of the retreat from Lemberg, capture and prison life in Russia, told by a young Hungarian officer.

NONFICTION.

"War Politics and Reconstruction," by Henry Clay Warmoth [Macmillan], is the autobiography of a governor of Louisiana [1868-1873] and a record of the whole period of reconstruction after the civil war, containing many documents hitherto almost impossible of access.

"The Alien in Our Midst," edited by Madison Grant and Charles Stewart Davison [Galton], is a collection of the views of eminent Americans on the subject of immigration and its results.

"Marriage," by Ralph de Pomeral [Smith], is a history of the practice of marriage and divorce and the probable tendency of their future development.

"Houdon in America" [Institut Française de Washington], is a collection of documents in the Jefferson papers in the Library of Congress.

POETRY.

"New Found Land," by Archibald Mac Leish [Houghton Mifflin], is a group of fourteen poems from the pen of one of the outstanding younger American poets.

"A Breadline for Souls," by Gloria Goddard [Copeland], who won the first prize of the Poetry Society of America four years ago.

"Earth's Generations Pass," by William Dudley Foulke [Oxford University Press], is collected from previous volumes by the Indiana poet.

"Alter Walker," by Leonard Cline [Viking], who is better known as a fantastic and tragic novelist.

How World Looks to Two Wandering Yale Students

"Shirt Tail and Pig Tail," by Henry A. Schroeder [Minton Balch], is the record of a journey by two undergraduates of Yale to the most unheard of place they could find. They decided on Kashgar in Chinese Turkestan. Every one, family and friends, were gloomy about their jaunt—they had plenty of the spirit of adventure, but their pockets were lined with hopes rather than gold. They had a grand time, however, and that time they have set down in good undergraduate Americanese. They never did get to Kashgar, but they got into and through every other romantically remote spot on the map.

Fulop-Miller Finds Chicago an Inspiration

Vienna Author Pays Visit to City.

Airplanes swept by, deafening the sky, flashingly impermanent even against the shifting clouds. And below, like great rooted poplars, the buildings of the loop rose, permanence in the impermanence of the darting planes. Herr Rene Fulop-Miller, one of Vienna's outstanding publicists and authors, who wrote "The Power and Secrets of the Jesuits," "Rasputin, Holy Devil," "The Mind and Face of Bolshevism," and "The Russian Theater," all of which American readers know, and other books which they do not know, stood bareheaded to the sky on the Tribune Tower and looked at the picture below him and said, "Wonderbar," "Magnifique!"

RENE FULOP-MILLER.

He was entranced with the view, entranced in both German and French. His English is at the moment nonexistent, although next year, when he returns to America to live for a year he expects to have perfected it, for he is spending the interim in Oxford studying what he thinks is our language.

This trip, which began in New York a month ago, has convinced him that there is a great and important book to be written on America, but one which cannot be undertaken lightly. The mass psychology of this new and vital people is to be his theme. To gather his material he will live in various parts of the country. His journey this year is concerned with the American theater, about which he is going to write a companion volume to his "Russian Theater," which is of the de luxest de luxe type. The American movie and its effect upon the American people, as well as their demands of it, allures him greatly. "I will study the psychology of the happy ending," he said.

There is a charming, peculiarly childlike quality to Herr Fulop-Miller's interest in everything American, as there is to his smile. He is honestly eager to know America—as he was honestly eager to know soviet Russia, and Ghandi, and Rasputin, and everything else that he has written about—an eagerness which is evident in his books and which gives them the zest of life.

We talked, of course, about writers. What Americans are popular in Germany, I asked him. "Willa Cather," he said. "She is translated entirely. And Sinclair Lewis and Theodore Dreiser." "And your own favorite American author?" I asked. "Robinson Jeffers, the poet," he replied, "and Walt Whitman." He carried a volume of "Leaves of Grass" all through the war in his knapsack.

Herr Fulop-Miller and Frau Fulop-Miller, who was, before her marriage, a well known Hungarian soprano, Heddy Bendiner of the Budapest opera, are on their way to the Navajo country to see the Indian dances and to Hollywood to see what they can see.

Norah C. James, English Writer, Is Visitor in New York

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—This week's visitor from England is Norah C. James, author of "Sleeveless Errand" and "To the Valiant." She proves to be the new type of Englishwoman we've glimpsed on the stage in imported plays—a sturdy, athletic young person with close cropped hair and blue eyes burning bright in a face deeply tanned. None of the legendary British reserve about her.

NORAH C. JAMES.

She told us that she began her varied career as a sculptor—has been a trade union organizer for civil servants, a journalist, a motor driver, a political secretary to a parliamentary candidate, and advertising manager to a British publisher.

The Junior Literary guild gave a birthday party on Tuesday, a very elaborate luncheon at the Chatham—on the tremendous big birthday cake a single candle, Junior being a lusty infant now one year old. Harold Guinzburg explained that the celebration was also by way of being a farewell to Katharine Ulrich, who turns over her duties as managing editor of the Junior guild to Helen Ferris and, as the newlywed Mrs. James Wise, goes to Paris to live.

Carl Van Doren pointed out in a graceful farewell speech—we'd pay grand opera prices any time to hear this man—that Miss Ulrich, it was, who spake the last word on the recent humanism debate, remarking: "It's not the heat, it's the humanism."

Clare and Burton Davis supply the latest evidence that the wages of crime is a house in the country. Under the pen name of Lawrence Saunders they committed the detective story, "Smoke Screen"—which ran serially in Liberty and is among the summer offerings of the Sears Publishing company. A motor trip into the Connecticut hills near Westport on Sunday revealed Mr. and Mrs. Davis imprisoned in a nine acre estate at hard labor on a rock garden and an about-to-be lily pond. As newspaper reporters in Houston, Tex., they both learned about the murders and politics and district attorneys and managing editors that figure in their tale.

TELLING OF SUICIDE DONE IN 21 WAYS, HEADED 'DELIGHTFUL'

"Twenty-one Delightful Ways of Committing Suicide," by Jean Bruller [Covici-Friede], with a preface by Corey Ford, is a volume of words and pictures both so highly amusing that, according to the jacket flap, "the prospective candidate will be tempted to try them all."

But he is warned that any single way will suffice. One of the twenty-one means, by "hydraulic excess," which "owes its inspiration to one of the more lingering tortures of the Inquisition, is not without a certain intrinsic charm. . . . It is very attractive during a heat wave, when such a death could not fail to be refreshing. In addition, it is pleasing in any weather for true connoisseurs of wine, who may substitute for water some noted vintage of the proper year.

"Incidentally, it is this form of suicide," says the author, "which slowly but surely is becoming the outstanding popular pastime in America under the present prohibition régime." (Also compare chapter 8, "Suicide by Means of Poison.") The pictures are priceless.

JOHNSON GLAD HE 'INDUCED TREATY SIGNER TO SPEAK'

Critic of Pact Retorts to Reed Radio Address.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—Senator Hiram W. Johnson [Rep., Cal.], who has been engaging in a radio debate with Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] on the merits of the navy limitation treaty, retorted today in a public statement to the Pennsylvania senator's speech on the air last night.

"I am delighted," said Johnson, "that a radio address of mine induced Senator Reed, one of its signers, with the aid of the secretary of state, the undersecretaries of state, the experts and technicians of the state department and various and sundry other members of the administration, and doubtless the documents which are denied our people and the senate, finally to speak about the treaty.

"What he said is of little consequence. He spoke, and that he spoke is sufficient, for up to this time is a singular and remarkable fact that Senator Reed, who, according to the press, was the chief negotiator with the Japanese, has had absolutely nothing to say, either to the senate, to the foreign relations committee, of which he is a member, or to the people since May 1, when the treaty was presented to the senate.

"Progress at Last."

"We're now progressing, and at the rate of progress we are making we may hope that time will be given our people to learn something about this astonishing document, which, like a dose of bitter medicine, it is insisted, our people must swallow at once, with their eyes shut."

Shortly before he issued the statement Senator Johnson was exchanging amenities with Senator Reed on the floor of the senate. The California senator remarked that his radio address which opened the debate had been inserted in the Congressional Record by some senator. Inasmuch as it would be only fair for the other side to be presented Senator Johnson asked and obtained permission that Senator Reed's speech be inserted in the Record. Thereupon Senator Reed thanked Senator Johnson for the display of courtesy and fairness.

Battleship Defects Cited.

Defects in the American battleship fleet were outlined before the house naval affairs committee today by Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, and the first naval officer called to testify regarding the advisability of approving the Darrow bill authorizing the modernization of the Idaho, New Mexico and Mississippi. Admiral Hughes stated that these three ships were outranged and outclassed by all the ships of the British battleship division.

"Then it would not be wise to send these ships out to fight against the battleships of the British fleet, would it?" queried Chairman Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] of the committee.

"It would be suicidal," bluntly replied the 63 year old veteran, "to send these ships to fight the speedier ships of the British fleet unless the American ships were greatly improved by the addition of new engines and thicker armor."

Faster, Range Longer.

Admiral Hughes testified that all the British battleships were two knots faster than the Idaho class. All the British capital ships mount guns with greater range than those of the turret guns on the three Idaho class vessels, he stated. The admiral said that as the three ships were outranged by the British vessels, and had slower speed, it would be possible for the British vessels to use their superior speed to keep out of range of the guns on the Idaho class, but still remain close enough for the British guns to be effective.

He advocated placing bulges or blisters on the sides of the American vessels to minimize the danger from torpedoes, elevation of turret guns to increase their ranges and thickening the deck armor to increase their resistance to shells fired at high angle.

SUSPECTS IN SEARCH FOR MANIAC SLAYER DON'T FIT EVIDENCE

New York, June 20.—(AP)—Search for a murderous maniac, who has killed two persons in Queens and threatens by letters to slay 13 more, reached an apparent impasse tonight. Of two suspects arrested today, one was definitely cleared and police expressed doubt that the other had any part in the killings.

Joseph Oswald Clark, an escaped inmate of the Creedmore state hospital for the insane in Queens, who was arrested in Philadelphia, was definitely absolved of connection by Acting Assistant Chief Inspector Sullivan a short time after he was brought there. Sullivan said Clark in no way resembled the description of the killer. The women, companions of the two slain men, however, will be given an opportunity to scrutinize Clark.

Detectives doubted that a man who was arrested in Newark, N. J., today and who said he was John D. Galvag of Boston, had any connection with the killing. The only evidence against him was an approximate similarity to descriptions of Joseph Ustica, an insane slayer who escaped from the King's Park hospital.

BOMBAY POLICE CHARGE MOB OF BOYS; 16 INJURED

Smash Line of Youths Picketing Stores.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, June 20.—Sixteen schoolboys were injured today, two of them seriously, as British police charged a demonstration held in the Bombay fort area by a crowd of youths.

The boys were picketing foreign cloth shops in aid of the Nationalist cause and the disorder caused forced the police to break their ranks by means of a baton charge. Two other processions of youths, one of them before a large store, were similarly broken up by the use of police sticks.

It was revealed today that the censorship had withheld the news of the throwing of four home made bombs in a saloon at Barisal in Bengal last Tuesday. The place was wrecked, a bartender injured, and seven arrests made.

Hindus, Moslems Riot.

Rioting between Moslems and Hindus broke out last night at Dacca, and before the police could restore order one Moslem was stabbed to death.

The British campaign against Nationalist picketing of liquor shops and evasion of taxes today gained in intensity. Nationwide arrests were reported, with the severity of the sentences being increased up to 18 months. At Lahore the police jailed 96, at Bangalore 52, at Delhi 104, in Bengal 70, and smaller numbers elsewhere.

Forbid Public Meetings.

At Guntur, in the Madras district, public meetings are forbidden in a radius of five miles. The police charged one held there today and arrested 50 persons. There is evidence that throughout the peninsula everything is being done to prevent public meetings and processions.

The soviet staff expects to occupy the palace in July.

Village Chiefs Pledge Help to Speed Up Road Building

Coöperation of officials of nearly all the country towns in Cook county to speed the work on the state's biennium road building program for the Chicago metropolitan area was pledged yesterday at a meeting of state, county, and village officials. Gov. Emmerson's program for this area, which will cost $19,000,000, is already under way, but has been delayed by the failure of village boards to pass set back ordinances.

The meeting was called by County Commissioner Busse, chairman of the county board's road and bridge committee. More than 50 village presidents and their attorneys attended.

State Asks Ordinances.

The ordinances requested by the state highway department are needed to widen arterial highways on the existing 66 foot rights of way, to assure future acquisitions of 100 foot rights of way. Chief Engineer Sheets of the state highway division explained that unless the set back ordinances were passed the widening program could not be carried out.

The village officials unanimously promised ordinances preventing construction of buildings within fifty feet of the center of roadways.

Fail to Meet Request.

Among the municipalities which, according to the records, have not responded to the state's request are Chicago Heights, Cicero, Berwyn, Broadview, Westchester, La Grange Park, Brookfield, Lyons, Riverside, Barrington, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Niles, Wheeling, Justice, Riverdale, Hillside, Berkley, Bellwood, Niles Center, and Evanston.

In addition to the village officials, others at the meeting were Robert Kingery, secretary of the Chicago regional planning commission; George Kellogg, chairman of the roads committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce; Chief Engineer Sheets, President Cermak of the county board, and County Commissioners Jaranowski, Kriz, Nettlehorst, and Busse.

Verdict Expected Today in Trial of Jury Swindle

DISCUSS MOVE TO GIVE TAXIS UTILITY STATUS

Cab Owners Open National Convention in Chicago.

More than 100 delegates yesterday attended the opening sessions of the annual convention of the National Taxicab Owners' association in the Sherman hotel. The chief topic of discussion was the movement to obtain in all states the enactment of legislation which would make taxicabs a public utility.

Officials of the organization declined to discuss the taxicab situation in Chicago. The proposal to shorten taxicabs to relieve traffic congestion, the suggested lowering of rates to relieve the pocketbooks of cab users and the reported efforts to merge the Checker and Yellow Cab companies here are not to be considered, the officials stated.

A Plea for Protection.

W. W. Cloud of Baltimore, president of the organization, declared the taxicab is an important part of mass transportation and as such is entitled to the protection and regulations of other forms of transportation. A resolution to this effect will be submitted to the delegates today.

H. A. Inness Brown, editor of the Taxi Weekly, a national trade publication, said the chief problems of the industry, which does a business of $400,000,000 annually, were strong competition, high rates, "over cabbing" of cities, and fly-by-night operators.

Announce Safety Drive.

In an effort to solve the problem of safety on the public streets and highways, the Chicago safety council, through its president, Charles L. Rice, yesterday announced that a city-wide war on industrial and traffic accidents will begin on July 1. Announcements of two contests to further this campaign were sent yesterday to 1,300 industrial plants and business houses in the Chicago district.

ACTION TO OPEN SENECA STREET IS BEGUN BY CITY

The board of local improvements at a public hearing yesterday ordered its legal department to institute court proceedings to open Seneca street between Chicago avenue and Pearson street. The plans call for a fifty foot roadway through property owned by the city's water fund.

An objection to the opening was made by Col. Henry A. Allen, in charge of the city pumping stations, who declared that the land is the most valuable owned by the city. He said that the department of public works plans to use the property for a filtration plant.

Pair Shoot It Out with Kidnapers and Kill One

St. Louis, Mo., June 20.—(AP)—Herman Kohn, 44, and William Rutstein, 38, partners in a chain of bookmaking cigar stores, shot it out last night with three men believed by them to be kidnapers, fatally wounding Oliver Honig, 28, who died today in City hospital. Honig's two accomplices escaped.

SENATE TO PASS WAR VETERANS BILL ON MONDAY

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—Passage of the world war veterans bill by the senate on Monday was assured today by a unanimous consent agreement providing for final action on Monday. Under the terms of the agreement the bill will be taken up at 12 o'clock on Monday and debated without restrictions until 3 o'clock. After 3 o'clock no senator may speak more than ten minutes. The bill was made the unfinished business of the senate today following passage of the rivers and harbors bill.

The agreement made it seem probable that congress will be able to adjourn by the end of next week, which will permit the senate to take up the naval treaty in a special session to commence probably the following Monday.

It is now understood that President Hoover will act promptly on the veterans' bill without attempting to pocket veto it. The President is reported to have told a caller that if he is advised by the treasury that the bill will not cause a deficit he will sign it.

When the veterans' bill is out of the way about the only important measure remaining for action will be the second deficiency bill.

Girl Splashes Oil on Dress; Fatally Burned

While her mother was upstairs and her older sister at a grocery, 3 year old Marion Jurgetait, 10727 South Burley avenue, splashed her dress with kerosene yesterday morning near the kitchen stove, which set the dress afire. The mother stifled the flames and took Marion to the South Chicago hospital. She died there last evening.

Playing together in sandbox, on slides, at games, children grow up with a spirit of "give and take" and of good fellowship.

Book Habits

Pleasure in books begun very early lasts a lifetime

When very young, children first associate reading books with play. Books mean rhymes and songs, images and ideas, in fact, everything that is most delightful.

Keen book habits once established with a feeling of enjoyment will outlast the days of school routine.

"Play is the serious business of childhood. The child brings to it all the interest, enthusiasm and concentration that an adult brings to his work.

Books and toys are the child's tools. They should be carefully chosen to stimulate his initiative and creative ability. They should enrich his mental store.

Play is much more than the careless use of leisure. It affords the child the opportunity to coordinate all parts of his growing body, to control and develop his muscles. It teaches him clean physical habits, good sportsmanship, loyalty to his mates, self discipline and social values.

Modern educators directly correlate play and recreation with character development and include them as an integral part of all educational programs." —The Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education

OUR OLDEST NAVAL POLICY.

To put guns on our men of war which are larger than those installed by any foreign power has been our oldest naval policy. When our congress [in 1794] authorized the first naval building program, consisting of six frigates, the design and construction was turned over to the best shipbuilder in the country, Joshua Humphreys. His frigates were so good that European countries soon began to copy them. Joshua Humphreys immediately outlined his policy: "The vessels should combine such qualities of strength, durability, swiftness of sailing, and force as to render them superior to any frigate belonging to an European power." In fact, his forty-four gun frigate had thicker sides than the British seventy-four gun ship of the line; the mainmast was a foot longer than the British sixty-four gun ship, while the guns of the main battery were twenty-four pounders instead of the eighteen pounders used by Europeans.

The wisdom of this policy was soon apparent. When [Aug. 19, 1812] the American frigate Constitution [main battery thirty long twenty-four pounders] engaged the British ship Guerriere [main battery thirty long eighteen pounders] we quickly won our first important naval victory in the war of 1812. Two months later another American frigate, the United States, defeated the British frigate Macedonia. While in December of the same year the Constitution defeated the British frigate Java off the coast of Brazil.

In all these battles the American frigates were armed with twenty-four pounders, while the British mounted eighteen pounders. It was the English opinion at that time that twenty-four pounders were too heavy for fifteen hundred ton frigates.

The world war gives a particularly fine illustration of a battle between cruisers in which eight inch guns were used on one side and six inch on the other. The battle of Coronel was fought off the coast of Chile on Nov. 1, 1914. Admiral Cradock had two British cruisers [Good Hope and Monmouth] armed with six inch guns. The former had sixteen and the latter fourteen of them, although the Good Hope did have two nine inch guns. Admiral von Spee had two German cruisers, the Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau. Each was armed with eight eight inch guns. Each admiral had two smaller cruisers armed with four inch guns, but these were really gunboats and they had little influence on the battle. The battle began at a range of some 12,000 yards. Admiral von Spee kept turning away in order to fight at long range, as his eight inch guns were effective at long ranges. Admiral Cradock endeavored to close in, as the six inch guns were not effective at long ranges. The battle was short, for the two British six inch gun cruisers were soon sunk.

However, the tables were turned some five weeks later, for the British rushed Admiral Sturdee with two British battle cruisers [the Invincible and Inflexible], each mounting eight twelve inch guns, down to the Falkland islands. Just as Von Spee had kept out at long range while his eight inch guns sank Cradock's six inch gun cruisers, so did Sturdee keep out at long range [over 16,000 yards] while the twelve inch guns of his cruisers deliberately sank the German cruisers.

It has been said that if cruisers mounting eight inch guns meet cruisers mounting six inch guns at short range the outcome of the battle may be doubtful if both the eight inch and the six inch guns can penetrate the sides of the opposing ships. Any admiral who has a thorough understanding of a naval battle and the effect of gunfire will keep out at long ranges if he has the bigger guns so that he can sink the enemy without being damaged himself. This is what happened at both the battle of Coronel and at the Falkland islands.

At the opening of the battle of Jutland Admiral Beatty with six powerful battle cruisers armed generally with thirteen and one-half inch guns closed in to 14,000 yards in his battle with Admiral von Hipper, who commanded a much weaker squadron of five cruisers mounting generally eleven inch guns. At this short range the eleven inch German guns penetrated the British ships, which accounts for the sinking of two of Beatty's cruisers [the Indefatigable and the Queen Mary] in short order. Had Beatty kept out beyond 21,000 yards he might have sunk the German cruisers with his more powerful thirteen and one-half inch guns, without damage to his own ships. As it was, the Germans suffered little while Beatty lost two cruisers.

The above historical incidents show clearly that, although heavier guns give an enormous advantage, the ships must be well handled and guns' crews efficiently trained in order to make victory certain.

When the German eight inch gun cruisers sank the British six inch gun ships off the coast of Chile the control of the whole southern Pacific went to the Germans. Marine insurance rates went sky high and British merchant ships dared not sail from a single port on the west coast of South America. If the battleship is doomed [due to ideas of false economy or exaggerated ideas of effectiveness of aviation], then there will be no great fleet battles as at Jutland, but there will be small cruiser battles along the trade routes throughout the world, such as we have seen at Coronel during the world war. The most powerful cruisers will gain control of the trade routes and of the seven seas.

WATER AND THE WATERWAY.

The senate has adopted the item in the rivers and harbors bill for the Illinois waterway, but with the amendment proposed by Blaine of Wisconsin to limit the water diversion to the maximum stipulated in the supreme court decision, pending other action by congress. The Illinois senators, Deneen and Glenn, were unable to stop this attack. The waterway was deserted by some of its former supporters, including Ransdell of Louisiana, and opposed by representatives of states which would be benefited by it.

The Illinois proposal was that the diversion of water necessary for navigation should be determined by the secretary of war and the chief of engineers upon the facts. The Lake Carriers' association, which means the steel makers, was successful in preventing that.

The senate, in agreeing to federalize the Illinois link in the gulf waterway, voted to make the construction as expensive as possible by withholding the water necessary for navigability, thus discouraging investment in the new transportation by making its future uncertain. Such a policy of excessive cost and undependable results would be congenial to the natural impulses of many senators.

The opposition centered in the steel and ship concerns and, represented by Newton Baker and Raymond T. Jackson of Cleveland, had the support of western radicals who voted for steel and power interests against their own constituents. This flair for great corporate interests against a waterway designed to lower freight rates for products of central state farmers and manufacturers is revealed for further study by the people who have elected these representatives.

When full consideration has been given these curious facts by the people of the states directly affected by the future of the waterway to the gulf the fight will be reopened, possibly with some changes in the representation at Washington.

COMMISSIONER ALCOCK.

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock may be assured that the difficulties of his new responsibility are recognized and that no snap judgment will be taken upon his efforts. He brings to his office long experience, much knowledge of conditions, undoubted ability, and force of character. The public has reason to hope that if permitted he will accomplish substantial improvements in police affairs, and there is every disposition to give him support and appreciation as he demonstrates his will and competence to serve the community. He has in fact a great opportunity, and THE TRIBUNE wishes him well.

ONE OF THOSE LAWS.

Emboldened by the success of the various statutes regulating what people may eat, drink, and use for bedclothes, the 1927 Wisconsin legislature adopted a law prohibiting daylight saving and requiring residents to keep their clocks set to standard time. Progressive party statesmen consider daylight saving a blow at the freedom of the working classes.

A number of Milwaukee institutions have now decided to turn their clocks ahead an hour on June 29, so the working people may play golf and go yachting on the beautiful waters of Lake Michigan during the daylight hours. Incidentally, this procedure will synchronize Milwaukee time with that of Chicago, a neighboring settlement of considerable size with which Milwaukeeans transact more or less business each day.

Labor unions have stepped to the front for nonyachting workmen, and will seek an injunction against thus upsetting the hours established by God and the Greenwich observatory. It is claimed, reasonably enough, that when two or more people have their watches wrong it constitutes a conspiracy and causes "civic turmoil, dissension, discord, and ill health."

The litigation, if carried to a successful conclusion, offers a fine opportunity for salaried jobs for those unfortunate inspectors who were severed from the pay roll when the state prohibition enforcement act was repealed. It will require a lot of able, energetic officers to pluck watches in pairs from citizens' pockets and see if there has been a conspiracy. Especially easy criminals to detect will be children who have come into possession of castoff Ingersolls with broken mainsprings.

The Milwaukee city hall clock, having four faces, offers possibilities if it keeps time in the future like it did before the fire. It would be a most despicable conspirator all by itself.

If, through some mischance, the prohibitory law proves unenforceable, it is suggested that the next legislature might accomplish the same end by prohibiting golf, yachting, gardening, and contract bridge. Then there will be no demand for daylight saving with its accompanying turmoil, dissension, discord, and apocalyptic plagues and disasters.

Editorial of the Day

THE LINGLE MURDER.

[Kansas City, Mo., Journal Post.]

The assassination has served to arouse the people of Chicago at last to a realization of the dangerous situation which exists in their city. When gangsters murder citizens who are not members of gangs it is time for the entire populace to worry. There is general realization of the fact that if the slayer of Lingle and those who hired him escape punishment the gangsters will not be careful in the future to confine their killings to members of the underworld.

As Representative Cooper of Ohio has pointed out, the situation in Chicago is not the result solely of prohibition but is the legacy of many years of bad government. New York, which has plenty of bootlegging, does not have proportionately the amount of crime that exists in Chicago, and if New York can curb its gangsters Chicago could do likewise.

The people of Chicago are aroused over the Lingle murder, but if they expend their anger merely on the man who fired the bullet that killed THE TRIBUNE reporter little permanent good will result.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By Ade

WHAT CAN WE DO FOR BOBBY?

There's actually nothing too good for that boy! We can't make him a colonel as we did Lindy, because he isn't in the army! Well, maybe Lindy wasn't in the army; we wouldn't know about that. Maybe they put him in the army and then made him a colonel. But, anyhow, we couldn't make Bobby a colonel because he'd be a bum colonel, using the entrenchments for bunkers if we sent him to war and trying to drive bombs with a brassie when he's supposed to pull the pin and sling 'em. We can't make Bobby a rear admiral like we did Dick Byrd, because he isn't in the navy. And Bobby wouldn't take the job anyhow, because the ocean's a rotten place for a golf link.

Georgia might send him to the senate—— NO! NO! NOT THAT! Anything but that. We could give him cups and medals and things, but he's full up with that kind of truck—he got all they had in England. New York will give him a reception and Grover Whalen, with a carnation in his buttonhole and wearing a hot stovepipe hat, will meet him at quarantine, and Jimmie Walker will dance around him and shoot a speech, and New York will go crazy again, but that's old stuff. What to do for Bobby Jones? We sent our very best statesmen to England to get parity and nobody knows yet what they got, and it seems pretty hard to find out; everybody's afraid to look. But Bobby's bringing back everything from over there except the crown diamonds and the king's pearl gray spats.

They're giving Dick Byrd a sword in Virginia, but wottell would Bobby do with a sword? Swords aren't used any more anyhow, not even in war, except to open canned peaches and chop kindling wood. If Bobby got one he couldn't even use it to putt with, and the caddies would kick on carrying it around in his golf bag. We often give our returning heroes the Freedom of the City. But that's been given to the gunmen and racketeers, and we won't be able to get it back before Bobby gets home. What to do? Huh! What to do?

IN SOLITARY.

One time I was a poet, and my songs
Paeaned the jows and dirges the griefs of earth
Far-flung, their challenge of protected wrongs
Made cowards valiant. Now is bitter dearth
Of power wherewith to free this rebel soul
Held fast in a gray prison; breaking wings
Against the bars, starving on daily dole
Of rationed words infest with futile things.

Yet from the one high window in my cell
I hear the call of bugles blown afar
And like a gleam within a circled well
A plummet line of light drops from a star.
Some day, a small green door will open wide
And I shall pass singing, to heaven or hell
It matters not, if once more to abide,
My songs in words of triumph I may tell.

SINCE COMMISSIONER ALCOCK has ordered detectives to walk beats we have been eagerly watching for one. It's a little early, but we thought we saw one yesterday morning sauntering down Rush street. Ah, thought we, an old-fashioned patrolman at last. But, no; he passed a fruit stand on the corner and he didn't take an apple, a banana, or even a couple of peanuts. So he couldn't have been walking beat; he was just a policeman going somewhere.

WE CERTAINLY LOVE to read the newspapers, but if they can't keep Clara Bow out then we're through. Tck! tck! tck! Think of the number of trees growing in Canadian forests that are cut down and made into paper ever day and then used to print columns and columns about Clara Bow. Tck! Some more, and likewise tush! tush; And also tut! tut!

RHEUMATISM AND ARTHRITIS.

D. O. W. asks about rheumatism and arthritis.

REPLY.

There are many diseases which go by the name of rheumatism. The term arthritis means an inflammation of a joint. There are many kinds of arthritis. Therefore, we do not mean anything definite when we speak of a person as having rheumatism or arthritis and do not specify what kind we mean. And yet these general terms are in wide use. It is customary to speak of rheumatism and arthritis without qualifying with any adjective. For this nobody can be blamed. In the present state of our information, if we used an adjective it would be misleading about half the time. Not even the specialists in rheumatism—the leaders—are equipped to lead. They are not ready to agree as to the causes of the several kinds of rheumatism, nor how many kinds there are, nor what should be done to prevent them beyond some minor points to do more by way of cure than to meet symptoms. So long as they are floundering we must expect others to flounder and yet, next to the common cold and its kinsmen, the rheumatism family is the great cause of sickness, absence from work, and general disability.

A London letter to the Journal of the American Medical Association says the rheumatic disorders caused one-sixth of the invalidism among workingmen. It cost ten million dollars a year in sick benefits and is responsible yearly for a loss from work of three million weeks.

Acute inflammatory rheumatism, or rheumatic fever, is regarded as an infection. A few physicians claim to be able to diagnose it bacterially and to have an antitoxin for it, but even here there is some disagreement. But the great lack of agreement is in the chronic forms of arthritis. How many are there? What are their natures? What can be done to cure them? To prevent them? By what names should they be known? There are no accepted answers to any of these questions. In consequence we are not even started on the prevention of this large and disabling group of disorders.

HARMED BY SUDDEN SHOCK.

F. C. writes: A boy 18 years of age is obsessed by phobias. For ten years he has been under a great nervous strain. Would sudden, loud noises have any harmful effect on a person of this nature?

REPLY:

Dr. Laird has shown that we are harmed by sudden shocks, such as those due to explosive sounds. However, the harm done is not great. If a man is nervous and very jumpy the harm is greater. The remedy is rest and the development of poise.

Phobias do not bear any direct relationship to this condition. However, people with phobias, as a rule, are not calm and poised and fear influences them unduly. They are predisposed to jumpiness.

WELTS AFTER A BATH.

A. B. writes: What causes welts on my skin after I take a bath? If I get the proper temperature of water I do not have them. They stay only a short time.

REPLY:

Your trouble is urticaria, or nettlerash. As you have discovered, exposure to hot water is the cause in your case. The remedy suggests itself.

SMOKELESS FUEL.

Chicago, June 12.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a six flat building 3 doors south of me which has a smoke stack pouring out soot and smoke day and night which enters our bedrooms, interfering with our sleep and health. Would you please have this investigated?

A. G. F.

An order was issued to the owner to remove hood from top of stack which was causing the smoke to be deflected downward and to supply the hot water heating equipment with smokeless fuel.

The department has been advised that the hood was removed on June 17 and the owner has agreed to supply coke for the hot water heater, which will eliminate all future cause for complaint.

Premises will be kept under observation until nuisance is abated.

Deputy Smoke Inspector in Charge.

IN PATH OF PROGRESS.

Chicago, June 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a machine and general repair shop located in old building for the last nine years, and on account of widening the street I must move. As the building is not worth moving back nor the owner being liable must the board of local improvements reimburse me for the loss that I will incur in moving, viz., loss of monetary earning power and trade?

F. H. C.

In order to force the matter public authorities would have to condemn the building. If you are owner, you would receive a share of the condemnation money. If you are a tenant, you would be entitled to a share. If the landlord refuses adjustment, you should employ a lawyer.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Mrs. Surratt, on trial as one of the Lincoln assassination conspirators, is seriously ill. The only action in the trial yesterday was the reading of documents by Mr. Ewing by which he sought to show that Spangler had no complicity whatever with Booth in the assassination of the President.

NEW YORK.—The Herald's Washington special says that friends of President Lincoln will be gratified to know that his estate was left in much better condition than many persons were led to believe. It appears now that he had some $75,000 accumulated which he invested in good securities.

JULESBURG, Neb. Ter.—The plains about Julesburg are dotted with tents and trains of Gen. Conners' great Indian expedition. Part of the command is already on the way to Laramie and Gen. Conners with the rest of the troops will start there within four or five days. Three steamers carrying 1,000 cavalry arrived today. These troops will join Gen. Conners' column at Powder river.

CHICAGO.—The last ditch of the rebellion is at last cleared—in Chicago. The last rebel prisoner well enough to leave his cot at Camp Douglas with 200 others were sent to their southern homes. About fifty remain in the hospital.

CHICAGO.—The 42d Wisconsin regiment, under Col. E. C. Sprague, passed through Chicago on its way to Madison.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—The Republican ticket will be William McKinley for President and Theodore Roosevelt for Vice President. Senator Hanna late tonight issued an official statement declaring that as President McKinley would be nominated by acclamation tomorrow it seemed wise to have the vice presidential candidate named the same way. The statement continued: "With the strong and earnest sentiment of the delegates from all parts of the country for Gov. Roosevelt, it is my judgment that Gov. Roosevelt should be nominated for Vice President." The strongest demand for Roosevelt's nomination came from far away delegates, especially those from Kansas. The convention of 1900 will go down in history as the remarkable one in which both places on the ticket were filled without the necessity of a ballot. Gov. Roosevelt said he would accept the nomination "under the circumstances."

CHICAGO.—Robert Lawson Rose, a sailor from Great Lakes, and Joseph Hoyt, clerk in a cigar store at 35th street and Prairie avenue, were killed, and two persons, one a policeman, were wounded in a brawl near the cigar store. The trouble was the outcome of a parade organized by the "Star Order of Ethiopia and the Ethiopian Mission to Abyssinia," a band of, colored zealots who were going back to Abyssinia. Police are searching for "Dr." R. D. Jonas of Washington, D. C., said to be chief agitator of the "Abyssinian movement." The shooting followed the burning of two American flags. The policeman, Joseph P. Owens, colored, was shot while defending the flag.

Letter received by W. B. Havel, 1814 South May street, Chicago, Ill.:

This letter came to Mr. Havel from Endeh, a town and seaport on the south coast of the Island of Flores, one of the Little Sunda group in the Dutch East Indies. It contained a printed yearly report of the Mission of the Little Sunda islands from the Rt. Rev. Msgr. A. Verstraelen.

The Sunda islands is the general name for those groups in the Malay archipelago, which extend from the Moluccas to the Malay peninsula. They are divided into two classes—the Great Sunda islands and the Little Sundas. The former includes three of the more famous—Java, Borneo, and Sumatra—while the better known in the Little Sundas are Flores, Lombok, Bali, and Sunmbawa.

Flores is the largest of the Little Sunda group, being 250 miles long and from 10 to 35 miles wide. It has an approximate area of 5,860 square miles. Two volcanic peaks, Gunong-Keo, 9,060 feet high, and Lobetobi, 7,200 feet, are the features of the island's mountainous surface. Cotton, sandalwood, beeswax, dyewoods, and tortoise shell are the principal exports.

THE ARTILLERY RANGE.

Chicago, June 20.—In answer to the editorial in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of this morning under the caption, "Artillery Range at Camp Grant," I desire to state that I do not believe the facts were fully understood by the writer who penned the editorial.

First of all, the question as to whether the artillery range shall be located in the vicinity of Camp Grant is not involved in the present bill pending before the special session of the legislature. This question was determined at the last session of the legislature, when the legislature appropriated $600,000 to purchase an artillery range in the vicinity of Camp Grant. The only question involved at the present time is whether the appropriation act shall be amended so that the location may be made contiguous or nearly contiguous to the present Camp Grant range, so that it can be used to the best advantage by the men of the Illinois National Guard. The location of the artillery range at Camp Grant and the recommendation that every effort be made to train the infantry and artillery together at Camp Grant was not only sponsored by the undersigned as the head of the Illinois National Guard but as well by such eminent military authorities in the United States as Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the army of the United States; Maj. Gen. Milton J. Foreman, former commander of the Illinois National Guard; Maj. Gen. William Lassiter, Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, and Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, all while commanding the Sixth corps area; Maj. Gen. C. C. Hammond, former head of the militia bureau; Maj. Gen. W. G. Everson, now commanding head of the militia bureau; Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, Brig. Gen. Frank Schwengel, and Brig. Gen. John J. Garrity. All of the above experts have not only recommended the location of the artillery range at Camp Grant, but have either spoken before the legislature on at least one occasion, or recommended to the members of the legislature that they vote for the appropriation. In addition to these, practically all of the officers of the Illinois National Guard have petitioned representatives of the legislature in support of this measure.

The additional land needed to supplement the small reservation of Camp Grant is absolutely essential not only to enable the 33d division to have division exercises but to permit the elements of the division to have regimental and brigade training. The so-called "artillery range" will be used for artillery firing only three or four days each year.

The necessity for the additional land located sufficiently near Camp Grant for the use of the entire National Guard of Illinois, as well as for use as an artillery range, while stressed by all military authorities in their advocacy of the "artillery range" project before the legislature, is overlooked by THE TRIBUNE editorial and by many people who have opposed it.

Of course it is possible that THE TRIBUNE editorial is right and all these army officers are wrong, but I think the reading public is entitled to know that the pending bill and those preceding it for an appropriation for an artillery range at Camp Grant have had the unanimous support of every officer in authority in the United States army, as well as in the Illinois National Guard.

As the law now stands, a tract can be obtained without objection from the Rockford representatives, although that tract would be two miles nearer Rockford but fifteen miles from Camp Grant. The one the military authorities desire, because it is nearly contiguous to Camp Grant, is nine and one-half miles from Rockford.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 6.—I never yet have seen in any newspaper a more complete misconception of a public figure than your description of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan in THE TRIBUNE of Wednesday morning.

You say he is an office seeker. The only time he held public office up to the time of his appointment to succeed the late Senator Ferris was when he served his home city, Grand Rapids, as a charter commissioner. You say he is a noisy handshaker. If he has one great fault as a public man it is his attitude of reserve, what approaches an exterior coldness. In fact, the only criticism that was heard of him when he led the Republican ticket in the state elections in 1928 was that he held himself aloof from the people. His critics said he is "high hat." Those of us who know the man readily recognize this criticism as explained by a natural reserve; and his only "special interest" aside from that of the nation is the "special interest" of Michigan, as exemplified in the diversion controversy.

MORROW FOR PRESIDENT.

Lansing, Mich., June 19.—Now that a large portion of good, honest citizens of New Jersey have expressed their opinion about Mr. Dwight W. Morrow, let us hope we will all have an opportunity to express our own opinion in 1932, as Mr. Morrow will no doubt be a real leader.

EDWARD ROSBECK.

THE UNIMPORTANCE OF THE MORROW VICTORY.

Moline, Ill., June 18. — The wets throughout the nation are proudly pointing to New Jersey, where Dwight W. Morrow, an avowed wet, has just been nominated for the senatorship by a large majority over Franklin W. Fort, his dry opponent.

While the result is widely hailed as a wet victory a little reflection will show that the nomination of Mr. Morrow was of little importance in so far as it concerns prohibition sentiment.

Let it be remembered that New Jersey has always been conceded to be wet, one of the very few states in the Union that can be called definitely wet. The election, therefore, was no wet gain and in no sense indicates any loss of dry sentiment. It was of no more importance than would be the election of a dry senator in a dry state like Kansas.

While the state is no doubt normally wet the primary vote by no means shows the true lineup of the people on prohibition. Morrow carried not only the known wet counties in the north but also carried all of the known dry counties in the southern part of the state. It is obvious, therefore, that thousands of people voted for him regardless of their personal views on prohibition.

New Jersey together with New York and a handful of other eastern states will continue to exist as wet strongholds. However, a few wet spots will never seriously affect the strong dry sentiment of the nation as a whole.

Whenever the wets are able to carry a state outside of their few known strongholds then they will have something to talk about.

THE PRICE OF MILK.

Chicago, June 17.—Why is it that in spite of the low prices for butter and cheese the price of milk to the consumers remains at war prices? We understand the price of butter is ten cents under a year ago and cheese and condensed milk proportionally low; furthermore, we understand the price the milk companies pay for milk is $1.37 per hundred. They charge 14 cents per quart, or $7 per hundred.

We read a good deal about cooperative marketing as benefiting both consumer and farmer through more economical distribution, and if so, we commend the field of milk distribution to them, and also to the chain store system as an opportunity to render real service to the consumer by handling milk. They are doing it in eastern cities and can do it here.

SYNOPSIS.

Catherine West of Boston, on her way to Paris, meets Geoffrey Macadam in the train to Paris train. Catherine tells him that she is going to visit her cousin's widow, Mme. Belmont Bender. She is apprehensive about the coming visit, because she had received just before sailing a letter from Hermione Cushing, who tells her that Mme. Bender is far from well. Macadam is a lawyer and he tells Catherine that his firm handles Mme. Bender's affairs. He has heard that she was ill. Arrived in Paris, Catherine is disappointed when her cousin's chauffeur is not at the station to meet her. Geoffrey sees her into a taxi. He tells her that he will be anxious to know how things are at the Bender apartment and she promises to call him. Arrived at Mme. Bender's apartment, she is treated coldly by the servants. Jeanne, Mme. Bender's maid, tells her that Mme. Bender attempted to commit suicide the night before. The next morning Catherine goes in to see Germaine, who is pathetically glad to see her. She tells Catherine how she had taken poison by mistake.

Geoffrey invites Catherine to dine with him and she tells him of her vague fears. He is disturbed, too.

The next morning Catherine calls on Miss Cushing, who takes her to her milliner. There she sees a man she has noticed hanging around the Bender apartment. Back in the apartment she finds the gallery open for the first time and she goes in only to discover a number of pictures and tapestries missing. She asks Jeanne about them and the maid says they were sold shortly before Mr. Bender's death. Catherine feels she is right and believes she and Eduardo are thieves. She finds Jeanne is exerting a baneful influence on Mme. Bender.

Geoffrey again takes Catherine out to dinner and she unburdens herself to him. He has already put an investigator on the case. He asks her to marry him, but she wants time to be certain of her feelings. Catherine goes to visit Geoffrey's sister at Fontainebleau.

Geoffrey discovers Blom, the mysterious person seen around the Bender apartment, making a possible heir to the Bender fortune. Shortly after this discovery Blom's engagement to Mme. Baron, Miss Cushing's milliner, a widow, whose maiden name is the same name of Mme. Bender, is announced.

A fire breaks out in Mme. Bender's apartment early in the morning and she is saved to death. Most of the building is saved. Catherine had returned suddenly to Paris the night before. The servants deny to Geoffrey that she came to the apartment. Geoffrey follows Eduardo, the butler, to Blom's office. He sends for his investigator to watch the pair, then calls his father and together they call on the commissariat de police, who assigns Inspector Bazin to hear their case. Geoffrey returns to see if the servants have meanwhile heard from Catherine.

Catherine did go to Mme. Bender's apartment on her return from Fontainebleau. It was after midnight, and, entering the side door she reached her room without encountering the servants. Shortly after, smelling smoke, she investigates and finds it is coming from under her cousin's room. The door is locked. She dashes to get the keys and arouse Jeanne, who fights with her to prevent her from opening madam's door. She sees the butler carrying a heavy candlestick, and then a crashing blow on her skull robs her of consciousness.

Geoffrey meets the inspector at the Bender apartment and they question the butler and Jeanne. She intimates Catherine placed the candles in Germaine's room that set the bed curtains on fire. Geoffrey is barely able to control his indignation. They leave and Geoffrey calls his sister Elspeth, who meets them at the apartment. She looks over Catherine's belongings and finds a hat Catherine wore on her visit to Fontainebleau.

INSTALLMENT LXXII.

UNCERTAIN JOY.

However, the horrible idea had taken hold of Geoffrey so that he could not throw it off. No one but himself knew to what extent Catherine had troubled over her relative's situation, and had striven to put it right. If after all her planning and contriving she had suddenly been faced with last night's terrible revelation, who could say what the result might be? All these apparently contradictory evidences of hasty departure might point to one dreadful conclusion.

He watched the inspector place the lipstick in an envelope, seal it up and consign it to an inside pocket. Then, rousing himself by an effort, he received what arrangements had been made for guarding the apartment after nightfall.

"Ah, yes, monsieur! I shall have two of my men posted in the buildings at the back and the side, and I myself intend to pass the night in the apartment directly opposite, across the avenue."

"May I share watches with you?"

"Willingly, monsieur. But as it will not be necessary to take up our position till the evening, it will be as well to settle on a rendezvous. Shall we meet at the commissariat at eight o'clock? That is to say, if nothing is heard from mademoiselle in the meantime."

They quitted the room, which was again locked behind them, and retraced their steps through the silent passage to the front entrance, where Elspeth and Geoffrey took leave of the police officers.

"By God!" he exclaimed in a stifled voice. "Elspeth, you were right."

At the glass doors of the loge they came upon a familiar figure, no less a person than the office factotum, Henri, at that moment shuffling forward to meet them. His wrinkled face held a trace of unusual excitement.

"Ah, Monsieur Geoffrey, you have not gone! Here is a telegram just come for you at the Rue Auber. Your father has sent it on to you."

Geoffrey snatched the blue paper, the seal of which had already been broken, glanced at the contents, then uttered a sharp cry.

"My God!" he exclaimed in a stifled voice. "Elspeth, you were right! It's from Catherine!" and he thrust the flimsy slip into her hand.

She devoured it with eager eyes. Upon the form was scrawled the following words:

"Overcome by frightful news unable to go out but will telephone you tomorrow and explain my absence do not trouble yourself all goes well with me Catherine."

The wave of relief that swept over Geoffrey engulfed all reason. Voiceless, he could only stare stupidly at the jumbled sentences, reading in them a reprieve from utter despair. Catherine was safe, he would soon see her again. The knowledge overwhelmed him.

Elspeth's hand on his arm brought him to his senses.

"Geoffrey! It's too marvelous! I can hardly believe it!" There was an hysterical tremor in her voice. "O, to think nothing is wrong after all! There is she now? Does she give an address?"

Together they examined the form, but beyond the message it bore nothing beyond the hour when it was handed in—three o'clock—and the words, "Hotel des Postes."

"That's queer," Geoffrey muttered. "Why doesn't she tell us where she is?"

"Too upset to think of it, I suppose. It's not really strange. I should say she went to some small hotel last night, one where there are no room telephones, that she is simply prostrated by the shock, and only able to collect her thoughts sufficiently to realize we may be worried about her. She's given the concierge to send this wire."

"I dare say you're right." He continued to stare at the blue slip as though striving to force some additional information out of it. "O, well, the important thing is that she's found. Here's the inspector now."

He turned back to announce the welcome tidings, translating the telegram into French for the other's benefit. Bazin's blue eyes widened with interest.

"Well, well, monsieur! I felicitate you. The young lady has given you a bad quarter of an hour, but voila! the mystery is cleared up, as I hoped it would be. As for the other affair——" He left the sentence unfinished, but with one accord the three moved through the archway and into the street before resuming the conversation.

Geoffrey detected a note of uncertainty in the other's voice, and thought he could guess how to construe it. Bazin was thinking that since Catherine's disappearance had turned out a false alarm, the rest of their suspicions might be equally groundless. He spoke decidedly.

"Whatever may be the truth about this," he said, motioning to the slip of paper, "nothing is altered in regard to what happened last night. We have ample reason for starting an investigation, and I should think it extremely likely those servants are going to be indicted for murdering their master. Meanwhile, they are still at liberty. You see what I mean?"

"Perfectly, monsieur. You need have no fear, I shall not abandon the search of the house. However, there is now no need for you to sacrifice your night's rest. You will do as you think best, naturally, but if you decide not to come this evening I shall proceed without you."

The brother and sister set out aimlessly in the direction of the Avenue Auber, both wrapped in thought.

Now that Geoffrey had grown accustomed to the shock of joy, he found himself grappling with doubts and questions as troublesome as his former fear. Presently he pulled himself together sufficiently to inquire of Elspeth where she wished to go.

"Home," she replied. "I would have stayed the night, but now there is no need to, is there?"

"I'll take you to the station," he murmured mechanically, and raised his hand to stop an approaching taxi.

A little later, seated beside his sister, he leaned forward, chin in hands.

"I am not satisfied about this," he declared morosely. "It has a deuced queer look. It is not like Catherine to funk anything."

Elspeth eyed him shrewdly. "You're worn out," she said suddenly. "You will absolutely ill in. Promise me you'll go straight home and get a bath and some dinner. You need both."

Following her glance, he saw for the first time the streaks of smut on his hands, and realized that his collar was wilted.

"Let me know what happens," she added as the taxi swerved into the station before the gare. "And whatever you do, don't bother Catherine about this affair. Let her alone."

She waved her hand and was gone. He remained staring after her in a daze from which the driver's gruff voice presently roused him. Then he drew a deep breath, and, with a curious sense of flatness and lethargy, got back into the taxi and gave his address in the Rue d'Assas.

Good Morning!

He most certainly has what you call heem—eet, this Monsieur Maurice Chevalier!

His stories may be bushwah,
Cast limp, direction tame,
The dialogue a fizzle—
But you love HIM just the same.

Without the dashing Frenchman "The Big Pond" would be just an average program comedy—nothing to rave about. With him—AH!—it becomes excellent entertainment, guaranteed to please old and young alike. Item: Take the children. Little Elaine Koch mothering the hero when he's all worn out from working in the chewing gum factory will delight them—and you. She puts him to sleep with a song I learned in kindergarten:

"'Come little leaves,' said the wind one day,
'Over the brown fields with me, and play,
Put on your garments of red and gold
For summer has gone, and the days grow cold.'"

The story sings of the beautiful daughter of a wealthy American gum manufacturer who while touring through Europe falls in love with her French guide. He is brought over here by the maid's wily dad, who has other plans for his daughter and figures that a Frog in a gum factory will not show up so well as when gondoling under moonlit Venetian skies. But—well—"You've Brought a New Kind of Love to Me," Pierre had sung on those romance-steeped Venetian nights. As a successful American business man we hear him caroling—to his fiancée's dismay and his prospective father-in-law's immense, mercenary satisfaction—"You've Brought a New Kind of Gum to Me." It is very sad, really, this subsidizing of the pretty to the practical—this "big pond" between business and romance—but Pierre being Maurice and Maurice being as he is, neither you nor the heroine are, ultimately, disappointed.

The rôle of Pierre is a perfect fit for M'sieu Personality Plus Maurice. Claudette Colbert is a lovely Barbara. Dad is well impersonated by George Barbier, who has a very funny face, and you hate and hate and hate Frank Lyon as one sneering Ronnie—which is what you're supposed to do. Direction, sets, staging, photography, and sound are good, and the comedy is well timed and spontaneous.

So—with all kind thoughts—I request you to go and have a look at "The Big Pond."

Here's a gay burlesque of the '90s that knows itself for what it is, behaves accordingly, and so gets by in great shape. Based on an old stage play of the same name, it is full of hokum, presented with zest and a sense of the ridiculous, and its costumes and customs of the days of leg o' mutton sleeves and horseless carriages are exaggeratedly accurate. The famous Florodora sextet is featured throughout, and the pith of the yarn is the rocky romance of one of its members—Daisy Bell of Avenue A—and a rich young man who at first means no good to the gal, but later—shh—that's the story!

Marion Davies as Daisy gives a sparkling performance. She is delightful in her droll moments, which are many, and adequate and charming in those calling for a bit of depth and tenderness. Lawrence Gray is excellent as Jack Vibart. Sam Hardy clicks as the wicked gambler, Fontaine. Nance O'Neil is perfect as the hero's mother, and all other rôles are smartly played.

The last reel, done in technicolor, is, I thought, the main highlight and punch of the production. There you have a reproduction of the Florodora sextet rendering "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden, Are There Any More at Home Like You?" and during the number SOMETHING HAPPENS! Never mind what—but you'll love it!

Good direction, pat dialogue, excellent sound and photography, combined with the assets mentioned, make "The Florodora Girl" a novelty that ought to tickle everybody.

See you tomorrow.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

Should the old fashioned custom of marrying young be followed today?

The Answers.

Miss Josephine Brockman, 4143 Grenshaw street, secretary — No, because young folks don't know the meaning of marriage. They take marriage lightly and usually they marry on the impulse of a moment, only to regret it later. It takes folks who are ready to settle down and live as normal married folks should and not like the average flappers and sheiks do now.

Joseph Sabath, Chicago Beach hotel, Superior court judge—Yes, if they have the proper understanding of what marriage means and are financially and mentally capable of maintaining home and family. The boy should be between the ages of 21 and 25, while the girl should be between 18 and 21 and educated to the duties of a housewife. Finances have been the cause of many divorces.

Mrs. Hilda Weitzman, 4356 Lexington street, housewife—I believe people should be married at the age, man 28, girl 26, because that gives them time to get a taste of life. Then they will be content to live a quiet life and raise a family and be financially able to take care of same. Of course there are exceptions to all rules.

Herman Miller, 327 South Central Park avenue, sidewalk inspector — Yes, because two can live as cheap as one, and besides if they're in love that will give them a chance to learn to be good, responsible citizens. In many cases it helps them both to look ahead and they learn to save and economize.

Miss Catherine Clements, 5322 Magnolia avenue, schoolgirl—Yes, if circumstances permit, such as their financial condition, which is the all important factor today. The question arises, are they ready to settle down? The old slogan "two can live as cheap as one" is the bunk. The cost of living has tripled in the last few years.

Social Worker Favors Change in Prohibition

Mrs. Britton Joins New Women's Organization.

Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, social worker and head of the Chicago Heart association, yesterday went on record in favor of some change in present conditions when she was enrolled as a member of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, with headquarters at 700 North Michigan.

Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, co-chairman of the Illinois branch of the national organization, asserted that Mrs. Britton's action was significant of a critical anafysis of the prohibition situation by a growing army of women active in civic and social affairs.

"By enrolling in the Prohibition Reform organization," commented Mrs. Britton, "I am not taking a position as a 'wet' or a 'dry.' My whole feeling is that something should be done to correct conditions as they now exist. Prohibition has not done what was expected of it, and I am in accord with the aim of this organization to bring about a new solution of the problem. The whole cause of temperance has been retarded."

Plan Negro Ballet as New Form of Art for Chicago

A new form of art is to be introduced to Chicagoans next winter with the production of a Negro ballet. Mark Turbyfill, formerly associated with the Civic opera and the ballet sponsored by the Chicago Allied Arts, Inc., of which Adolf Bolm was artistic director, has invented the story for the ballet and its design. Eric Delamarter, associate conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will compose the music.

Mr. Turbyfill last winter began teaching ballet to a class of Negroes at the suggestion of Catherine Dunham, formerly of the Cube-Masque, a little theater of Negro repertory which formerly functioned in Chicago. The late Tennessee Mitchell Anderson, sculptress and former wife of Sherwood Anderson, also was interested in Mr. Turbyfill's work in establishing a Negro ballet and helped him financially toward that end, he said.

A new studio of Mr. Turbyfill's at 1547 East Fifty-seventh street was formally opened with a tea Thursday at which Eunice Tietjens, poetesss, poured.

Dr. Heyworth Given Farewell Dinner by 'Minority' of Church

The New England Congregational church, or rather its "minority" membership, paid a farewell toast last night to its resigned pastor, the Rev. John R. Heyworth, at a church supper in the parish house. None of the pastor's accusers who forced his resignation attended. From all appearances the "minority," which was said to have gained control of the parish with the election on Wednesday of six members to the council, had won its victory whether the pastor decides to return or not.

It was a family gathering—the 150 members and friends who fêted the man who returned historic New England church to its former influence in his five years as pastor.

Dr. Heyworth made a statement, his first public one since the dissension that had its beginning with his resignation the first of April. At that time it was charged that his opponents led by Dr. Ernest Graham Guthrie, threatened to deprive the church of $300,000 left by Victor Lawson, unless Dr. Heyworth resigned.

"I have had a wonderfully loyal group in this church. Whatever my future may be—and that is dark and in the hands of God—I have its love, loyalty and devotion.

"A real minister must think of the kingdom. If passing out of New England will save the kingdom, I'll gladly pass out of the picture. I have come to learn what the New Testament means in this recent trouble.

"I've been asked to stay and build the church. But I say at the same time, if things that build the church are not here, and can't be put here, it's no use. If I had every support in the church it would be a tremendous task."

Paul Valentine, leader of young people's work, told how Dr. Heyworth had built up the young people's department, giving them a new outlook. "You'll find in ten years that Chicago will be rid of its crime because men like Dr. Heyworth helped," he said.

New Kitchen Styles for Women Shown at Pier

CATHOLIC YOUTHS IN CONFERENCE SUPPORT CLEANUP OF CITY

Support of the effort of Chicago newspapers and civic organizations to rid the city of gang warfare was pledged yesterday by Chicago delegates to the Students' Spiritual Leadership convention, an assembly of Catholic young people. The convention, held under the auspices of the Sodality of Our Lady, opened yesterday at the Palmer house, attended by 2,300 delegates from all over the United States.

The resolution was introduced by William Conley, Sharon, Wis., graduate this year of Loyola university's school of business administration and a leader in student activities. Adoption of the resolution followed reference to the crime situation in his address of welcome at the opening session.

The group further resolved to "pledge its influence in bringing about application of the principles of Christian ethics to the civic problems confronting Chicago."

Although the Rev. Fathers Daniel A. Lord, Gerald L. Fitzgibbons, and Gerald B. Donnelly, Jesuit priests of St. Louis and heads of "Queen's Work," a publication, are in charge of the conference, all meetings are conducted by students, with discussion centering on youth problems.

Miss Yvonne Raskob, 17 year old daughter of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic committee, arrived yesterday morning with several schoolmates on a special car from Ursuline academy, Wilmington, Del.

High Court Removes Last Obstacle to Industrial Museum

The last obstacle to the creation of an industrial museum in Jackson park was removed yesterday when the Illinois Supreme court affirmed the decree of the Superior court sustaining the proposal of the south park commissioners to issue $5,000,000 of bonds to restore the Fine Arts building.

In affirming the decree, the court said: "It strikes us very forcibly in considering this case that the park commissioners were acting in the public interest. The benefits of such a museum cannot be denied and the public has the proposal of Mr. Julius Rosenwald to expend $3,000,000 in collecting and conducting the museum."

The suit to restrain the park board in the issuing of the bonds was brought by William E. Furlong in 1924. Waldemar Kaempffert, director of the museum, commenting on the decision, said: "Due to the legal technicalities we have been proceeding slowly and cautiously, but now we can push forward with the utmost rapidity."

Blaze Trail in Michigan for Tourist Season

Motor Caravan Explores Historical Places.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Manistee, Mich., June 20.—[Special.]—Up the east coast of Lake Michigan today a party of explorers seeking tourist attractions collected the history of the points en route, legends of tribal wars over favored hunting grounds before the coming of the white man, battles between French and English trappers with their red allies for the fur trade, and stories of the golden age of lumbering that gave Michigan a few decades of prosperity and colonization but cost the state much of its wealth in timber.

The explorers, traveling in automobiles, consist of representatives of the Michigan Tourist and Resort association, the Western Michigan Motor club and the Grand Rapids and Muskegon Associations of Commerce. Other associations of commerce have men with the party part of the time. They are exploiting scenery, climate, romance and history, planting seeds for the 1930 tourist crop, the crop that makes a major contribution to the prosperity of Western Michigan in the current chapter of its economic development.

Leaving St. Joseph and Benton Harbor, at the mouth of the Joseph river, where La Salle built Fort Miami in the seventeenth century, the party motored north to South Haven, one of the many coastal cities, originally a fur trading post, then a lumber camp and now a resort center for Chicagoans. Nearby is the site of the town of Singapore, abandoned when the land was stripped of timber and now completely buried by the shifting sands of the dunes.

Farther north, still following U. S. 31, Holland was reached. A marker tells where the colonists under the Rev. A. C. Van Raalte, landed in 1847 after leaving Netherlands because of religious dissension with the mother church. The 14,331 population is still 90 per cent of Dutch ancestry, and the town has a distinct personality because its history is cherished by its residents. The motor trail led on to Muskegon.

Carved on a granite obelisk, overlooking the lake at Muskegon, is a human hand branded with the letters "S. S." It is a monument erected over the grave of Jonathan Walker, subject of Whittier's "The Branded Hand."

Walker was arrested trying to convey seven slaves from Florida to freedom in British Nassau in 1844. A federal court in Pensacola sentenced him to a year's solitary confinement, a $600 fine, and to be branded with "S. S." standing for slave stealer.

North of Muskegon is the two year old scenic drive through 893 acres of wooded dunes owned by the state, a drive of twenty-one miles of natural beauty that is still little known to Chicago motorists.

Through Pentwater, pretty resort center on a lake of the same name, the motor party cruised to Ludington, where Pere Marquette died in 1675. His original grave, before his body was moved to Sault Ste. Marie, is an unmarked wooded knoll on the dunes a short distance from Ludington.

Marquette university of Milwaukee has collected a fund to mark this burial place, but the ground has yet to be purchased from its private owner. Here at Manistee the visitors saw the salt mines, advertised as the largest in the world, that continued the town's prosperity after the sawmills, founded in 1841, exhausted their raw material.

Poor Children of City Invited to Attend Picnic

The Volunteers of America yesterday issued an invitation to all poor children in Chicago to attend the annual picnic to be held next Thursday in Washington park. Smith, local commander, said yesterday.

Horse Show at Lake Forest Draws Crowds

Perfect weather, fine horses guided by skilled riders, and an appreciative audience made the opening of the Lake Forest horse show yesterday one of the most successful events of its kind in recent years. The boxes, filled with brightly dressed women and children, formed a colorful background for the small tanbark arena, where 11 classes were put through with quick precision from 10:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.

There were no casualties except a spill taken by Donald B. Douglas when his horse, Enthusiast, balked at the barrier in the lightweight jumpers class. Mr. Douglas was reported uninjured.

Many of the boxholders gave luncheons in Onwentsia clubhouse before the afternoon performance, which drew the larger attendance. Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin, with her niece, Miss Elroy Bradford of White Plains, N. Y., arrived early to see that Peter, the St. Bernard dog from Orphans of the Storm, was properly installed at the entrance to receive donations in the little cash box strapped to his back. Instead of wearing a sports dress, as did most of the women present, Mrs. McLaughlin wore a garden party type of gown of pale blue organdy over a pink satin foundation with a long full skirt that trailed the ground on both sides and in back. Her hat was of white baku with a drooping, ruffled brim bound in blue ribbon. Miss Bradford wore a pale blue voile dress and a natural straw hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne had a family party in their box, including Mrs. George Gillespie [Katherine Thorne] of Los Angeles, in a red and white figured dress and white ribbon hat; Miss Laura and Miss Narcissa Thorne and Mrs. G. Corson Ellis [Roberta Thorne]. Mrs. Stephen Y. Hord, in a white shantung sleeveless dress, with a slit sun back, was with the Thornes.

Mrs. Robert G. McGann, chairman of the box and ticket committee, and Mrs. Laurance H. Armour, chairman of prizes, were busy all day in their respective capacities. Mrs. McGann's daughter, Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr., occupied a box with Mrs. Vincent Healy, who wore a white flowered dress, and Mrs. John Payne Kellogg, the latter in a bright yellow dress and wide brimmed brown straw hat. In the adjoining box were Mrs. T. Clifford Rodman in a white sleeveless crêpe frock; Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy Jr., in a blue and yellow print; Mrs. Charles H. Cushing in a blue figured dress, and Mrs. Ballard Moore in a black dress printed in yellow.

Mrs. John P. Jelke Jr. and Mrs. Gilbert Porter and their children shared two boxes, John Charles and Mary Louanna Jelke, and Edith, Polly and Ann Porter. The Kent Carpenter youngsters, Ann and Alice Keith Carpenter, were with their grandmother, Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter. Mrs. Wolcott Blair arrived late in the afternoon with her small son, Wolcott Jr., and his diminutive Pekingese pet.

Mrs. Robert R. McCormick and Mrs. Arthur A. Small were with the Ralph R. Richardsons and their daughters, Mrs. Frederick Spencer, and Miss Eluford Richardson. Miss Richardson rode in several of the events. Mrs. Howard Linn, in a navy blue skirted habit and Mrs. J. Andrews King, in a brown habit, were in the Joseph T. Bowen box between appearances in the ring.

Others seen in the boxes were Mrs. Lester Armour and her children, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pirie [Betty Borden], Mrs. Alexander H. Revell Jr., Mrs. Noble Brandon Judah, Mrs. Edward H. Bennett and her daughters, Mrs. John Borden and her daughter, Courtney Stillwell, Mrs. Donald Douglas, Mrs. T. Philip Swift and her mother, Mrs. Phelps Hoyt; Mrs. Hale Holden, Mrs. William R. Odell, Mrs. F. Scott Durand, Mrs. Carter Harrison Jr., Mrs. Charles Glore, Mrs. Ira L. Couch, and Mrs. C. H. Ackert.

Mrs. William H. Hodgkins had with her her mother, Mrs. J. Whiting Press, and her sister, Miss Belle Press of San Francisco. Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, whose daughter, Miss Edith Cummings, rode in several events, was hostess in her box to Mrs. Albert Sprague and Mrs. John Pirie.

Among the younger people present were Miss Jeanette Peterkin, in a printed silk frock; Miss Katherine Drake, in a beige ensemble; Miss Narcissa Swift, in a coral silk dress and short white socks; Miss Francise Clow, Miss Frances Wood, Miss Christabel Wheeler, Miss Janet Kirk, and Mrs. Press Hodgkins.

The show will continue today, with classes for children in both morning and afternoon performances.

Jenny Restores Lost Prestige to Sweaters

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Sweaters are looking up in Paris fashions. They have for some time been blushing sunseen by really smart people, but something new and clever in the line of a sweater is restoring some of their lost prestige.

Jenny has designed the sweater ensemble shown in our sketch, and it is one of the smart items of the Paris midseason fashion shows. It hasn't much in common with the regular sweater that followed a straight line from shoulders to hips, has it? This one is fitted into a normal waistline in the best silhouette of the season. It has a cape to match and it has bishop sleeves. This combination creates real news for the sweater mode and gives it gen-u-ine chic.

The pullover sweater shown here is made of leaf green ribbed tricot, with a beige band and bow knitted in the neckline and a beige belt knitted in at the waistline. The bishop sleeves are beige from a dropped shoulder seam. The short cape is all green tricot to match the sweater and the beret is green and beige. The unusual half circle bag from Au Trois is covered with green wool and is attached by a braided leather thong that passes through a buckle of prystal at the side, as shown.

Another interesting sports bag is also from Au Trois and is made by passing a short, fringed tricot scarf through a large prystal ring that you hang on your arm. Inside of this scarf there is a little purse and a small mirror and powder puff, as shown.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Jackie brought his little brother over for inspection. I said, "So this is your little brother. It's funny you are so fair and he is so dark."

"Well, you see, he was born after mother dyed her hair," said Jackie.

K. D.

The little boy next door to us is mischievous. The other day his father found it necessary to take him out to the garage and give him a sound thrashing. The youngster did not cry, much to my surprise, and I said to him afterward, "Frankie, don't you ever cry when your daddy whips you?"

"What's the use," retorted the youngster, "my dad's deaf." H. K.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

H. T.: WRINKLES BETWEEN the eyes suggest eyestrain. Eyestrain may be detected by an easy tiring of the eyes or if they become irritated easily. Or you may have the habit of wrinkling the forehead when reading. Again, insufficient rest and sleep will cause them.

'Tisn't Enough to Be Slender; One Needs to Be Supple, Too

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If you have not been exercising for a long time, it is well to start out with stretching work and let the more active muscular movements come a bit later on. Say for a week you do nothing but stretching. It will put you in the way of acquiring the suppleness the new figure requires. In suppleness lies the marked difference between the now popular willowy figure and the old order of just reduced figure of last and previous seasons.

Don't overlook that supple item, any of you girls who would be up on the last word in beauty notions. Slenderness alone will not give the supple, curving waistline women need for their this year's clothes. The alluring quality must be attained by limbering up the muscles, and keeping them limbered.

But it is not wise if you haven't done anything in sports or indoor exercise since you left school to break out in a rash course of movements that will leave you sore and discouraged after the first few trials. The stretching work does not cause "beginner's pains," like the other forms of muscle work.

Begin before you get out of bed in the morning, if the bed is long enough to let you stretch full length with arms extended overhead. Or you can do the stretching on the bed in two parts, upper and lower half of the body each at a time. Hold the hands overhead a few inches away from the head board and stretch on the arms and hands to see if you can touch it. Not too much strain, but enough to feel a pull on the muscles. Then try the same thing with the toes a couple of inches away from the foot board.

Or, if you prefer the floor, lie down with the hands extended so that they are a couple of inches from the wall and try to touch the wall. Have some foot target, a chair or bench or table set just out of reach of the toes and see then how near you can come to touching it.

You can stand up, just as well, and give yourself stretching work. You can walk around the room on tiptoes with hands high overhead, pulling up and up on the muscles. Five minutes at a time is enough, but repeat two or three times a day. You'll find even with a week's work a vast improvement in the way you hold yourself.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

Mosquitoes in the Chicago area are no longer home grown products, but in general are breeding in vacant lots and in shallow pools in fields, it is reported by J. Lyell Clarke, sanitary engineer of the Des Plaines valley mosquito abatement district. He cites an evident response in the last few years by home owners desirous of having fewer of the pests and answering requests by covering up rain barrels, turning tubs upside down, and having roof gardens cleaned and rock garden pools stocked with fish.

The buzzing insects bothering gardeners and making temporary homes in lawn shrubbery usually have their source in vacant lots, especially low areas and in fields where water stands for any length of time, according to Mr. Clarke. Three hundred mosquitoes per square foot is the estimate placed on the productive possibilities of water surfaces remaining unoiled for as long as one week after a hard rain.

Last summer's egg crop now is beginning to hatch. In the abatement district every area known to be low and sometimes wet is marked out on a map and oiling follows. Extensive drainage of many outlying marshes this spring has relieved Chicago of many prospective insect pests.

Chicago Boy, 10, Sails for Arctic Today with M'Millan

Wicasset, Me., June 20.—(AP)—A 10 year old boy, William A. Thomas Jr., son of Dr. William A. Thomas of Chicago, sails as a cabin boy on the schooner Bowdoin, veteran of arctic waters, which leaves here at noon tomorrow for the frozen north under the command of Donald B. MacMillan, explorer. A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Victims of Hard Times.

"I am writing for a neighbor of mine, whose husband, after being out of work for four months, finally deserted her. She is destitute. There are two children, a boy, 11, and a girl, 7 or 8, who are badly in need of clothing which she cannot buy. I wonder if you will help her get it for them. She herself wears size 36 or 38.

"MRS. C. N."

Desperation has driven the father to leave his family, but the mother in this case has not lost her courage and is making every endeavor to keep her children with her. Can you help her a bit by supplying the clothing she cannot buy?

Hutchins Imparts Wisdom to Class at Art Commencement

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The most amusing speaker at the closing exercises of the school of the Art institute in some years was heard yesterday afternoon in the Goodman when Robert Harshe, director of the institute, turned the platform over to Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago. Dr. Hutchins took for his subject, "Education in the Arts," and he strayed as far from it as the average conception of education and art allows, and he kept as close to it as a Scotchman does to a joke. He wove humor in and out of the pattern of his thesis until at the close the realization that there really was a great deal of horse sense in the piquant remarks he had shot off so casually came almost with the force of a thunderbolt.

"What the times require is education in the arts and art in education."

"Works of art have summed up epochs; more, too, they have made them."

"Art is coming into its own in America; it is now safe for the average man to display interest in it."

"Modernism is an emphasis — the arts should live — and live with us today."

Mr. Harshe in his introduction spoke of this commencement as the fifty-first of the school and said that it marked a great advance in practically every department, due in great part to the splendid work and initiative of Charles Fabens Kelley, dean of the school, and to the administrative staff and faculty. At the close of Dr. Hutchins' address Dean Kelley presented the graduating class and as they passed along the stage their diplomas were given to them by Frank G. Logan, honorary vice president of the Art institute.

The school is still in the process of change from a three year course to a four, so a number of graduates received certificates, meaning they had completed the shorter period. After this year there will be only the diplomas significant of the four year course. The school of industrial arts was able to give its first certificates yesterday.

Boris Anisfeld, Frederick V. Poole, and Emil Zettler were honored with the award of honorary degrees, master of fine arts, symbolized by the wearing of a white scarf struck across by crimson bands, dropped over their heads by Mr. Logan.

Prizes which had not before been announced in the school were listed on the program, and those who won the Frederick Magnus Brand memorial awards for composition are Charles Dixon Cavanah, Mary Cooper, Ludwig Bodzewski, Cordelia Lochman, and George Newman.

Hammer, Saw, Plane, Soft Wood and Nails Delight the Child

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

Information on "Sun Bathing for the Baby" will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

This is the last day of the six that were to make up our week of special attention to the right toys and playthings for little children of those ages associated with nursery school, kindergarten, and first year in the primary grades.

It will not be possible to finish covering the ground today. So, because so many mothers write me for help about the play for these ages and because it seems to be so much needed, I am going to conclude the subject some time during the coming week—probably Monday and Tuesday. This is better than attempting to crowd all the other groups of playthings into today's article, which needs the remaining space for tools alone, as one more plaything for children.

"It's a poor workman who blames his tools," is one of those old wise sayings that isn't so wise. A poor workman may try to find an excuse in that way. But, as a matter of fact, poor tools are a quite legitimate excuse for not doing a good job of carpentry, as any one knows who has ever tried to work with a dull saw, a hammer that isn't weighted properly, or a plane that won't plane.

This holds true with children, too, where tools are concerned. Give a child who is unskillful a poor tool and he can't get anywhere. But give him a hammer that does some of the hammering by its own weight and a saw that will really reward his efforts by getting through the wood and he sees progress and is encouraged. A few good—not necessarily expensive—tools are infinitely preferable to the fine looking, fitted toolboxes which often contain only toy tools that are nothing but a source of irritation to a child.

Of course, the little boy or girl of nursery school age—presumably of 18 months to 3 years—is able to use only a thick plank or piece of soft wood—soft underlined—and a hammer and good big-headed nails at first.

But when you get to children in the kindergarten and first grade things can really be made if they have materials to work with. Here is equipment for these ages: A low carpenter bench or table with legs sawed off; a vise, a hammer, a saw, a brace and bit, and possibly a screw driver and plane. They need soft wood of suitable sizes. Also a place to park their tools. A simple method of doing this is to tie cords on the handles and put up nails or hooks in a low, convenient place.

It is not necessary to offer information about the purchasing of tools, as any good hardware store can supply them.

Food Talk.

A joyful and interesting thing to see—unspoiled children eating properly. It is a sight that fills us with hope. All other influences being equal, such children have an opportunity to develop social graces, poise, and a strong, healthy body. The reverse of this picture—watching the finicky, spoiled child trying to eat—is both disturbing and discouraging. The chances are that he will always have difficulty in fitting into both social and economic life.

The child with poor eating habits is not responsible for his plight. His parents are, provided the child was healthy at birth. I heard a story the other day which is an example of how some parents spoil children, so I pass it along. A food chemist, his wife and two husky youngsters, Bill and Betty, 6 and 4 years respectively, were dinner guests at a friend's house. A most satisfactory meal was served to them, both from the child and adult point of view. There was soup, roast lamb, gravy, mashed potatoes, peas, lettuce salad, and vanilla ice cream with crushed fresh strawberries on top.

The guest children ate with uninterrupted gusto. But the 4 year old daughter of the host and hostess did not. She took a few bites of meat and potato and a sip or two of milk and announced she was ready for dessert. The mother made all sorts of excuses for Mary's behavior, saying she was not well and was delicate, had always been such a troublesome child to feed. A proof that the child had her own way, was shown when the mother proceeded to serve her the ice cream. The guest children went through the meal with the adults, eating all the food served them, apparently giving little attention to Mary's losing out on her meal.

Recipes for the Children's Foods Mentioned Today

EGGS POACHED IN MILK.

3 eggs.
3 slices buttered toast.
1½ tablespoons butter.

Bring milk to simmering point in small spider. Break eggs one at a time into a saucer and slip into hot milk. Dip milk over top of eggs with a spoon. When white is solid, lift carefully out on a large flat spoon with holes and place one egg on each slice of toast. Season and put small piece of butter on top of each egg. Pour remainder of milk over toast.

Yield: Three servings. One serving: Total, 260 calories; protein, 49 calories; fat, 147 calories; carbohydrates, 64 calories.

SNICKERDOODLE.

½ teaspoon salt.
3 teaspoons baking powder.
¾ cup sugar.
¼ cup fat.
1 egg.
¾ cup milk.
3 fine flavored cooking apples.
2 tablespoons sugar mixed with
½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Sift flour, then measure. Resift with salt, baking powder and sugar. Rub fat into flour mixture until appearance is like coarse cornmeal. Beat egg and add milk. Stir quickly into dry ingredients. Just as soon as every trace of flour disappears, turn into an oiled baking pan, spreading dough to 1 inch thickness. Pare and core apples and slice thin. Lay slices of apple on top in rows with the sharp edges pressing into the dough. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Bake in a moderate oven [375° F.].

Yield: Five servings. One serving: Total, 417 calories; protein, 32 calories: fat, 125 calories; carbohydrates, 260 calories.

Pick-Up Rides Are Dangerous Ways to Get Romance

BY DORIS BLAKE.

In an informal ruling at Albany, N. Y., one arm driving recently was held illegal. Between roadside parking and attending New York state suggestions about two hands on the wheel, it may be a trying season for our young moonstruck easterners. We do not know how many other states agree in official or unofficial ruling that "one arm driving unnecessarily endangers the users of the public highway," but a good many of them probably do.

Anyway, we thought we'd better pass on the hint about two arm driving at this particular season with the moon what it is, and daylight saving making the evenings later and later. Not that we expect the advice to be avidly accepted!

But there is advise relevant to summer evenings and gay, irresponsible youth we wish would be taken with deep, deep seriousness. In fact, we would be happy did state rulings insist it a punishable offense. It is the automobile pickup adventure. There is nothing good to be said about it and much, much that is bad.

For one girl or a couple of girls who have gotten away with it unmolested and unharmed there have been hundreds who have been subjected to shameless treatment at the hands of the male occupants of motors who seek their prey at curbsides. It is appalling the number of men whose companionship is so undesirable to girls of their acquaintance that they must seek their feminine diversion among strangers. That is the construction you can put on the car occupant who pulls up to the curb and invites a strange girl to ride with him. His intentions are not right, however harmless, gentlemanly, and decent appearing he may be.

Modifying the above condemnation of men, if you insist they can't all be criminal in intent, let's admit adventure to be the motive. What does a girl bring to the cause of respectful treatment who labels herself a cheap pickup by accepting a stranger's offer? Anyway, don't accept the proffered ride, please.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Made a Confused Explanation.

Making room for antique furnishings for a colonial home, I had been selling many things which we had had since first married. Among the dishes was a cut glass piece sold to a friend for her cottage.

Later I was entertained at this cottage and was too embarrassed for words when my sister-in-law smilingly remarked to all assembled that that dash was just like the one she had given me when I was married.

Seeing the quick look of understanding from my hostess I made a confused confession that I had forgotten long ago that the dish had been a wedding gift. Fortunately my sister-in-law is good natured and enjoyed with the others the joke on me and my embarrassed hedging. R. E.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Disregard Friends' Advice.

"Dear Miss Blake: My fellow is five years older than I. My friends say he is too old for me. Do you think so? FLO."

"I do not agree with your friends. I feel he would make a suitable companion for you.

Devote Time to Eligible Men.

"Dear Miss Blake: My friend says it is impossible for us ever to get married, yet he continues to see me. Please advise. RUTH."

It seems to me he is taking up time that you could devote to eligible young men.

In many homes a good cup of coffee is a welcome accident.

Poor coffee is sometimes due to careless cooking . . . more often to the coffee used. To make good coffee you first must start with good coffee.

HOYLAKE, England, June 20.—Bobby Jones, shooting record breaking golf, today won the British open championship for the third time, defeating one of the best fields ever assembled in the event after a dramatic battle in the final rounds. In winning his second major British title within a month, Jones shot a 291 for 72 holes, lowering by ten strokes the championship record for the course, established by Walter Hagen in winning the British open of 1924.

Two American professionals were tied for second place behind Jones, Leo Diegel and MacDonald Smith shooting 293 to divide second honors. There was nobody else closer than five strokes. Horton Smith, Missouri pro, turned in 296, tying with Fred Robson, several times runner-up in British attempts to recover the title, which has been won by the United States every year since the war, with the exception of 1923.

Jim Barnes had 297 for his four rounds, giving Americans five of the first six places.

Holds Three Titles.

Jones played heart breaking golf during his final round, which he finished in 75. That was done in spite of the knowledge that Archie Compston, the towering British pro, was leading by one stroke at noon and the prospect that both Diegel and MacDonald Smith would beat his afternoon round. They did, but they were unable to overtake him, and with Compston cracking worse than Jones under the strain, it gave him a clear path. Compston played the afternoon 18 holes in 82.

Jones was exhausted afterward and is through with golf for weeks. His effort established a probable all time record in giving him three major titles at the same time. He has won all Great Britain has to offer in golf in less than three weeks. He won the British amateur at St. Andrews on May 31, took the British open today, and is already holder of the American open title.

He is the only American ever to hold the British open and amateur championships in the same year, a feat accomplished only once before and that in 1890 by John Ball, England's greatest amateur.

Compston also made another record this morning when he got around in 68, two strokes better than the record Liverpool links' old record. It broke his score 215, one stroke better than Jones' total for the first three rounds. Compston had the largest gallery and was given the greatest ovation of the tournament when he finished the round and strode to the clubhouse.

Miracles Almost Happen.

Gus Fetz Faces Bob Carter in Tribune Golf Finals

BY HOWARD BARRY.

It will be Gus Fetz against Robert Carter and Mrs. William Wallace against Mrs. Rose Long for THE TRIBUNE'S public links championship. These four came through to the finals yesterday after another two hard rounds and will climax three days of campaigning when they meet this morning at 10 o'clock. The men will play at Jackson park and the women at Garfield.

Carter reached the championship round by a 4 and 3 victory over Ted Lloyd, who was formerly state amateur titleholder. Ted went into the match a strong favorite by virtue of his performance in the morning round when he shot the first nine holes in 29, five strokes under par.

Par Not Good Enough.

In doing so he made five birdies and two pars. He was getting tremendous distance off the tee and dropping his approach shots beside the pin to go down in one putt. Percy Swanberg, his opponent, was playing par golf, but even par wasn't good enough to beat the game Ted was shooting, so after hanging on courageously Percy lost, 2 and 1.

Guy Fetz moved into the finals by defeating William Chambers, 4 and 3. Chambers, who is still a youngster, displayed an excellent golf temperament against his veteran opponent. Never did he appear flustered or self-conscious before the gallery of several hundred which followed the players.

It was in this match that Fetz made the most remarkable shot of the tournament. He came to the 402 yard fifth, par for which is 4, and hooked his tee shot slightly so as to land in an adjoining fairway, approximately 175 yards from the pin, and he holed the next shot with a mashie for an eagle 2.

That wasn't the only eagle scored during the day. Harry Peters, making a last desperate stand against Fetz in the morning round, watched Gus' second shot reach the green and drop in good position for a birdie four.

Then Harry laid his second shot on the green and sank a 25 foot putt for a 3.

Mrs. Wallace and Mrs. Long have survived two days which would have taxed the staying qualities of seasoned campaigners.

Match Goes 19 Holes.

Mrs. Wallace breezed into the championship round in masterful style by defeating Mrs. G. D. Breen, 6 and 4.

To win her way to the finals Mrs. Long had to overcome two redoubtable opponents yesterday. In the morning she met Mrs. C. H. Seay, whose work in the opening rounds had marked her as the dark horse of the tournament. They were all square on the 17th tee, and Mrs. Long shot 3s on the last two holes to win, 2 up.

In her match with Mrs. Esther Johnson, Mrs. Long was forced to go 19 holes for victory. The engagement ended when Mrs. Johnson's 12 foot putt to halve the hole missed by an inch. Summaries:

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Home runs continue to be the way in which the champion Cubs choose to take their winning rides. They exploded two more round trippers yesterday, each with a mate waiting, and in that fashion piled up such a comfortable early inning lead that their day's labor with the Braves was simple. A few timely singles after the homers made a final count of 7 to 3, and this, with the winging of the Robins by Cincinnati, placed the Bruins only one and one-half games below first place.

The home running in the Cubs' cause was attended to by Ki Cuyler and Woody English, and while their blows rivetted the decision, they were forced to turn over individual honors to a number of the enemy troupe. This was Walter Berger, who proved the only Brave able to make any headway against the pitching of Pat Malone. Berger profited, and at the same time amused 35,000 ladies day spectators, by turning loose two homers, the real significance of which is that he now has a season's total of 20.

Cantwell Yields Runs.

The Cubs accomplished all their deeds of consequence while Ben Cantwell was pitching, or at least making the effort. They had him two runs in arrears in the first inning. They added two more in the third after the Braves scored their first run, the only one which was not a result of Berger's homers. After this the cham-

Be of Good Cheer, Sox Fans; Lyons Beats Senators, 2 to 1

Washington, D. C., June 20.—Too bad you loyal White Sox fans weren't here this afternoon to see Ted Lyons win his tenth victory of the year and his third from the ever dangerous Washington Senators. The score was Chicago, 2; Washington, 1, but the encounter was much more than just a low score ball game.

Today the Sox were a rarin' fightin' ball nine. To those who have watched the Comiskeys on their many willy-nilly days, their spirit and scrappiness this afternoon was unbelievable. Not meaning to throw any ice water on a joyous occasion, we can't help inserting here the comment that the team that can battle as the Sox did today, should be ashamed of its present low estate.

Show New Spark.

Of course Lyons was in there pitching and Lyons is the only fine pitcher now at work for Manager Donie Bush. But the boys had a spark of their own today that we haven't seen them show a half dozen times in the last four years.

Garland Braxton, erstwhile Senator, will oppose Ad Liska, the underhand fellow, tomorrow.

Lyons, as per his custom, was a big factor in the offensive as well as the defensive. He doubled with two out in the sixth and scored the first run of the game on a single by Kerr, the amazing Schnozzola. Collaborating with Ted and Schnozz were the two big boys, Carl Reynolds and J. Smead Jolley. Carl tripled in the seventh and scored the winning run on J. Smead's single.

The peak of the excitement was reached in the sixth, when the Senators were held to the tying run despite two hits, a walk, and three errors.

Senators Tie Score.

Rice beat out a slow bounder to Cissell and went to second when Cissell threw away the ball and to third while Manush was grounding out to Clancy. He scored the Senators' lone run when Cronin singled to center. Shires was safe and Cronin reached third when Clancy got an error for letting a grounder get through to right field.

Cronin and Shires tried a delayed double steal and for the second time in the game Cronin was out on the line between home and third. Shires kept plowing on, however. He was coming into third when Tate tagged Cronin and threw to Kamm. Umpire Guthrie called Shires out, but when Kamm dropped the ball the decision was reversed. The entire Sox personnel surrounded the umpire alleging that Shires had kicked the ball out of Kamm's hand. Cissell, it seems, was a bit more expressive and, when he leaned over and called Shires a dirty name, was chased from the park. The debate proved needless, for Bluege flied to Reynolds for the third out.

Nice Going, Ted!

ALL OVER BUT THE SHOUTING

Schmeling to Fight Sharkey in Fall, if—

New York, June 20.—[Special.]—Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion of the world, this afternoon agreed to defend his title against Jack Sharkey. The match still is far from made, hinging on several conditions, none of which, however, appears insurmountable.

The chief conditions are Arthur von Bulow, Schmeling's discarded manager, and the manner in which Schmeling's purse shall be paid. The German will accept the defending champion's 37½ per cent of the gate allowed under New York state boxing laws.

Schmeling today expressed himself again as dissatisfied with the manner in which he attained his crown, unafraid of Sharkey, and anxious to meet him and prove his right to the championship. The tentative date and scene of the projected match are Sept. 18 or Sept. 25 at Yankee Stadium.

If the wrangling now under way between his manager, Joe Jacobs, and the Madison Square Garden Corporation terminates satisfactorily, Schmeling will leave for Germany within a week to rest and visit his mother, who is ill, and will return here the latter part of August to resume training.

Explaining his decision to risk his championship this fall, although his contract with the Garden does not require him to defend the title until next June, Schmeling reasserted his dissatisfaction with the manner of his acquiring the crown and his confidence of ability to beat Sharkey decisively.

WATSON TAKES HOOSIER OPEN TITLE WITH 281

Yale Crew Takes Its Time to Beat Harvard, but Sets Record

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New London, Conn., June 20.—Down a lane of wealth and splendor, the Yale boat crew rowed to another victory over Harvard on the American river Thames this afternoon. Yale won the race by a margin of half a dozen lengths as the yachts, standing bow to stern along the lower two miles of the course, filled the air with rumbling and bleating sounds.

They rowed four miles in a dead calm, and Harvard, after the first half mile, was no more than a pusher, hurrying a much better crew on toward a record for the down stream course. Yale's time was 20 minutes, 9 2-5 seconds, the best ever made by a Yale crew, but still 7 2-5 seconds short of the course record established by a Harvard boat in 1916.

Yale Takes It Easy.

Perhaps the eight broad, pink backs in the Yale shell, arching and recoiling with easy grace and power, could have done the thing in better time this afternoon if Harvard had been able to keep a little closer and shove a little more insistently. But the race, as a race, was over before they had passed the first flags, dangling on their sticks above the fishing bobber buoys only half a mile from the start, and Yale's little ship went on pretty much alone, whipping the water against time, like a lonesome golfer shooting against par.

At that, when the young men shot their bow under the railroad bridge at the finish they were just a wink faster than the best previous time for a Yale crew, established by the boys of '88. These ancients had made themselves memorable all this time with a mark of 20 minutes, 10 seconds even.

A mighty lot of young Yales had freighted many a boatload of power and agony down these waters since that time, and then these boys came along today and made the race look easy. They were all sound at the finish, and, though a couple of them did dump forward, limp, for just a moment, the ship's company looked as it it had at least another mile of fast going in it.

Harvard Crew Fresh.

For that matter, the Harvard parties seemed fairly well fixed for vigor themselves, and there was no such heroic sprawling and flopping over the gunwales as tradition and custom have led the spectators to expect at the end of a four mile race. Harvard's race today was a very special performance for this Harvard crew, too, being one full minute faster than the best previous time for the distance by this boat this year.

At the finish both crews reached over the side, dipped up little dabs of cold water on their finger tips, snapped it into their eyes, and brightened up as their shells slid alongside their respective launches. The Yale men began drawing on their shirts and the people on the New Haven observation train, which had stopped on the bridge for the finish, hopped up to watch the Harvard men toss their shirts across the little span of water into the Yale boat, according to a quaint tradition of the water. But just then the engineer gave the whistle a yank and let the clutch pop into gear and the train jumped away, with a clatter and rattle toward the town to unload. The show was over and the passengers' tickets called for no stopovers.

Make Slow Start.

It is a compliment to a boat crew to report that not one oarsman made himself conspicuous one way or another at any time and this can be said of both outfits. The Yale chaps went away down the river, their sweeps swinging in clean unison as though they were all attached to some driving shaft, with very little variation in their beat.

At the outset they got away slowly and there may have been some momentary floundering over toward the yonder bank, unseen by the greatest number, as the darts slid away from their stake boats, because Harvard got the jump and led by a deck, which is about fifteen feet, in the first furlong or so. The first report from the clockers said that Yale was rowing only 32 strokes a minute to Harvard's 36, but even with this difference in the effort, Yale soon overhauled Harvard and went away.

Yale was a length and some open water in front before they had gone half a mile and the Harvard people never caught another glimpse of Yale until they quit rowing about 20 minutes later.

The starboard oars of the Harvard boat threshed the water like huge egg beaters for a mile or so and big sheets

Crowd of 20,956 Sets Record.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Otto Von Porat, Chicago's Norwegian heavyweight, is Young Will Stribling's one hundred and twenty-second knockout victim.

Stribling smashed a left hook to Otto's jaw in the first round of their battle last night at the Stadium that stretched Von Porat on his back at the ropes. The southerner needed only two minutes and fifty seconds to prove his superiority.

Young Will's left hand, supposedly injured in training a few days ago, eliminated Von Porat from the ranks of heavyweight contenders. Defeated by Johnny Risko and beaten by Phil Scott on a foul, this knockout cut short Von Porat's comeback which had its impetus when he knocked out Jack Gagnon in the same ring less than a month ago.

First Knockout Since 1926.

It was the first time Von Porat has been knocked out since he made his American debut in 1926 against Martin Burke. Burke stopped Von Porat in eight rounds.

Stadium officials announced the paid attendance last night as 20,956, which sets a new world record for an indoor professional contest. The Stadium also held the old mark established in August last year, when 20,699 saw Tony Canzoneri fight Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion. Last night's receipts were $80,236.97.

The huge throng was silent as Otto was carried to his corner still under the effect of Stribling's punch. The spectacular conclusion was a surprise, for while Will had the better of the exchanges up to the knockout blow, there was no indication that the Norwegian would not weather Stribling's rushes. In other fights Otto frequently started slowly, opening up as the bout progressed.

Von Porat Nervous.

Von Porat obviously was nervous when Referee Ed Purdy called the fighters to the center for instructions. He stood tense, moistening his lips, a contrast to the Georgian, who had walked forward nonchalantly to greet his opponent.

Stribling led first, scoring a straight left to the face which reddened the Norwegian's brown skin.

In the clinches the Georgian tied up Otto's right arm, and as they broke away he lashed upward with his right. Just before the final blow Stribling caught Von Porat with a right to the head which spun him around. Then, as the Norwegian backed away, Stribling brought his left around and caught him flush on the chin, and Otto was out.

Stribling received approximately $16,000 for his three minutes work. Von Porat, whose contract calls for 30 per cent of the net receipts, will receive about $19,000.

Mueller Stops De Carlos.

Armando De Carlos, Italian heavyweight who made his American debut last night, was no match for Hein Mueller. Always retreating, the Italian was an easy target. In the eighth Mueller smashed his right to the Italian's stomach and he went down for the count. De Carlos claimed the blow was low, but Referee Dave Barry ruled it fair. The one sidedness of the battle may have influenced his decision, for otherwise there could have been no doubt as to the outcome.

Ted Ross and Edgar Norman, light heavyweights, fought eight rounds in one of the best battles ever seen in Chicago. They slugged from bell to bell, with the crowd cheering wildly.

The pace was so fast that each seemed as if he would go down from fatigue. Ross rallied when he appeared hardest pressed and in the seventh round he pushed Norman through the ropes. Edgar rolled back into the ring and was up at a count of four.

The draw decision was applauded.

Caldori Whips Maurer.

Fred Caldori, Philadelphia heavyweight, used his 18 pound advantage when he outpointed Mike Maurer, Stribling's sparring mate, in a six round preliminary. Caldori landed the harder punches although Maurer was at boxing superior in the early rounds.

Andy Shanks, of Grand Rapids, Mich., knocked out a Janesville, Wis., heavyweight, Earl Folke, in the third round of the opening bout.

Pantaleo's Jabs Halt Levinsky's Rushing Tactics

Milwaukee, Wis., June 20.—(AP)—Paul Pantaleo, Chicago light heavyweight, tonight won the judges decision over King Levinsky, Chicago, in their 10 round fight at the Bluemound outdoor stadium.

The fight was Pantaleo's from the start. Levinsky's famed rushes were stalled easily by Pantaleo's left jabs. Pantaleo took several blows on the head and neck from the Chicago fish peddler, but was apparently unhurt. Not until the final round did Levinsky show up to advantage. Until that time he seemed ultra-cautious, if not afraid.

Three Stand Out

THERE were three equal choices, each held at 3 to 1, in the overnight betting on the outcome of the $10,000 added Illinois Oaks, to be run at Washington Park this afternoon. BY FRENCH LANE.

The cerise and gold silks of Edward B. McLean, Washington, D. C. publisher, were plastered all over the Washington Park race course yesterday when they were carried to victory in three races.

A crowd of 11,000 almost became color blind watching Water Port, a daughter of the Porter; In Between, a daughter of Colin, and Silverdale, a son of the Porter, roll up the triple triumph.

Jockey Eddie Ambrose was in the saddle on all three winners and it was the first time in recent turf history in Chicago that one owner has won three races on a single day's program. It was the first time this year that one jockey has won three races here in one afternoon.

$10 Parlay Worth $500.

Racegoers who are habitual backers of the McLean horses reaped a golden harvest. A $10 win parlay on the three victors would have brought a return of more than $500.

Silverdale completed the McLean triple when he shattered the track record for a mile and seventy yards while winning the Lake Shore Athletic club purse, the day's feature. He led from start to finish and wound up by beating Pigeon Hole a length with the 1927 Kentucky Derby winner, Whiskery, closing an immense gap to be third.

Water Port Whips Sweet Joe.

The McLean silks were carried to their first victory of the afternoon by Water Port in a 2 year old claiming race. Ambrose had her far back in the early stages and went wide coming into the stretch. But she was flying in the last sixteenth, and overtook the favorite, Sweet Joe, to win by a little more than a length.

The second McLean victory was registered in the Hyde Park purse by In Between. Charmer, the favorite, trailed In Between all the way after Gunfire, the early leader, quit as the field hit the lower bend. In Between's triumph was the easiest scored by the McLean color bearers all afternoon.

In the mutuel betting Water Port paid $12.28 to win. In Between's price was $7.26 and Silverdale was the top-heavy favorite and rewarded his followers at $4.90.

Benton Bests Vance; Reds Conquer, 2-1

Cincinnati, O., June 20.—(AP)—Larry Benton today returned to the form that brought him fame two years ago and bested Dazzy Vance in a pitching duel to give the Reds a 2 to 1 victory over the Brooklyn Robins. He pitched shutout ball after giving three hits and a single run in the first inning and granted but two more blows. Only one runner reached third after the first inning.

Tippecanoe, Tecumseh Too on Scout Cruise

BY BOB BECKER.

The Chicago Boy Scouts who go on THE TRIBUNE canoe cruise down the beautiful Tippecanoe river in Indiana next month will dig into the past. They will learn of the Shawnee Indian "Lolawawchicka," who was known as the prophet; Tecumseh, the noted Indian leader and warrior, and Gen. William Harrison, because the canoeing expedition is going to visit the Tippecanoe battlefield. Here the Indian forces of the Prophet and Gen. Harrison's white troops met in a bloody battle.

The battle ground is just a short distance from the river route of THE TRIBUNE canoeists. Time out will be taken from the paddling job in order to inspect the well preserved site where the white troops fought the attacking Indians and whipped them, in the fall of 1811.

Chicago Scouts who wish to paddle down the Tippecanoe river as members of THE TRIBUNE expedition canoeing and camping all the way from the town of Winamac (named after an Indian chief) to the Wabash river, should file their applications at once with Roy Alm, Boy Scout headquarters, 37 South Wabash avenue.

The expedition will leave Chicago July 5. Older Scouts with canoeing and camping experience are eligible if they have won their life saver merit badges. Applications should be filed at once, because those wishing to make this adventure cruise down the Tippecanoe river will be given a short canoe test Saturday afternoon, June 28.

YALE CREW WINS OVER HARVARD BY SIX LENGTHS

of spray leaped from the gleaming surface of the river. Then they settled down and rowed as their teacher, Charlie Whiteside, had been telling to, all year.

Mr. Whiteside comes from Minnesota, by way of Syracuse university, where he stroked a winning varsity crew in 1916 and this is his first year as head coach at Harvard. Nobody really expected his crew to win today, because Yale's crew happens to be a very superior lot of oarsmen at the present time, so there is no use of trying to create a feeling of startlement at the outcome.

Yale Leads at Mile.

Yale had two lengths to spare at the mile. Harvard's stroke had subsided to 32 and the boys seemed to be inching up on Yale at this point, but that probably was an illusion due to the perspective at an angle in the river.

The long trains of flat cars, with canvas awnings stretched on frames of iron pipe sheltering the people against a premonition of rain, jerked and jumbled down river in clumsy efforts to match the speed of the boats. There was some polite braying from car to car, a few bursts of those staccato "haw-vuhd's," with the A's hammered flat and some feeble, individual singing. Some red balloons and some blue balloons went leaping into the air, dangling their tails of grocer's string.

A party with soot on his collar and an alcoholic glaze over his orbs, hove up and offered $500 to a dollar that Yale would lead Harvard by 200 lengths at two miles. There are always a few to overdrink themselves and provide the comic relief at these boat races, here and on the Hudson at Poughkeepsie, but always in foolish good humor and there is never any loss of temper with them.

The people on the trains are of the sort that might be called for lack of a more definite classification, nice people. They give over to make room for those who come late, they lend their programs about, and take it for granted that all present must be either Yales or Harvards or their cousins or their aunts, and therefore people whom it is quite all right to know.

Yale Keeps It Up.

Some of the yachts wore chevrons on their stacks, reminiscent of service as auxiliaries in the war. J. P. Morgan's new Corsair, black with gilt surfaces along the figurehead and 343 feet over all, did not come up the stream for the race, but stood off somewhere below the bridge with the master's colors, a broad square Harvard banner, mounting a big white H, stretched between her masts.

Going into the third mile too far ahead for competitive interest, the Yale crew maintained a beat of 32 to 33 strokes, driving down river in the hope of leaving a record behind them. They kept pumping at this rate to the end with the yachts whooping down the last mile but there was no great excitement. If Harvard had won that would have been news.

Harvard won the freshmen and junior varsity two mile races in the morning. It would have been a very glum day for Yale if the varsity race had gone the same way, remembering that Harvard won the football game last fall and the track meet last spring and tied Yale in baseball last week.

Jones Shoots Record 291 to Win British Open Crown

miracle could stop him, and Compston almost performed that miracle until his collapse on the afternoon round. It nearly happened again when Bobby took seven on the eighth hole this afternoon, giving Diegel and Smith a chance.

He was around this morning in 74 after playing the thirty-six holes in the two previous days in two under 4s for a total of 142. He had only one 6 going out this morning, and otherwise he played perfect golf.

Gets 74 in Morning.

He took a four getting on the third green this morning, played 4s and 3s to the turn, and was out in 37. Coming in he took a birdie 3 on the tenth after reaching the green in two and holing a long putt. Then he played 3s on the short eleventh and thirteenth, and went to two under 4s. The next four long holes stopped him, however, and he had 5s until he reached the eighteenth. He was bunkered on the fifteenth and short with his approaches on the sixteenth and seventeenth. He holed the eighteenth in 4 and finished with 74.

The round this afternoon was spotted with brilliant golf and tragic mistakes, every one of which might have given the championship to somebody else.

He had a par four on the first, and a phenomenal three at the second. His drive was bunkered 170 yards from the pin, but he pitched to 30 feet off and then holed a difficult putt, going one under fours. He took three putts on the third, going to even fours.

Takes 7 on Eighth.

With three consecutive fours and a three at the short seventh he went to the eighth with a chance of turning in 35. But that was his one bad hole of the entire tournament and he got the only seven he has taken in championship play in England this summer. The green was at the top of a high mound. His brassie shot fell off to the left and rolled down the slope. His mashie pitch sloughed and he had to approach twice before he reached the green, and then was 30 feet from the cup.

He putted carefully but the ball wandered to the right and stopped 12 inches beyond the cup. It seemed an easy putt for six, but the ball trickled past the hole and stopped six inches away. Bobby then tapped it in.

He finished with a four at the ninth and was out in 38, but he never had possession of his game until the last few holes. His recovery came after fours on the short 11th and 13th. His iron shot bounced off the green at the 14th and lay 40 feet from the pin, but he pitched to within five feet of the cup and holed out for a birdie. He played a five on the 15th, where he took three putts, but he recovered admirably on the 16th.

It is the longest hole on the course, and Bobby's second shot was bunkered at the edge of the green. Standing with one foot in the sand and his left knee on the ledge of the trap, he made a great pitch which missed the hole by an inch and rolled two feet past. He holed that and then played the 17th and 18th in fours, as the word came back that Compston had blown up, but that Diegel and MacDonald Smith were shooting hard at his score.

Diegel finished the morning with 71 for a three round total of 218. He was then in third place, two strokes behind Jones. He scored that by careful putting, sinking long ones all the way around. He had a birdie three at the second with a long putt, and another on the ninth, and with only one five he was out in 33. He was back in 38 after a six on the 14th and two fives.

He was trying too hard, however, and did this afternoon's 18 holes even with Jones in 75.

Mac Smith Takes 75.

MacDonald Smith played a 75 on his morning round, and was then in sixth place with 223. He was out in par 36 and was back to the 14th two under fours. He had to have 13 strokes on the next five holes to tie Jones, but spoiled his chances by a five on the next hole. He played four fours thereafter.

Compston's short lived threat was accomplished with a morning card in which he was out in 34 and back in the same count. He had six on the fifth, but played a birdie three on the second, another birdie with two on the fourth and a par three on the seventh, which gave him his 34. He had a six coming back at the 10th, where he rimmed the cup with his putt, but a birdie three at the tenth, a par three at the eleventh and another birdie three at the twelfth and two at the short thirteenth brought him seven under fours.

Horton Smith, who was seventh at noon, climbed to fourth this afternoon with a round of 73.

Jim Barnes, who was fourth at noon, dropped to sixth by playing 77 this afternoon. He won the title in 1925.

Don Moe, the youngest member of the American Walker cup team, finished first among the amateurs, barring Jones, with 303, playing well. He had a total of 223 at noon, but cracked during the matinee for 80.

F. C. Stevens of Los Angeles withdrew from the tourney this morning.

Cubs Gain on Robins; Beat Braves, 7 to 3

pions subsisted on a diet of singles, thereby padding their lead with one in the fourth and two in the seventh. At the same time they were fielding skillfully behind Malone.

Teachout and Osborn will handle the double header today unless the Cubs should lose the opener. In that event Root will be summoned for the nightcap. Smith and Zachary are likely candidates for the Braves.

Cantwell wasn't long in learning that there was trouble just ahead. The first ball he pitched was coined into a single by Blair. Three strikes blasted whatever hopes English might have had. Cuyler then maneuvered around the plate until the count became 2 and 2, whereupon he peeled off his four base combination, the ball coming down among the four bit customers in right. This profitable knock induced both Wilson and Stephenson to smash balls of considerable length, but both sailed straight into outstretched hands.

Wilson Robs Berger of Hit.

Before surrendering his first run, Malone enjoyed two rounds in which first base wasn't soiled by the presence of a hostile. The perfect string was severed by Richbourg, who opened the third with a line single to right. Malone bagged the next two batters, but couldn't fool Welsh, who tripled to the right field corner, Richbourg scoring. After this there were no more hits off Malone until Maranville wasted a triple with two out in the sixth. In between these slight outbursts Wilson staged a great running catch which robbed Berger of a safe blow on a short fly in the fourth.

It was lucky for Cantwell that he started giving away passes after and not before English's home run clout in the third. Otherwise the damage might have been far more extensive than two runs. A single by Blair set this episode in motion. He moved down to second on a wild pitch and jogged the remainder of the distance on English's four base slap. This too went into the right field seats. Then Cuyler drew a pass. He stole second and went to third on Spohrer's bad throw after Wilson had popped out. Stephenson also walked, but Sisler smothered a hard grounder by Grimm, and that ended the session.

A Cub run in the fourth, making the count 5 and 1, was mainly a contribution. With one out Beck bounced a single over the pitcher's head and was sent to second on Malone's infield out. Cantwell suddenly lost his aim and walked Blair and English to load the bases. Cuyler's roller was fumbled by Chatham, giving Beck the opportunity to score. This gave Wilson the chance to do something heroic with a full house, but he lined to Welsh in center.

Berger drove his first home run over the left field fence to start the seventh, and this probably was the thing that inspired the Cubs to step out and grab two more for themselves in their half. Singles by Wilson and Stephenson started this rally. After Grimm had been retired for the second out, Hartnett was purposely passed. The idea was to make Beck the victim. Instead, Beck singled to center, driving in two of his waiting mates.

Berger's second homer was the only stirring incident thereafter. The ball bounced against the bricks in the left field corner and was just about to drop behind the low fence in front of the boxes when Stephenson reached in to grab it.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: With champion boxers getting $177,600 for battles of four rounds ending in a foul, I feel those old time fighters who actually fought must be turning over in their graves. In contrast, consider those bouts we had in McGurn's handball court at Division and Chatham court, where Harry Gilmore conducted weekly shows.

Of course you know handball courts are rather narrow. If the visiting boxer was not on to this, the home boy would work him to the side of the ring and then plant his two or four ounce glove against the other chap's map. In this case the visitor got two socks, one from the glove and another when his head rocked back against the brick side wall. Often such a blow ended the bout.

We kids often appeared in preliminaries of three rounds and received 50 cents for our efforts. We had to fight, too, or the 50 cent customers would climb over the ropes and chase us out.

Con Doyle once fought there with both eyes actually closed, groping around to get one more punch at Pete Boyle from back o' the yards. From this neighborhood came such fighters as Champion Jimmy Barry, Frank Garrard, now a mail carrier; the original Tommy White, and others who achieved ring reputations. That was when fighters fought.

VATICAN CHARGES BRITON IS CAUSE OF ROW IN MALTA

Reply to London Assails Lord Strickland.

VATICAN CITY, June 20.—(AP)—Lord Strickland, premier of Malta, on whose life an attempt was made recently, today was charged in a Vatican "white paper" with the onus of all religious difficulties in the island of Malta.

The white paper, which will be made public tomorrow, indicates to the British government that it must deal with Lord Strickland if it would solve the problems concerning which Great Britain recently issued a "blue book."

"Posed as Good Catholic."

Lord Strickland, who arrived in London on June 16 for a conference on the Malta political situation, is charged with taking "the attitude of a good Catholic before the people, declaring himself persona grata at the holy see, while at the same time continuing his work of opposition to the bishops and clergy."

"Regarding the electoral truce proposed by the British government, according to which the holy see would prevent the clergy from taking part in elections and from proposing its own candidates, while on the other hand Lord Strickland pledged himself—individually and insofar as possible—to prevent a renewal of polemics before and during elections, Cardinal Secretary of State Pacelli declares in the white book that he would not accept this because, on the one hand, Lord Strickland only gave a promise that was temporary and hedged it with reservations.

Refuses to Intervene.

"The holy see declares it could not intervene to deprive Maltese clergy of their rights, accorded them by the constitution of the island, which provides even that they have a fixed representation of two places in the senate," says the paper.

"Bishops, according to the paper, are fulfilling their duty when they declare to the faithful the obligation they are under not to support by votes any one engaged in activity harmful to religion."

Report Ministry Resigns.

LONDON, June 20.—(AP)—Exchange Telegraph dispatches from Malta this evening reported that the constitution had been suspended and the ministry had resigned. They were not confirmed by other sources.

RONGETTI JURY TAKES 2 VOTES, BUT NO VERDICT

Reported as standing seven to five for a verdict of not guilty, a jury deciding the fate of Dr. Amante Rongetti was locked up last night after taking two ballots. Rongetti is on trial for his life for the alleged murder by abortion of Mrs. Elizabeth Palombo of Bellwood. A similar charge of which the physician was found guilty is now being appealed. He was sentenced to death in the electric chair, but the sentence later changed to life imprisonment on a charge of manslaughter.

Regent, N. D., June 20.—(AP)—Clifford Paranto, 23, and Thomas Kapacinski, 21, were killed today when the airplane they were flying to Dickinson crashed on the prairie six miles north of here. A stalled motor is believed to have caused the ship to whirl into a tail spin.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Full Speed Ahead

SOUTH RUSSIAN COSSACKS REBEL; MASSACRE REDS

Moscow Sends Army to End Disorders.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, June 20.—The Moscow Pravda reports that the Red army, which has been cooperating with the cheka on punitive expeditions, has been trying for the last six months to restore order in the northern Caucasus where Mohammedan Cossacks and mountaineers are waging a war against the communists. By wrecking trains, raiding towns, and massacring Red officials the natives have brought on heavy reprisals on the part of the government.

Civil war has plunged all the districts between the Don river and the Caspian sea into famine, says the paper, causing thousands of inhabitants, including German and Jewish colonists, to try to escape to Persia, where the frontier is heavily guarded by Red troops.

Other serious disorders are reported from Siberia, but few details have reached the Moscow press. Siberian newspapers, which formerly were received in Riga, arrive no longer.

The Moscow press reports daily cases of death from starvation in the streets of Moscow, Leningrad, Kharkov, and other cities. The curtailment of rations continues and the government is hoping that adequate food supplies may be acquired by the latter part of the summer. It is thought that the program of having 20 meatless days per month will continue until next year.

PIRATES LOOT SHIP; MURDER 3 AND KIDNAP 40

HONGKONG, June 20.—(AP)—Pirates boarded a Chinese steamship in the Pearl river delta today, killing three men and looting the cargo.

Disguised as Nationalist government army officers, nine passengers suddenly overpowered the armed guard, shooting those who resisted. Three guards were killed ruthlessly and the ship ordered hove to. A launch dashed alongside and a robber horde swarmed aboard, looting the vessel.

Taking forty Chinese passengers and most of the cargo with them, the pirates made off with the launch among the numerous islands of the delta. The passengers will be held for ransom.

OHIOAN, OFFICER IN NICARAGUAN GUARD, IS KILLED

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, June 20.—(AP)—Headquarters of the Nicaraguan national guard announced today that Lieut. Albert Andrew Budai was fatally stabbed by a Nicaraguan Wednesday night in Matagalpa. Lieut. Budai was a sergeant in the United States marine corps before he entered the Nicaraguan guard. His residence was listed as Wauseon, O., and his next of kin as Mrs. Teresa Budai of Wauseon.

Guard headquarters also reported that at least eight insurgents were killed yesterday by marine airplanes which dropped 58 bombs on an insurgent nest. The bodies of the eight were seen from the air.

In another engagement two guard patrols, officered by Capt. Russell and Lieut. Pilcher, surprised an insurgent stronghold on the hill north of Jinotega yesterday, routing between 100 and 150 from the place. Two guardsmen were wounded.

BANDITS BREAK UP CARD GAME; ROB 3 WOMEN

Two young gunmen broke up a card game and robbed three women of $210 in money and jewelry after forcing their way into the home of Mrs. Selma Abrahamson at 5721 North Kimball avenue last night.

After gaining entrance by representing themselves as messenger boys, the bandits drew revolvers and lined up Mrs. Abrahamson and five guests along a wall. From Mrs. Abrahamson they took $5 and a ring valued at $50. Mrs. Dorothy Lebenson, 4800 North Springfield avenue, lost a diamond ring valued at $150, and Mrs. Lillian Becker, 1527 South Clifton avenue, lost $5.

Then without searching the other three guests, the robbers fled, warning their victims against an outcry as they went.

NEWLY ELECTED INDIANA G. A. R. HEAD IS DEAD

Noblesville, Ind., June 20.—[Special.]—Dr. Isaac B. Austin, aged 86, who was chosen department commander of the G. A. R. at the state encampment held last week at Wabash, died here today from pneumonia resulting from a cold which he contracted during his campaign for the commandership. The funeral will be held here Sunday afternoon and will be attended by the G. A. R. leaders of the state.

Funeral Services Held for Dr. G. C. Hall, Negro Leader

Funeral services were held yesterday for Dr. George Cleveland Hall, 65 years old, nationally known Negro leader, who died Tuesday at his home at 3638 South Park way. Friends crowded Grace Presbyterian church at 36th street and Vincennes avenue for the services. Among them were Miss Mary E. McDowell of the University settlement, Dr. F. E. Thornton, a former college mate; Dr. William Hallock Johnson, president of Lincoln university, where Dr. Hall was graduated, and Admiral N. J. Blackwood, superintendent of Provident hospital, of which Dr. Hall was chief of staff.

Reichstag Deputies Made to Wear Coats Despite Heat

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 20.—Heat waves cannot be allowed to interfere with the dignity of the reichstag, and its vice president decreed today that members may not speak with their coats off despite the fact that the city has been sweltering in the hottest June in 13 years. A couple of days ago a communist member, Masiowski, addressed a, for once, sympathetic house in his shirt sleeves. There were many imitators until somebody brought up the question of "dignity."

Col. Nelson Morris Back from France; "Still Wed"

Col. Nelson Morris has returned to Chicago after living for a year in France where he was involved in legal difficulties with his wife, Jeanne Aubert, French stage star. The colonel, who flew to Europe on the Graf Zeppelin last year, said yesterday that he was still married, despite divorce proceedings. Col. Morris finds business conditions here, comparatively speaking, worse than in France. He attributes this to the fact that the French are not used to American standards of living.

LIFE IN CELL FOR MAN WHO KILLED NEW SON-IN-LAW

Rockford, Ill., June 20.—(AP)—John Pokosa, who slew his son in law because the latter had married his daughter over his protest, tonight faced a life sentence in the state penitentiary. A jury convicted him today of murder.

Pokosa shot Gordon Saaf, the son in law, in the back when Saaf and his bride of six days, Estelle, his daughter, went to Pokosa's home to get her belongings. Pokosa had objected to the match because of religious differences, but on April 29 last Estelle and Saaf had eloped. They returned May 4, the day the shooting occurred.

The widowed bride was not in the courtroom when the verdict was read. The only time she has seen her father since the shooting was when she testified during the trial. Even then, she did not speak to him and glanced only once in his direction.

GRANT BAR PLEA AGAINST LAWYERS IN CANAL CASE

The Supreme court yesterday granted the Chicago Bar association the right to file information against 56 attorneys, members of the sanitary district law department during the period involved in the pay roll scandal. The permission was asked last Tuesday when the association charged the lawyers with "unprofessional and dishonorable conduct" and asked the court to take "any action it should deem fit to uphold the standards of the legal profession." No demand for disbarment was made.

The decision of the court is expected to open a bitter legal battle, as all of the lawyers named met recently under the leadership of Maclay Hoyne and Hector Brouillett, both former chief attorneys for the district, and agreed to fight the charges.

SUPREME COURT REVERSES SELF IN BAIL DECISION

The Supreme court yesterday ruled that the county board has the power to accept compromise payments in bail bond cases where defendants have jumped bonds. The decision reverses an earlier opinion by the court on the same question.

The decision was given in a case in which the county board agreed to accept $100 in cash to settle a forfeiture of $5,000 against Abraham Marcus. State's Attorney Swanson refused to accept the small settlement and declared the law giving the county board the right to settle such claims was unconstitutional.

The decision will permit county boards and county supervisors to make any settlements they see fit in cases where bonds have been forfeited and judgments entered.

HOPS AT N. Y. FOR NO STOP FLIGHT TO MEXICO CITY

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 21.—(AP)—Col. Roberto Fierro of the Mexican army air service and his mechanic, Arnulfo Cortes, took off at 1:30:15 [Chicago daylight time] today on a nonstop flight to Mexico City.

Fierro expected to make the 2,200 mile flight in sixteen hours. A nonstop flight between New York and Mexico City has never been made. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh made a nonstop flight from Washington to Mexico City in 1927.

Col. Fierro's plane is a Lockheed-Sirius, similar to the one in which Col. Lindbergh recently established a transcontinental record. The plane carried 475 gallons of gasoline and 27½ gallons of oil.

2,596,154 LIVE IN BROOKLYN; 287,728 DROP DENVER IN RANK

New York, June 20.—(AP)—Brooklyn, New York's borough of homes and churches, has a population of 2,596,154, an increase of 28.6 per cent in the last ten years.

The final figures for the most populous of New York's five boroughs were announced today by Leo Doherty, chairman of the census supervisors in the borough. The population in 1920 was 2,018,356.

The increase was higher than had been estimated.

Denver Drops Three Places.

Washington, D. C., June 20.—(AP)—Denver, metropolis of the Rockies, lost by several spots in the census lineup this year. Though its 287,728 population was an increase by 12 per cent over the 1929 count, the city was passed by Louisville, Ky., 307,803; Toledo, O., 290,787, and Houston, Tex., 289,428.

Revised figures for Columbus, O., show a population of 289,056, an increase of 52,025 or 22 per cent.

ILLINOIS CENSUS SHOWS 7,630,283; LAST COUNTY IN

The population of Illinois yesterday was computed to be 7,630,283, after the census figures for Henry county, the last of Illinois' 102 counties, were added to the state total. Henry county showed a population of 43,626, a decrease of 1,536 since 1920. A recent estimate, with three counties missing, set the state's population at 7,640,000.

The trend of population toward metropolitan centers was apparent in the census returns. The increases in the five counties which comprise the Chicago metropolitan area exceeded the increases in any other counties. Major increases were shown in counties containing the larger cities. While these cities showed substantial increases, 61 counties, most of them without important population centers, showed decreases.

BOY HAS AN EVEN CHANCE AGAINST MYSTERY DISEASE

The condition of Kenneth McKittrick, 8 years old, dangerously ill in the county hospital with a mysterious disease which took the lives of four other children in his family this week, was little changed yesterday.

The boy suffered a relapse shortly before midnight Thursday night and was given a second transfusion of blood supplied by his father, Benjamin McKittrick, 2431 West Lexington street.

Physicians at the hospital said last night that Kenneth still had an even chance to recover. Mrs. McKittrick was prostrated with grief, it was reported.

James Kilcourse, chief food inspector of the city health department, said yesterday that a rat caught in the McKittrick flat was being examined in the department laboratory in an effort to find typhoid or other bacilli which might have caused the children's illness.

TREND TO EASIER MONEY MOVES ON WESTWARD

Chicago Rediscount Cut to 3½ Pct.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The tendency toward easier money moved westward yesterday. Directors of the Chicago federal reserve bank reduced the rediscount rate from 4 to 3½ per cent, thus following the action of the New York institution Thursday in reducing its rate from 3 to 2½ per cent.

The change in Chicago was influenced by both the fact that open market money rates have eased and also because the Chicago reserve rate was 1½ per cent above the New York rate. It is to be noted, however, that the Chicago rate is still a full 1 per cent higher than the New York rate, whereas a few years ago a differential of half of 1 per cent was regarded as logical.

But Chicago financiers have generally held more conservative ideas on stock market speculation than their New York confreres and have been less ready to impose money rates that might foster inflation. The majority of the federal reserve banks still are maintaining the 4 per cent rate, although some of them are expected to make reductions now that the movement has spread westward.

German Reduction.

Recognizing the world-wide ease in money, the German reichsbank also reduced its discount rate from 4½ to 4 per cent, which is the lowest rate since July 31, 1914, at the outbreak of the world war.

Cheerful news from the major industries is rare these days; therefore an optimistic statement on the packing business by F. Edson White, president of Armour & Co., is refreshing.

"The packing house business in general continues on a sound basis, apparently affected very little by the stock market situation," he said yesterday. "Results for the first half of the fiscal year are about on a par with those for the first half of last year, while prospects for the second half are better than they were a year ago.

"A large volume of beef business is in prospect for the rest of the year. Cattle receipts and beef supplies appear to be definitely on the upgrade and this indicates that we will have increased tonnage to handle and that the increase will be reflected in broader consumption and lower prices than have been the case for some years. The number of cattle fattened during the winter and spring showed a marked increase over any year in the last five. Average wholesale prices are fully four cents a pound below a year ago."

Lull in Business.

Continued quietness in trade and industry is reported by the weekly mercantile reviews.

"What is traditionally the dullest season of the year is being entered on now after another week of depression in stocks and commodity markets," Dun's review says. "A decisive and general trade recovery plainly remains in abeyance and the opening of summer, while it may be stimulating in certain lines, is calculated to have the usual influence of repressing most industrial activities."

The Business Week reported that its "business thermometer" now stands at 88.7 per cent, compared with 90.5 per cent last week and 109.1 per cent a year ago.

Business failures this week totaled 427, compared with 489 last week, 485 two weeks ago and 427 a year ago. Fewer defaults occurred this week in the east and on the Pacific coast, but there were more in the west and south.

Some improvement in the construction industry has appeared this week. Contracts awarded for heavy construction and engineering projects totaled $70,266,000, according to the Engineering News-Record. This compares with $63,030,000 in the preceding week and $66,341,000 a year ago.

Collapse in Wheat Sets Record Low

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Bullish news had comparatively little effect on the wheat market except for a brief period early. All deliveries of wheat and rye dropped to a new low for the season, the feature being the lack of support on the way down.

Wheat closed at net losses of 2¼@2¾c, July selling down to 93¾c and closing at the bottom with September 96½@96⅝c. Kansas City is commencing to feel the effect of hedging pressure against new wheat and dropped 2¼@3½c for the day with July leading, the latter finishing at 86½c. Prices in both the Chicago and Kansas City markets are about 18c lower than at this season a year ago.

A Canadian government crop summary suggesting that the Alberta crop was about in the same condition as last year with less reserve moisture, while Saskatchewan needed a remarkable combination of rain and warmth to produce an average wheat yield, had some effect in all markets at the start, but buyers were scarce after opening orders had been filled, and Winnipeg broke and closed 1⅞@2¼c lower at the inside figures of the season with rains reported in the west. Light rain has fallen at Calgary for over 24 hours.

Say Grain Trade Strangled.

Failure of wheat to respond to bullish news is generally regarded by some of the grain traders to be a reflection of the entrance of the government into the market. As they see it, speculation has been strangled, and even cash interests are not inclined to operate freely, not knowing what the government will do from one day to another.

The crushing weight of a carryover of around 270,000,000 bu of old grain on hand when the movement of the new winter wheat crop is getting under way, combined with a lack of sustained foreign demand, keeps sentiment decidedly bearish, and the action of the stock market in breaking sharply has also had some effect.

Either confidence must be restored or still lower wheat prices will be witnessed, is the way many traders put it. Winnipeg interests sent reports during the day that the carryover in Canada this season would be equal to that of last year, although supplies in Europe promised to be smaller. There were no export sales of consequence reported during the day. Around 11 cars of new wheat were claimed at Kansas markets during the day with a car of new No. 3 hard sold at Kansas City at 85c.

Reports showing that Alberta and Saskatchewan had received only about as much rain since April 1 as during the same period last year and far below the 10 year average had no effect on the wheat market. Liverpool closed ⅝@¾d lower with pressure of hard winters a factor.

Corn Nears Season's Low.

Corn was firm early, but weakened later on local selling induced by the weakness in wheat and all deliveries sold within a fraction of the lowest figures of the season. Closing trades were at net losses of ¾@1c with July, 75¼@75⅝, and September, 74½@74⅝. There was some selling of July by cash interests while shorts continue to cover in the nearby month. Outside markets outbid Chicago 1¼@2¼c for cash corn in the country Thursday night.

Cash interests and longs were on the selling side of oats, with the northwest selling December, and the finish was ⅜c lower with July, 35⅞c and September, 36⅞c, prices being within a fraction of the lowest figures of the crop year to date.

Rye showed independent strength early, but later reversed its action and closed 2¾@3c lower with July, 48⅛c and September, 52½c.

ADVISES STERN REMEDIES FOR CHICAGO REALTY

Boysen Urges Plan to Refinance.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Basically Chicago real estate is as sound as it ever was, and all that is needed to clear up the momentary sick situation in certain of its branches is the administration of stern remedies, according to the opinion expressed in the first message of Louis K. Boysen, new president of the Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association, to fellow members. Mr. Boysen, vice president of the First Union Trust and Savings bank and one of the city's leading realty authorities, entitles his message "Restoring Confidence in Chicago Real Estate."

L. K. BOYSEN. [U. & U. Photo.]

The remedies suggested by Mr. Boysen include, among others, the following: Refinancing of defaulted real estate bond issues on a conservative basis, with Chicago banks taking the lead; modernization of the Illinois foreclosure laws and the changing of the tax system to relieve the pressure on real estate.

Draws Analogy.

In opening his message Mr. Boysen finds the situation existing in Chicago in the past few years analogous to that in Iowa after the war when farm products prices were deflated and the value of acreage dropped. Chicago, riding on a long wave of prosperity, overbuilt, and when troubled times came structures erected on a basis of the peak period demand and rentals found themselves in difficulties.

"Practically all our grief in real estate bonds is directly due to excessive loans on fallacious appraisals," Mr. Boysen says. "Irrespective of adverse conditions that have arisen in Chicago, many of these bond issues were bound to fail anyway. Many of the issues were ill conceived and represented 100 per cent of the cost. As early as 1927 such bond issues, particularly on furnished apartments and hotels, began to show a decided weakness. Several of the larger mortgage houses began supporting their bond issues by advancing the interest and principal. This was the general policy until in the spring of 1929 several houses found it impossible to continue this practice.

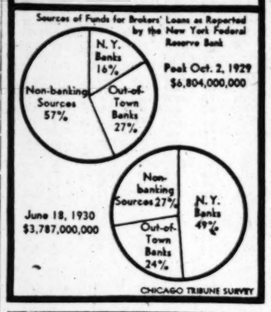
Chicago Overbuilt.

"Chicago is overbuilt with every kind of building. We have 4,451,000 square feet of vacant office space, or 17.67 per cent of the total office space in the city. In proportion to its area, Chicago has more vacant store space than in any other city in the country. It is estimated that certain types of real estate bond houses in Chicago have over $250,000,000 of real estate bonds in default.

"There is nothing wrong with well secured real estate bond issues. In fact, there are thousands of issues that are good investments. The trouble that has arisen on the excessive loans has to a great extent destroyed the normal real estate bond market. That is because the majority of the investing public never seem able to discriminate between the good and the bad.

"It seems to me that the remedy is in smoking out all the issues in default which are bound to continue sick without a major operation. In all these cases the bondholders should get together with the equity owner and other claimants, form a new building corporation and either secure a life insurance loan or take new bonds in exchange for the old for an amount that the property can properly absorb. The balance of the investment should be paid for in preferred stock and subsequent claimants be required to take common stock for their adjusted claims. Management should be in competent hands."

New York Banks Are Now the Principal Source of Brokers' Loans



BOND MART RESPONDS QUICKLY TO SLASH IN REDISCOUNT RATE

New York, June 20.—(AP)—Fixed income bearing securities made a quick and strong response today to the reduction of the New York federal reserve rediscount rate to the lowest point in history.

Under the leadership of United States governments, which broke through the previous year's high prices, all grades of prime investment issues moved upward. Prime rail issues showed the greatest vitality as banks, life insurance companies, and investment trusts displayed renewed interest in the yields available on high grade bonds at prevailing money rates.

The average showed that railroad bonds gained four-tenths of a point, representing the largest rise in a day's trading in several months. The rails now are seven-tenths of a point under the year's high, established in March.

The reduction of the federal reserve rate to 2½ per cent from 3 was seen as a measure designed to end the dormant state of the bond market and to give assurance that the cheapest credit in many years probably would continue throughout the summer.

American Institute of Banking Selects Pittsburgh

Denver, Colo., June 20.—(AP)—Pittsburgh today was selected for the 1931 convention of the American Institute of Banking. Ben B. Aley, Denver, was elected president of the institute.

Warns of Public Concern in Branch Banking Trend

BY SCRUTATOR.

Whether those who are responsible for the most striking trends in American banking today have given proper atention to the unfavorable attitude that may be taken to their work in future by the public may well be doubted.

The trend is toward the combination of banking resources and power into large institutions with branches, orl nto groups and chains of institutions with some for mof unified control. The result that naturally follows is a lessening of the aggregate strength of the unit controlled banks.

Bankers of the old school and even some who could not be put in that category see disturbing possibilities inherent in the rise of the chains, the groups, and the branches.

That Monopoly Bogy.

Monopoly of money power has been through all American history a bogy man. Fear of it nearly a hundred years ago enabled Andrew Jackson to wreck the central bank that promised most in the way of stabilized currency. The same fear has been operative in aggravated form many times since, with most of the criticism falling on Wall street or the "money power."

Recent years have formed a period when the distrust, so far as the public generally is concerned, has been quiescent. The people have not been obsessed with the belief that their bankers were trying to monopolize money or to make them economic slaves. It may be that a shift back to dislike for banking grown too big is coming. A statement this week by Rudolf S. Hecht, chairman of the economic policy committee of the American Bankers' association, is illustrative:

"We hear murmurings and fears and doubts whether the changes coming about in banking constitute the looming of a new financial menace, a monopolistic threat not only to the individual unit banker, but to the financial liberty of society."

Advises Extreme Care.

Mr. Hecht added that he was not expressing sympathy for such a viewpoint, but stating the facts which could not be ignored. He recommended that the creation of actual or apparent monopolies and local exploitation be avoided and extreme care be taken in any form of combination banking to reassure the public about intentions and powers.

Federal reserve figures show that 25 per cent of all American banking facilities are now in groups, chains, or branch systems, and that more than half of total loans and investments of fifty-eight billions are held by the multiple banks. So far the grouped banks have not eliminated competition any more than the chain stores have. They compete among themselves and with the unit houses. Still, a survey among customers of newly formed groups, made by the Illinois Bankers' association recently, showed a large majority favoring retention of or a return to the independent institution.

The Illinois bankers are to hold their annual convention at Peoria next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Their economic policy committee has recommended that the present defense of the unit banking system against all others be maintained. The same committee has found that the members are opposed to "trade area" branch banking, as suggested by Controller of the Currency Pole. From the office of the association in Chicago comes information that still stronger opposition to combination banking may be voiced at Peoria.

LEADING STOCKS ON N. Y. CURB GET LITTLE SUPPORT

New York, June 20.—(AP)—It was sloppy weather on the curb market again today, after Thursday's brief interval of sunshine. Trading was comparatively quiet, and leading stocks showed little support. Total sales barely exceeded 1,000,000 shares.

Aluminum company, in which the market is normally thin, tumbled 45 points to 210, a new 1930 low, 146 points from the year's best level. The stock broke on a few sales, the decline apparently reflecting merely an absence of bids.

The utilities were again heavily sold. Electric Bond and Share dropped 4 points, to within 3 of its recent low, and American Gas lost nearly as much.

Elect William A. Jones Head of Elect. Light Assn.

San Francisco, Cal., June 20.—(AP)—William A. Jones, vice president of the Cities Service company, New York, today was elected president of the National Electric Light association at its fifty-third annual convention. The 1931 convention city will not be determined here, but it was understood Atlantic City would be the choice and the date June 8 to 12. Jones succeeds Matthew S. Sloan, New York.

BY FRED HARVEY.

New York, June 20.—For no sound reason that anybody could quite make out, the stock market indulged itself in another bad sinking spell today. Values were lopped off from 2 to 14 points, completely erasing Thursday's much touted gains in most cases and extending the decline in virtually every group of the list.

Except for the last hour, when the bears got rather rambunctious with their selling orders, the new decline was a well behaved affair, the day's sales amounting to only 3,656,470 shares.

U. S. Steel Off 3.

United States Steel closed at 158, off 3; Bethlehem Steel, 80, off 3½; Radio, 36, off 2½; American Can, 116, off 5½; American Telephone, 206⅝, off 2⅞; Westinghouse, 133½, off 7; Worthington Pump, 124¼, off 2⅜; General Electric, 69⅞, off 1⅝; Electric Power and Light, 63¾, off 4⅝; Kennecott, 38⅝, off 1⅛; Hudson, 29½, off 1⅝.

Among the sharper losses were Case Threshing Machine, off 14; Eastman Kodak, down 12⅜; Allied Chemical and Dye, 12; and American Rolling Mills, 7¾ points.

By all the rules of the game, the market should have gone on forward today. It had the advantage of some of the easiest money rates ever known, the federal rediscount rate having been dropped to an all-time record low of 2½ per cent and the time rates dipping accordingly. It had stimulus of a $211,000,000 cut in brokers' loans for the week announced overnight. There was some good trade news in the old oaken budget. Finally there was a brokerage house move to reduce margain accounts and thus make it easier for the boys with speculative bents.

Its tormentors got on the job and stayed late. Opening prices were gen-

Chicago Stock List Losses Are Moderate.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Prices receded moderately yesterday in a rather listless trading session on the Chicago exchange. Sales volume amounted to less than 300,000 shares. Net losses in most instances did not exceed 2 points and in the case of many of the popular issues were not over a point.

The news of the day seemed to have little influence one way or the other on the market. That the action of the New York Reserve bank in reducing its rediscount to the lowest figure in the history of the reserve system can have little immediate effect in bolstering security prices seemed the consensus of most speculators.

Designed to stimulate business recovery the bank's action was of small interest to most operators who are more interested in what stocks are going to do tomorrow and next week than some time in the "distant" future like August or September.

Refund Aids Stock.

News from Washington of another tax refund to Libby, McNeill & Co. of $3,700,000 did help the company's stock move up a point or so, but Swift & Co. shares failed to respond to a similar announcement.

An odd lot sale in Addressograph International corporation shares was made 30¾, 2¾ under Thursday's close. A dispatch from New York yesterday said that Joseph S. Duncan, inventor of the addressograph, in testifying in the accounting suit brought by Joseph Harris of Chicago against Perley Morse, stated that before he sold his half of the Addressograph stock to Morse and his associates, the option he had given Harris had expired. Harris is suing for profits amounting to $3,000,000, alleging he had partnership relations with Morse. A suit brought against the estate of John B. Russell, partner of Morse, is pending in Pennsylvania.

Net losses among the industrial stocks of two points or so were sustained by U. S. Gypsum, Electric Household, and Majestic. Marshall Field found its way to a new low of 37. Utility stocks moved within a narrower range and with the exception of Missouri, Kansas and North American Light losses were less than a point.

Auburn Off 9¾ Points.

Grigsby was off a fraction at the close after selling below 17 and above 18 during the day. Motors were moderately lower as a group. Auburn suffered another sinking spell finishing the day off 9¾ points at 104.

Earnings of the Abbott Laboratories for the five months ended May 31 amounted to $201,160, equivalent to $1.87 a share on common shares as compared with $196,070 of $1.62 a share in the corresponding period of 1929.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Fox Film Reports.

In the past it has been rather dangerous to accept the earning estimates of Fox Film which have been circulated in the financial district. Conditions may or may not have changed of late. At any rate, reports now have it that the company's profits so far in the second quarter have been running about 25 per cent ahead of those of last year.

Diamond Match Melon?

It was reported yesterday that the management of the Diamond Match company will recommend the distribution of a rather juicy melon some time this year. The company has been making a lot of money and has been quite stingy with stockholders for several years. A large stock dividend, and even an additional extra in the way of cash, would not be out of line.

Absorbs Selling.

Swift International has proven its ability to absorb selling in weak markets without showing more than normal recessions. That is probably due to the fact that the stock has some investment following. Thus far in 1930 Swift International has been as high as 38¾ and as low as 30, with its present price some three points above the latter level.

STOCK MARKET AGAIN HAS A BAD SINKING SPELL

Prices Drop 2-14 Points in General Decline.

...ually better, gains ranging as high as ... points in one or two instances, but they began to sag and shortly before noon the whole list went into a slump. There were intermittent rallies during the afternoon, but they were always followed by new recessions, the whole market being a pretty wobbly affair. That came the last hour flop with most issues closing at or near their lows for the day.

Final figures showed an average loss of 4.36 points a share on the fifty representative stocks used in the compilation of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S market averages, with the 25 industrials of the same list off 7.72 and the 25 railroads 0.80 a share.

As usual, the clatter of declining prices was accompanied by a crescendo of pessimistic rumors, some of them obviously in the nature of old wives' tales put out from the bear camp and others just as probably with some basis of truth.

Here They Are.

There was a yarn to the effect that two brokerage houses were in trouble owing to the late turn of affairs marketwise. [It was only one when the market was in bad day before yesterday]. It was reported that Warner Brothers, lately leader in the amusement group, was shutting down some of its theaters and that the corporation's earnings would not amount to more than $1 a share. Fresh weakness in the commodity markets undoubtedly had a discouraging effect and, lastly, the market was very evidently without any of the boasted backing support which appeared in its behalf earlier in the week.

Incidentally, the street was very much interested in a suggestion coming from London that the present troubles of the stock market are due to a war between big bankers and speculators in connection with international loans. The bankers, so this report has it, are out to freeze out the "specs" and submitted that they [the bankers] "are said to be willing out." "The clearing out of big speculative positions," the cable went on to say, "has let loose very large surplus of credits which had already increased as a result of the failing off in trade."

It has been reported in Wall street for several days that banks were forcing the liquidation of speculative loans on a wholesale scale.

GREAT NORTHERN GETS INGRESS TO SAN FRANCISCO

Western Pacific Road Is Joint Beneficiary.

Washington, D. C., June 20.—(AP)—Conditional permission today was given the Great Northern and the Western Pacific railroad companies to construct new lines in northern California which will enable the Great Northern to extend its lines into San Francisco.

A part of the unusual interest attaching to the joint extension arises from the fact it will facilitate the Western Pacific in bringing a direct new transcontinental route into the San Francisco bay region, as well as allowing the Great Northern to reach down from the north to the same industrial and trade area.

Southern Pacific Opposes.

The extension was bitterly opposed by the Southern Pacific and the Union Pacific railroads, but the commission ruled that public convenience and necessity justified the construction. The condition attached was a requirement that the Great Northern should permit the Western Pacific to have reasonable joint use of a part of the new construction the company will undertake.

The construction program approved will result in the Great Northern railroad building 90 miles south from Klamath Falls, Ore., while the Western Pacific will build 110 miles north from a point on its main line in Lassen county, the two extensions to meet. The new line will aid in the development of a great timber area and some considerable agricultural areas in northern California.

Deny Advantages.

The Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, in opposing the extensions, estimated they would together lose at least $6,000,000 per year in gross revenue, and denied that any compensating advantages would be realized by the public.

Representatives of states and communities through most of the west supported the applications for the new construction. One of the points cited, in which witnesses of special military experience were called to make, was that the proposed line would create a protected north and south inland route parallel to the Pacific coast in time of war.

MONEY RATES LOWERED AFTER SLASH IN RATES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 20.—Most money rates were lower today following the reduction of the federal reserve rediscount charge to 2½ per cent, the lowest ever established by any bank in the federal reserve system and to a level with that of the Bank of France, the lowest in the world.

The move was generally hailed as an effort to stimulate a revival of buying, to thus contribute to a rebound from the business recession and to strengthen the bond market. The reserve board is understood to hold the opinion that the new rate is about the level which ought to promote purchases of commodities, but do not anticipate such results immediately.

Time loans were easier today with rates up to ninety days quoted as low as 2½ per cent as compared to 2¾ yesterday though there was still a range up to the latter figure. This was the lowest level seen since 1924. The market was weak.

Commercial paper was lower at 3¼ @3½ per cent for prime names and some paper was reported to have been sold at 3. Owing to a scarcity of commercial paper of any sort, the latter rate was not prevalent. Business in other good names at 3¾@4 per cent was reported picking up.

Bankers bills for 90 day maturities stood today at the lowest level ever recorded and equal to the low point of 1924, with discounts of 2⅛ bid and 2 per cent asked, making the yield to investors one-half of 1 per cent under the rediscount rate and the official call loan rate.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Liquidation by July holders of all grains, especially wheat, has encouraged a few of the largest operators to press the short side of that grain and increase the bearish feeling. The average operator can see nothing but bearishness, while the largest traders say that crop conditions on the whole are favoring good yields and predict lower levels. Conservative traders, however, are more disposed to limit their commitments on the short side.

A Chicago statistician estimates the Canadian crop summary as indicating 350,000,000 bu of spring wheat in the three western provinces. Last year they raised 274,000,000 bu, and in 1928 they set a record of 542,000,000 bu. A Winnipeg message to J. E. Bennett said that Canada has 135,000,000 bu of wheat left for export, with little chance of its being reduced, even to reasonable proportions, before the end of the crop season.

FOREIGNERS BUY LARD

Foreigners and packers were fair buyers of lard yesterday and there was fair scattered commission house liquidation. Prices advanced despite the lower grain and hog prices and lard closed 5c to 7½c higher on nearby deliveries and 10c up on December. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 3d higher.

Bellies were 2½c higher, with a little trading in July. Cash trade in meats was fair. Hog receipts at the west were larger than the previous week and last year. Prices follow:

BUTTER FUTURES HIGHER

An advance of ⅝c or $120 per car in November butter futures and of ½c in June contracts signalized the resumption of the forward movement on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. Increased consumption was inferred from a steady spot market notwithstanding reduced storings and increased receipts. Sales were 89 cars and receipts 19,102 tubs.

Retarded storage movement and smaller arrivals were responsible for an advance of ⅝c or $15 per car in November egg contracts. Sales were 24 cars and receipts 22,769 cases. Prices follow:

Estimated receipts at Chicago today, 500 cattle, 8,000 hogs, and 5,000 sheep.

Hog receipts Friday were liberal at 20,000 head and nearly twice as many as were on sale the previous Friday. For the first five days of this week supplies locally showed over 30,000 head increase over last week's supply. Consequently, prices have dropped sharply since the first of the week.

Yesterday's market was dull and weak to 10c lower and only 10c above the low spot last January. Best hogs sold at $9.85, compared with $9.95 Thursday and $10.40 last Monday. The average price for all hogs was $9.40, compared with an average of $9.95 early in the week.

Packing sows sold largely at $8.00@ 8.50 Friday and a week ago they sel- dom went below $9.00.

Cattle Losses.

Sharp losses in cattle values re- sulted in curtailing receipts for Fri- day's market. There were only 1,000 cattle on sale. Most of them consisted of rather plain quality stock and they found outlet slowly at the week's bot- tom levels.

Few steers were worth more than $10.00, although one lot of choice 1,199 lb beefs brought $11.25. Most of the butcher stock consisted of cows at $5.50@6.75 and heifers at $7.00@8.75. Thin canner and cutter cows sold at $3.50@4.50 and bologna bulls at $5.50@ 6.00 mostly.

The market has followed the same general trend that was evident on vir- tually all other commodities this week. New low levels since early in January, 1927, were scored and prices were not much above price levels of late in 1926. Since three weeks ago losses of $2.00 or more have been scored in the cattle market and 50@75c of that decline was registered this week.

Lambs Hold Steady.

Fridays market on fat lambs showed little net change with Thursday's, and prices were virtually in line with those of a week ago. Top native lambs sold at $12.00@12.25, but a wide spread prevailed and common grades sold well below $11.000. Most of the medium grades changed hands at $10.50@11.00, but plainer quality went at $9.25@10.00. Most culls were on a $7.75@8.50 basis.

Sheep receipts for the first five days this week at 44,000 head were about the same as last week's receipts, but demand for the dressed product was slow.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Spot butter and egg markets were somewhat unsettled, and showed an easy undertone. Live hens were un- changed to 1c lower and spring chick- ens 1c lower. Receipts, 3 cars by freight. Sacked potatoes were firmer on better grades, and barrels steady. Receipts, 74 cars, with 136 cars on track.

Clancy Attacks Bill.

The Wickersham commissi
ing and extending the fede

day by Representative Ro
Clancy [Rep., Mich.] as a re measure which will cause "a fierce indignation" in the states.

half dozen bills recommended

for the consolidation of the prohibition, customs, and imm forces, but also revises re dealing with movements of A citizens across the Canadian a

Mr. Clancy objected in part the wiping out of the provisio navigation laws exempting ya der 15 tons burden from cus
spection when they visited co countries and have not purch

Representative Clancy also bitterly to the bills' provision ing compulsory registration
American citizens who cross der, declaring that it will ca friendly relations with Can Mexico by "hampering and ing innocent travel."
